1987 Pennsylvania Farm Show

Extravaganza Par Excellence

HARRISBURG — To a standing ovation the Governor and Ginny Thornburgh and Secretary of Agriculture Richard Grubb and his wife Barbara entered the large arena in a luxurious carriage pulled by two gleaming black draft horses to open the 71st Pennsylvania Farm Show last Sunday. From then on it was an extravaganza par excellence as hundreds of shows, events, meetings and exhibitions took center stage as the week progressed. In the center photo, Thornburg makes it milk in front of 5,000 people.

Advanced interest was noted on leg quarters for the next two weeks. Wings were fully adequate to ample and hard to move.

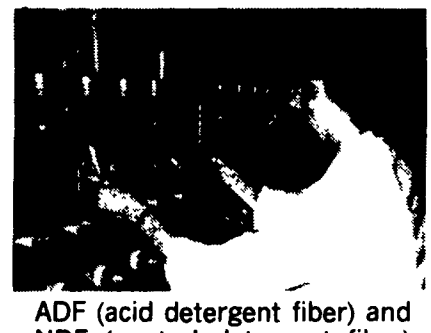
PENNFIELD TESTING LAB - LANCASTER

NIR provides fast and accurate forage results.

Wet chemistry is used to insure NIR accuracy.



ADF (acid detergent fiber) and NDF (neutral detergent fiber) are used to determine available energy from forages.

Forages and water samples are checked for the presence of nitrates when requested.

NO CHARGE FORAGE TESTING:

The primary job at Pennfield's Testing lab is the accurate testing of the feed ingredients used to make Pennfield feeds. You can not consistently make a quality feed unless you know the analysis of the ingredients to be used. Pennfield uses the feed testing equipment to process over 5,000 forage samples annually.

OPINION

1987 Pa. State Farm Show

"Progress Through Technology" was the theme of the 71st Pennsylvania Farm Show held in Harrisburg this week, and the technologies on display covered a span of 2,327 years.

Farm Show visitors, in a walk of a few minutes, could travel from the Stone Age of agriculture to the Hi-Tech Age of modern farming. In the shadow of massive, computerized machinery was the display of the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology.

Artifacts displayed in the historical exhibit were explained with simple-sentence notations. Nearby, a sport coat clad salesman is on hand to explain and answer questions about a complicated looking piece of equipment.

The artifacts included stone hoes, which were hafted to wooden handles and used to break soil and cultivate hand-planted gardens. Also shown were wooden digging sticks for loosening the soil and extracting plants. Towering nearby you could see modern day cultivating and harvesting tools designed by engineers and manufactured by world-known companies.

The crude implements were the tools of a time when farming the land was a total way of life. Today, as agriculture has again become Pennsylvania's leading industry, the tools in use are really technologies. A computerized combine on display, for instance, has digital read-out electronic monitors and electro-hydraulic controls.

Oldest items in the historical display were squash seeds that date back more than 3,000 years. They were recovered from the Meadow Craft Rockshelter in Washington County. They were seeds from the soil. A short walk, in the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture booth, were hydroponic vegetables grown in rockwool.

Looking back and ahead through the exhibits at the Farm Show, it was evident that "Progress Through Technology" is more than a theme. It signifies the dramatic evolution in the way Pennsylvanians live and farm. We hope you had the opportunity to enjoy this year's nice weather and see a really great Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

FARM FORUM
OUR READERS WRITE

Dear Editor:

An article in Lancaster Farming last week indicates Secretary of Agriculture designee Boyd Wolff would like to improve farm income and promote Pennsylvania agriculture. Who wouldn't? However, there is a limit to what the state can do. Prices, costs, interest rates and ag programs are determined nationally, not on a state level.

I would hope the state ag secretary would represent ag to the governor, other cabinet members and the legislature. He has their ear. A farmer might have problems with Penndot, DER, revenue, labor and industry, state police, fish and game, etc. The ag secretary could help the parties understand each other better. Water pollution must be reduced. Regulations should be bearable. Obnoxious weeds must be controlled.

We need leadership in the department of agriculture. I am convinced farmers would do better in the legislature if they would do more to reduce soil erosion and water pollution. Lip service is not enough.

I wish Mr. Wolff well.

Sincerely
Richard Wright
Elliottsburg

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Be Aware of the Meeting Season

This is the time of year that a lot of educational meetings are held and they're held during this season of year for a good reason — you have more time to attend meetings. During the spring, the summer and into the fall, there's just too much field work that must be done.

Take the time to become acquainted with the meetings of interest to you and your operation. Some meetings are designed to reach certain production groups such as Dairy Days, Livestock Day, Crops and Soils Day and Poultry Day, but others are programmed to reach all agri-business people like the Financial Management, Estate Planning and Farm Transfer Arrangement meetings.

Also, many agri-business and lending institutions conduct meetings to keep you abreast of the changes in their organizations. We urge you to mark your calendar as these meetings are announced and attend as many as possible.

To Control The Mid-Winter Rat Problem

Rats are dirty, they are destructive and they carry disease-spreading pests. We all know that, but did you know that one rat can cost you $28 a year and that rats cause an estimated 25 percent of all farm fires. Rats spread more than 35 diseases (which have killed more people than all the wars in history).

Rats are very prolific; they have new litters every 30 days — they multiply so rapidly that a pair could have 15,000 descendants in a year's life span. Rats have sharp teeth and can gnaw through lead pipes, sheet metal, cinder blocks and wiring. It's estimated that rats destroy about 20 percent of all crops planted each year.

This is an excellent time to check your bait stations and make sure they have fresh material. And be sure that children and dogs and cats can not get to the bait. Let's do all we can to keep these expensive, destructive pests out of our buildings.

To Provide Supplemental Heat

This is the time of year when many pigs and lambs are being born into cold quarters. If the newborn animals become chilled that first hour, they will be in trouble. Many digestive and respiratory problems can develop.

We urge producers to provide heat lamps, or some other source of heat, for these animals the first few days. Modern farrowing barns already have supplemental heat units that provide the proper temperature to get little pigs off to a good start. However, many sheep barns are too cold for little lambs.

The placing of a heat lamp over the small pen in which the ewe and lamb are kept for the first few days will be helpful. Be careful that the heat lamp is well attached and out of the reach of animals.

To Recognize Fertilizer Values

Since the cost of commercial fertilizer continues high, we should take a look at other sources of plant food; I am referring to farm manure and legume sods in our crop rotation.

The 1987-88 Agronomy Guide gives a very good comparison of these fertilizer values on page 22. With the amount of manure that is being applied to some of our livestock and poultry farms, it is quite possible that very little commercial fertilizer will be needed.

Alfalfa sod can add as much as 110 pounds of nitrogen per acre. This information is also found in the '87-88 Agronomy Guide on page 23. This is one advantage to having legumes in the crop rotation.

A complete soil test will reveal the needs for each field. Then the needs can be met by using farm manures, legume sods or commercial fertilizer. Careful handling and storage of manure will preserve many of these valuable fertilizer elements.

LAZARUS ONLY DIED TWICE
January 18, 1987

Background Scripture: John 11:1-44.

Devotional Reading: John 11:45-53.

When last seen in the Gospel according to John, Lazarus had just been raised from the dead and literally was getting a new lease on life. That's the end of his story, so far as we know it. But, despite the fact that Jesus raised him from the dead, Lazarus eventually died again. We don't have to read it in the Bible to know that Lazarus's raising from the dead by Jesus was temporary, like all the healings of Jesus.

Or was it?

When Jesus arrived in Bethany, he was met by great disappointment. The very first words which Martha spoke to him were: "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died," the very thing with which Mary greeted him a bit later (John 11:21,32). They cannot help wondering why Jesus did not arrive earlier? They were probably not aware that when the message of Lazarus's illness reached Jesus, "he stayed two days longer in the place where he was" (11:5). It seemed a strange way to show his love for this family.

THE GLORY OF GOD

It might appear, then, that Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead because of the reproaches from Martha and Mary. They did not realize that Lazarus had already died before the messengers reached Jesus (he had delayed only two days, but when he got to Bethany, Lazarus had been dead four). Also, we might conclude that Jesus also raised Lazarus because of the challenge which Martha gives him: "And even now I know that whatever you ask from God, God will give you" (11:22).

But, Jesus did not raise Lazarus from the dead because he had delayed in coming, nor because he was challenged to demonstrate his power. There are two reasons for this miracle and they have nothing to do with a failure of either Jesus's judgement or his compassion. The writer of the Gospel of John indicates from the very beginning of the story that Jesus delayed, not because of a lack of compassion, but because there was a Divine higher plan and purpose of which he was aware. Informed of Lazarus's illness and the summons of Martha and Mary, Jesus tells his disciples, "...it is for the glory of God, so that the Son of God may be glorified by means of it" (11:4). And later, informing his disciples that Lazarus was already dead, Jesus said, "...and for your sake I am glad that I was not there, so that you may believe" (11:15).

JESUS WEPT

The second reason is evident: "When Jesus saw her weeping, he was deeply moved in spirit and troubled" and John tells us plainly that "Jesus wept" (11:33,35). Jesus's sorrow was evident enough for people to notice: "So the Jews said, 'See how he loved him!'" Although Jesus knew God's plan to raise Lazarus, nevertheless he was moved and troubled by the grief and pain of his friends– a pain that may have been all the more intense because they were not certain that Jesus hadn't failed them.

In the raising of Lazarus, God demonstrates his power over death and established Christ as the Lord of life. The point was not that Lazarus would not die again, but that when that happened, by the power of God in Christ, death would not have the final word with Lazarus or with us.

BIG 10 WORLD RECORD ALFALFA

BIG 10 alfalfa is the first variety to set an impressive 10-ton per acre world record for non-irrigated alfalfa.

BIG 10 was developed by one of the world's largest alfalfa seed companies and tested and confirmed by Dr. M.B. Tesar and his Michigan State University staff.

"...this is the highest documented two-year and three-year average research yield for non-irrigated alfalfa in the U.S. and in the world," notes Dr. Tesar.

BIG 10 doesn't stop with high-yield, however. It provides resistance to all the major alfalfa pests including bacterial wilt, anthracnose, phytophthora, and fusarium. It also incorporates very good seedling vigor and moderate winter hardiness, providing top tonnage for 3 to 5 years.

BIG 10 alfalfa gives you the best return for your investment today.

Egg Show Placings

Each year at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, eggs are judged inside and out. And this year's egg competition is a showcase of the Commonwealth's top-notch eggs, says Ray Kennerknecht, Crawford County extension agent and a judge in the 1987 competition.

"Here at the egg show we have many classes that all display Pennsylvania quality eggs," he says. "More than 400 dozen eggs are judged for both exterior and interior quality."

Poultry is one of Pennsylvania's largest agricultural industries, and the egg competition at Farm Show reflects that industry's prominence. Says Kennerknecht, "We're here to show the consumer that Pennsylvania produces high-quality eggs."

Lancaster Youths Cop Junior Market Swine Championships

HARRISBURG — As a result of Thursday's hog show Karen Becker will be smiling a little brighter in the future. "Dad promised that if my pig got grand champion I could get braces," Karen said, adding that he when he made the promise he was "kinda joking because he never thought I'd win."

It was no joke when judge Gene Isler, Columbus, Ohio, pronounced Karen's Yorkshire-Hampshire cross grand champion of the junior market swine show held in the small arena of the Farm Show building.

"We have to keep the swine shows practical and raise what the market is looking for," Isler said. Weighing in at 224 pounds, the middleweight impressed Isler with its wide, thick, square body. "The champion glides around the ring as well as any pig and shows a tremendous amount of muscling."

Karen, the 12-year-old daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim, showed at the Farm Show two years ago where she earned an 11th place finish. "All I wanted this year was eighth place so I could sell it separately. When he said I got it I couldn't believe it," Karen said. I'm still in shock, she noted after returning her barrow to the barn.

The Pen-Elm 4-H club member promptly changed the name of her pig following the show from Alexander to Alexander the Great, for obvious reasons.

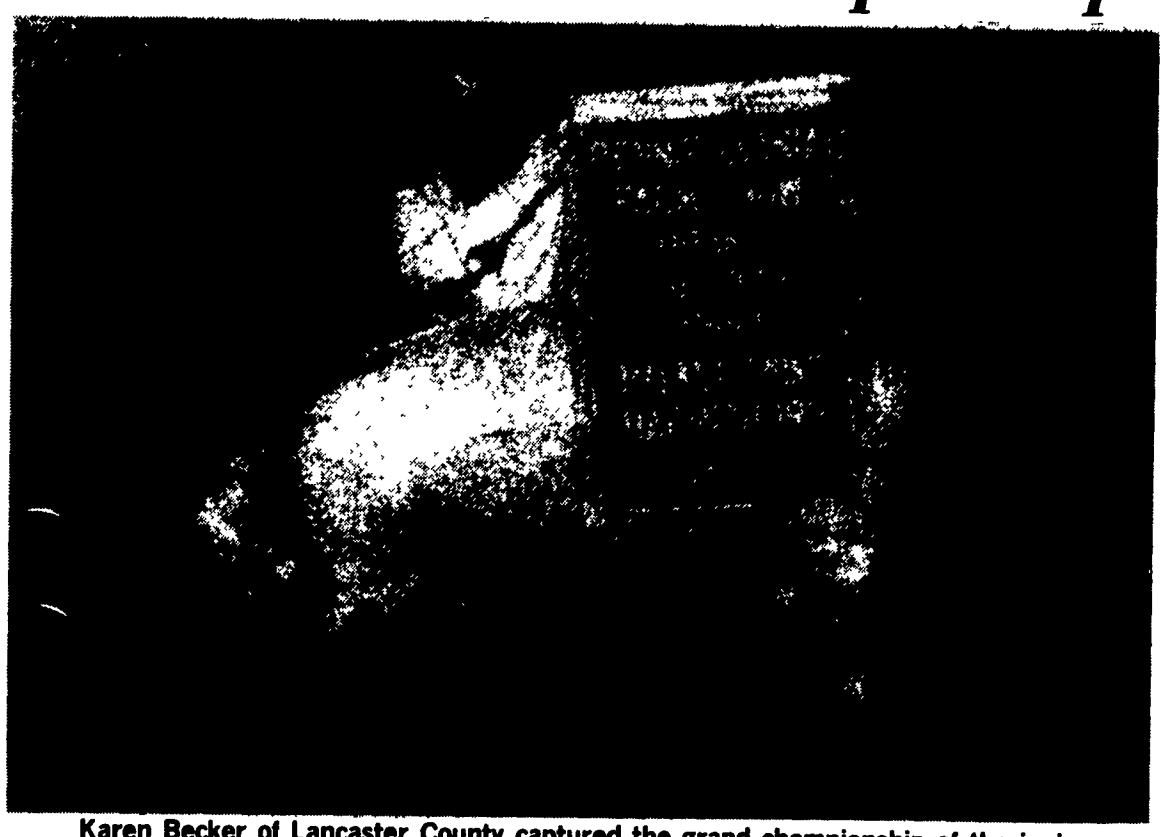
Mike Mellott, Peach Bottom, was equally surprised with his success in the showring. The Lancaster County youth captured the reserve grand champion title with a Duroc-Hampshire-Spot cross. "This is the first big show I've ever done well with pigs in," he said.

A member of the Solanco FFA, Mellott conditioned his FFA project by walking it in its pen. At 4 months the pig weighs in at 234 pounds. Mellott was able to achieve this weight gain by feeding his pig cow's milk. His father, Robert, drives a milk truck and brings home out-of-date milk for pig feed, Mellott explained.

Showing in his second consecutive year at the Farm Show, Mellott considered what the judge would be looking for when he selected his hog. "I was looking for a thick and meaty hog and this cross caught my eye," Mellott said.

Isler described the reserve champion as following right along with his grand champion by exhibiting big volume, capacity and muscling.

While he enjoys raising pigs, following graduation in June Mellott plans to enter into the dairy business with Bob Kauffman.



Karen Becker of Lancaster County captured the grand championship of the junior market swine show with her Yorkshire-Hampshire crossbred barrow.

The following are the results of the junior market swine and showmanship contests.

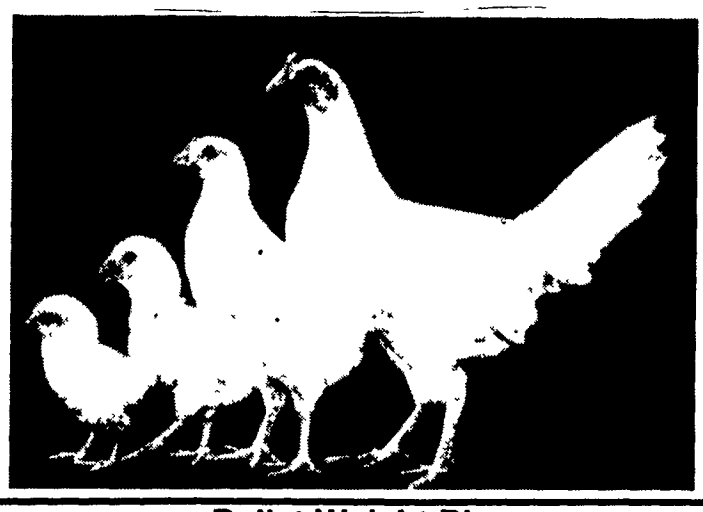
NEW!! ACCU-LINE®
PULLET WEIGHT PLUS



Pullet Weight Plus
helps keep pullets at target weights.

What it is

The Accu-Line® Pullet Weight Plus™ brand feed is an optional Accu-Line pullet grower ration that increases pullet weights:
- For pullets under management stress
- For heat stressed pullets Accu-Line Pullet Weight Plus rations are available as a complete feed or through the use of special concentrates.

How it Works

Purina nurtitionists have found that by changing energy sources while maintaining a proper amino acid to energy ratio. Pullet Weight Plus rations will allow pullets to gain closer to target weight projections in stress conditions. Through the use of a highly available energy source, feed intake is maintained closer to normal. Thus, the maintenance of amino acids, mineral, and vitamin intakes allows pullets to maintain proper frame development in proportion to the total body weight gains.

With breeders selecting earlier sexually maturing pullets, it is more essential than ever to maintain pullets nearer breeder's target weights and frame development guides.

Low energy rations that reduce growth rate and compensatory growth programs should be used with caution since proper frame development and/or body weight targets may not be achieved prior to onset of production.

COUNTER® In-Furrow.

Windproof Studies show that wind can seriously affect the placement of your insecticide during banded application. Winds of only 10 mph can blow granules as much as 20 inches off the row. And a 20 mph wind can put your insecticide off-target by 30 inches or more.

But even 30 mph winds don't affect the accurate placement of COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide applied in-furrow. So you put all of your protection where it's needed most.

Rainproof With in-furrow application, your valuable insecticide is working beneath the surface, where it's protected from heavy rains.

Proven Performance COUNTER controls more major corn pests than any other product. It's the broadest-spectrum control you can get.

Lancaster Youth Cops Holstein Championship

HARRISBURG — A long-standing rivalry between two youthful competitors and their cows was renewed on Tuesday on familiar territory. When the dust settled in the large arena of the Farm Show building, Thomas McCauley emerged victorious and unscathed; Queen Star Sexy had conquered yet another challenger and added a new ribbon to her halter.

C.E. Hubbard returned to York County with the reserve grand champion title to await another show.

Queen Star Sexy, EX-93, added a new title to her long list of showring accomplishments. Although she garnered the youth division championship of the Farm Show two years ago, the open show title had proved elusive until Tuesday's Holstein show.

Thomas never assumed the championship was his despite Sexy's outstanding record. "I was worried about C.E. His cow is fresh and mine is just about dry," Thomas explained.

Judge Creedin Cornman, Carlisle, gave the edge to Sexy based on her length, scale, size and overall frame. However, C.E. Hubbard's reserve grand champion, earned best udder honors in the aged cow class where she placed second to Sexy.

In her most recent record, the Sexation daughter produced over 31,000 pounds of milk and 1,358 pounds of fat. Thomas' father, Dr. Alan McCauley, Elizabethtown, explained that Sexy had her last calf in October, 1985. Since then Thomas has been flushing her and has an overseas contract for embryos.

Thomas, a member of the Lancaster County 4-H dairy club, noted that it has been 10 years since a showman from Lancaster County garnered the Holstein show grand championship at the Farm Show.

Reserve grand champion, Kowraygan Creek Linnan-Jean, owned by C.E. Hubbard of York County, freshened in September. In her most recent record she produced 23,460 pounds of milk and 1,090 pounds of fat in 365 days.

C.E., a nine-year 4-H member, noted Linnan's freshening date was optimal for the Farm Show. "She milked off the excess fat and had more bloom of mammary. For this show she was looking her best."

Another 4-H member was the driving force behind Miller and Guest of Nazareth winning the premier breeder and exhibitor award.

Kenneth Miller credits his daughter, Patricia, with helping the family their first premier plaques. "Patty really wanted to do it." Kenneth explained that he originally showed at the Farm Show in 1955 but stopped showing for awhile then Patty became involved with the Northampton County 4-H Dairy Club.

"My wife, Carol, wanted a chance at the awards so we brought eight this year. Last year we only showed seven," Kenneth said, noting the premier awards are based on the performance of eight animals.

Carol commented through tears of joy, "This makes the work worthwhile."

Miller and his brother-in-law, C. Herbert Guest, operate a jugging operation, M Maple Grove Farm, of 165 homebred milking cows in Nazareth. They maintain an average of 17,800 pounds of milk on their herd.

The Miller's also showed the first place exhibitor's herd of four animals. Patty owned three of the four, Kenneth explained.

Sherry Donmoyer, Annville, exhibited the junior champion for the open and youth contests. Swampy-Hollow Rick sired the powerful Loving-Meadows Velvet, a senior yearling.

Reserve junior champion of the open show went to an entry owned by Robert Gitt and Chris and Steve Wood, Littlestown, of Penn Gate Farm.

Penn Gate Farm won the champion udder class with its 2-year-old entry, Penn Gate R Maple Ellen. Cornman complimented the Citation R Maple daughter for her udder's outstanding veination, crease and quality throughout.

Cornman tabbed Angela Lang's Dar-Dale Standout Stacy for the reserve junior championship of the youth contest.

Three Springs Repeats Sweep Of Milking Shorthorn Show

BY J. EVAN REIFF

HARRISBURG — Just two years after a dispersal sale, Three Springs Farm, Newville, Cumberland County, won both the premier breeder and the premier exhibitor awards of the Milking Shorthorn show at the 1987 Farm Show.

The James Young family, owners of Three Springs Farm, all but swept the show. Christine Young, 14, captured the senior and grand championships of both the junior and open shows with her 3-year-old cow, Three Springs Angie D.

Angie D, homebred on the top and bottom of her pedigree, placed first in her class at the All-American Milking Shorthorn show in Massachusetts in her most recent outing.

Christine, a member of the Cumberland County 4-H dairy club, also won the junior championship of the open and youth divisions with her intermediate yearling.

Judge Creedin Cornman selected another Three Springs entry, a 4-year-old dry cow, Three Springs BL Lil, as reserve senior and grand champion of the open show. According to Christine, the success of the farm's entries will have a positive affect on its operation. "We want people to know we're back," Young stated.

Only two other exhibitors were able to break the Youngs' monoply of the winner's circle. Monica Goshorn of Huntingdon County received the reserve grand and senior champion award with her 3-year-old named Pinesedge HC Cheri Pie 2nd, while Danielle Breaux of Montgomery County won reserve junior champion with her junior calf.

Guernsey Show Ribbons Shared By Several Breeders

HARRISBURG — Guernsey breeders from York, Lancaster and Lebanon Counties shared top honors at Tuesday's Guernsey show in the large arena of the Farm Show.

Judge Charles McGinnis of Mountville, S.C., pulled Rutter Bros Jupiters June into the grand champion slot. Owned by Rutter Brothers of York and shown by Cindy Rutter-Johnson, the 4-year-old cow was sired by Lone Palm TH Jupiter.

June freshened on Jan. 1 with a bull calf. She was a candidate to come to last year's Farm Show but didn't calve out soon enough and was out of condition. "We brought her back earlier last year so she'd been in condition this year," Cindy explained.

The formula worked as June also captured the champion udder award. Last year the homebred champion completed a record in 275 days of 13,000 pounds of milk with a 5.4 test.

Standing next to the champion in the reserve position was Lebanon Valley Star Elsie. Owned by Robert Smith of Annville, the 3-year-old champion has been shown since she was a calf. At last year's Farm Show she placed second in the 2-year-old class for her previous best placing, Dave Smith said.

Elsie's other credits include an EX-91 classification and the Pennsylvania Guernsey Futurity title. As a 2-year-old she completed a record of 14,800 pounds of milk and 700 pounds of fat.

Lebanon Valley Guernseys captured the premier breeder and exhibitor plaques for the second consecutive year and third time total. "We're always pleased when we do well; Benedicts and Rutters had two good strings," Dave explained.

The Smiths had a total of nine animals at the Show with their prefix. Two of these animals belonged to their herdsman's son, Thomas Hostetter Jr. Thomas earned the reserve junior and reserve grand championships of the youth show.

Grand champion honors of the youth show and junior champion of the open show went to Janice Garber of Lancaster County.

A senior yearling heifer, Willows Fayette Toshya is due in March to Agni. The placing surprised Janice since milking cows normally do better than heifers in the grand championship contest.

Janice noted she is hoping for a heifer from the Fayette daughter since all of her other 4-H projects seem to have bull calves. She also stated she hopes the champion develops a good udder so she can continue showing her. "She did so well in the past for me and she leads so well I'd like to continue showing her," Janice said.

On last year's show circuit, Toshya placed third out of 18 in the national junior Jersey show and ninth out of 33 in the open show in addition to earning junior champion status at throughout the 4-H circuit, Janice explained.

Janice's win also earned her the Sewickley Trophy which is given each year to the owner of the best animal in the youth division.

In the junior show, Tracy Buffington of Millersburg, Dauphin County, showed Don Buff Jem Gin Gloria to the senior champion slot followed by Floyd Buffington, Millersburg, in the reserve spot with Har Ra Fayvors Diane.

Jeffrey Benedict of Waynesboro, Franklin County showed the reserve junior champion in the open show.

Victory Acres Returns To Victory In Brown Swiss Show

BY J. EVAN REIFF

HARRISBURG — It was the championship that almost wasn't for Dean and Brenda Daubert. According to Dean, it took some are twisting from his sister, a student at Harrisburg Area Community College, before he decided to enter the Brown Swiss competition at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The trip proved to be worthwhile for the Dauberts of Bernville, Berks County, as Windmill Mat Victoria was named the senior and grand champion cow of the Brown Swiss competition by judge John Morris. A 3-year-old, Victoria won the same title at last year's Show.

Four Seasons Gen Surefire walked away with reserve grand and senior honors in the open show and grand champion honors in the youth show for 14-year-old John L. Kennedy of Butler County. John's father, James, praised his son's dedication to the dairy.

"He's a great help and does a terrific job," Kennedy said. "He works with his cows and they do what he wants in the showring."

The Kennedy family operates a 175-head, fourth generation dairy farm. They were named the Brown Swiss show's premier breeder and exhibitor for the second consecutive year.

Sycamore Meade Cows Reaps Banners and Championships

HARRISBURG — Debra Shetterly garnered the grand and reserve grand championships of the open and youth contests of the Farm Show Ayrshire competition.

The big question of the day for Debra was which cow would win. The Upper Dauphin 4-H'er has been showing the bovine pair for the past four years. During the past year the cows traded places with each other in the grand and reserve positions at almost every show.

At Tuesday's show it was Sycamore Meade Champs Luvie's turn to have the edge and garner the grand champion position. At the Junior All-American Show, held on the same battlefield, her herdmate, Sycamore Meade Lochs Lovely, won the grand championship. This week she settled for the reserve ribbon at the Farm Show.

Luvie is a maternal sister to Lovely. Sired by Sycamore Meade Champ, the 5 year old classified EX-91 and produced a top record over 16,000 pounds of milk. Debra noted she plans to show both cows next year despite the fact that both cows will be in the aged cow class.

Debra's winnings assisted in bringing the premier breeder and exhibitor distinctions to Sycamore Meade Farm.

Owned by Earl Keefer and Donald Shetterly, the Millersburg farm has won both plaques four times before, Donald said. Of the 10 head shown by Sycamore Meade, five were 4-H projects.

"We have 160 head to choose from and try to pick the ones that will do the best at that particular time," he explained.

Shetterlys have been showing at the Farm Show between 10 and 12 years, Donald noted. They come to the show because of the Show's proximity to their farm and publicity purposes. "We sell a lot of breeding stock here," he said.

Lona Rader's junior calf, Homestead Acres Royal Sadie, earned junior champion honors in the youth and open contests. Laura Harding of Lebanon captured the reserve junior rosettes in both divisions with her senior yearling, Toll Gate Ayr Barry's Flora.

John Morris of Frederick, Md., judged the show.

Pleasant Valley Jerseys Dominate Show

HARRISBURG — The Jersey show turned out to be a Pleasant Valley Tuesday as the Lester Martin family, Chambersburg, paraded their show string to a total of 11 championships and both premier awards from the Farm Show competition.

Beginning the parade was Denise Martin's intermediate yearling, Pleasant Valley V Master Royal. Judge Charles McGinnis crowned the Master Milestone C daughter junior champion of the youth show and reserve junior champion of the open show.

The 4-H member followed the junior titles by winning the grand and senior championships of the open and youth shows with Pleasant Valley Superb Cashew. The 3-year-old daughter of B S Noble Superb freshened three months ago and is presently producing 40 pounds of milk per day, Denise's mother, Ruth, noted.

Ruth added that the homebred entry caught the judge's attention with her upstandingness and quality udder which earned the champion the best udder title.

Denise then yielded to her father, Lester, who won the reserve grand and senior champion titles with Pleasant Valley Dazzler Amanda, a 2-year-old cow. Reserve champion titles in the youth division went to Denise's sister, Tina, who is finishing her 4-H career.

The finishing touch to the Pleasant Valley Tuesday came when the Franklin County Jersey herd received the premier breeder and exhibitor recognitions.

While the Martins have been in the dairy business for 25 years, they have only been milking a total Jersey herd for the past 10. Ruth noted they converted from the Holstein business when their four children entered 4-H.

They have shown at the Farm Show four times before. This year is the first time they have been able to claim both premier titles and the grand championship, Ruth said. "We wanted to show all our own prefix," she stated. "As a breeder, it shows what you've accomplished in your breeding program to win the premier breeder title."

The first three places in each class follow:

Case IH Acquires Steiger; Projects Profit In 1986

HARRISBURG — At a news conference here at the Farm Show on Monday, Norm Boyd, Philadelphia group manager for Case IH, announced that Tenneco Inc., parent company acquired Steiger Tractor and is merging Steiger and Case IH. "Steiger is a good pick with our company," Boyd said, "because nearly half of the Steiger dealers also have the Case IH contract. Steiger's product mix compliments our's extremely well by expanding our line into the larger four wheel drive category."

"This new merger is an example of what's happening in agriculture today," Boyd said. "One way to characterize the agricultural equipment industry is with a single word, "restructuring". Restructuring has been a part of the American business for many years. What makes the current restructuring activity different from any other is the magnitude with which it has happened. Restructuring is taking place because of worldwide competition," Boyd said. "In agriculture you hear about mergers, acquisitions, auctions, foreclosures and bankruptcies. Profound rapid and dramatic change in restructuring is affecting every level of agribusiness. Fewer farms, fewer ag equipment dealers and fewer ag equipment manufacturers are the rule. No industry of this size has ever restructured itself as fast as agribusiness. International Harvestore sold its ag division to Tenneco, the parent company of Case IH, as the first major consolidation in our industry. Other mergers have followed rapidly, Ford, New Holland; Deutz, Allis; Allied Equipment, White Farm Equipment and now Steiger, Case IH."

"This latest merger marks what industry consultants predict will be the end of the major acquisition. From now on instead of buying each other out, manufacturers are

Messick Repeats Farm Show Steer Championship

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — It was back in the early 1960s when a young showman named Bill Rishel won the Farm Show market steer show two years running. And, for the second time in Farm Show's history, it happened on Wednesday afternoon when defending champion Mike Messick copped the coveted grand champion title with his homebred steer named Elmer.

The son of Doris and Mylin Messick of Middletown, Dauphin County, Mike Messick chooses his show stock from the Messick Farms herd. This year's winner was a Chianina-Angus cross sired by Ideal, the Messick bull that sired last year's champion, as well. Messick sorted through 50 or more show prospects at the family farm before settling on the one he felt had enough muscling, length and structural correctness to be competitive in the state's most prestigious market steer show.

"I didn't think it would ever happen again," said the stunned 16-year-old Lower Dauphin junior. If the decision would have been left up to Elmer, it probably never would have happened again.

It all started on a hot day back in early October when Messick was getting the steer ready to compete in the Keystone International Livestock Expo. He had tied Elmer to a tree, whereupon the steer managed to tangle his leg in the halter. When Mike returned he found his prize show prospect injured and exhausted from trying to free himself.

"Just a few more minutes and he'd have been dead," said Messick's father, who helped his son prop the steer up and pour cold water on him to lower his temperature. "It took the enthusiasm right out of us," said the elder Messick.

Determined to rehabilitate his animal, the young exhibitor massaged Elmer's badly bruised leg twice a day for six weeks after the accident. The injury canceled the steer's KILE engagement, but there was still hope for Farm Show.

The 1,275-pound steer made an attempt to cancel his Farm Show debut as well, when, only minutes before the steer show began, he bolted and took a brief trot around the Farm Show grounds before being recaptured. His last try for anonymity came after being crowned champion, when he slipped out of Messick's grasp while being pursued by a stampede of reporters in the large arena. "He just likes to be let alone," said Messick after gaining a tighter grasp on the halter.

Elmer's victory on Wednesday marks the fourth time in five years that a Messick steer has made it to the Farm Show winners circle. Mike Messick's sister Sarah began the tradition by taking reserve grand champion honors in 1983, then duplicating the feat in 1985.

A steer named Gorgeous lived up to his name by catching judge Randall Updike's eye and earning reserve grand champion honors for Franklin Countian Donnie Sheiss. Although the Chianina-Angus cross was named reserve champion middleweight at KILE last year, Sheiss had only one show in mind when he laid his money down at a calf sale in Indiana. "When we bought him, this (Farm Show) was the show we wanted to take him to," beamed the 16-year-old 4-H'er after his victory.

Sired by Cherry County, the June calf weighed 1,285, and took reserve honors in the heavyweight division behind Messick's steer.

Sheiss, a junior at Greencastle High School, is the son of Daryl and Penny Sheiss of Chambersburg.

Both the lightweight and middleweight champion titles went to Westmoreland County's Lilley family, when Heath Lilley, 11, took champion lightweight honors and his 17-year-old brother, Todd, won the middleweight contest.

The sons of Robert and Carol Lilley of Donegal, the two exhibitors bought their steers from Jeff Lock in Columbus, Ohio. The lightweight champion was a 1,145-pound Simmental-Chianina-Angus cross and the 1,290-pound middleweight was a Chi-Angus steer.

Prior to the steer show, Penn State Professor Emeritus Dr. Lester Burdette presented the J. Ira Coble Award for outstanding beef club leadership to Lancaster Countian Lester M. Weaver.

The former farmer and owner of a retail fertilizer business, Weaver is credited with being instrumental in the formation of the New Holland 4-H Beef Club in 1953. During the club's early years, Weaver traveled widely to calf sales in Pensylvania and Virginia to buy calves for club members. Still active in club activities, he assists in weighing and tagging project steers each year.

Cattlemen Vie For Top Breeding Beef Honors

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — The numbers may have been down, but from all the judges' accounts, quality was up in Farm Show's open breeding beef show held on Wednesday. Although Angus cattle normally outnumbered the other breeds in years past, this year Polled Herefords were most numerous, with 83 registered, compared to the 75 Angus shown.

Compared to last year, Limousin and Simmental registrations were up and Angus and Polled Herefords were down. Due to their decreasing numbers in the past several years, Chianinas were not shown this year.

Angus

Angus cattle kicked off the show, with Mark Richardson, a Milton, Indiana, Angus breeder, serving as judge. Richardson sifted through what he found to be a quality herd of females and slapped Cyprus Creek Mayflower for grand champion honors. A New Yorker daughter, Mayflower is jointly owned by Frank and Susan Walton of Coatesville, Fox Hill Farm of Kennett Square and Cyprus Creek of Texas.

The victory was particularly sweet for Frank Walton. "Her great grandmother was the very first registered cow I bought," Walton pointed out. "She means a lot."

Before posting her Farm Show victory, Mayflower had already been named grand champion at the Keystone International Livestock Expo in October and the Canadian Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. Her next trip to the showring will be to Timonium, Maryland on Memorial Day weekend when she'll compete in the first Atlantic National.

After taking grand champion honors as a calf in last year's Farm Show, Kruegers Big Black Bird returned to go home with the reserve title. A Foolish Pride daughter, Black Bird is owned by Greg Krueger and Family and Warren Bippert of Alden, New York.

Greg Krueger found himself back in the winners circle when Richardson tapped Genetics Jack Daniels for champion Angus bull honors. The March, 1986 bull is owned by Genetics Unlimited, LaVerne Krueger and Family, MR Angus and Golden Valley Angus. A naturally born calf, Jack Daniels was sired by Yukon Jack and has a full brother named 100 Proof. If ever there was a "spirited" family of Angus bulls, this is it. Earlier this season, Jack Daniels won his class at the All-American Futurity in Louisville, and edged out 100 Proof for reserve calf champion honors in Timonium.

Lancaster County Extension livestock agent Chet Hughes was at the halter of this year's reserve champion Angus bull. Wilson's Briar Fox is jointly owned by Hughes' High Point Angus, Hughes Farms, Country Lane Farms, Richard Gregg and Harvest Hill Farm. A New Yorker son, Brier Fox has never been beaten in his class and was last year's Farm Show champion when he competed as a calf.

Polled Hereford

Dr. Thomas Turner of Ohio State University evaluated the Polled Hereford heifers and selected a Hotline daughter for grand champion honors. Named Starline, she is co-owned by Andy Sweet of Y-Not Farm, Dayton, Indiana, and Pete Lohr of TLC Custom Fitters. The winning heifer's dam was Miss Nugget, a daughter of the national grand champion female, Miss Magnum. Starline's dam also produced a female that was this year's Farm Show calf champion. "That was the heifer that I kind of thought would win," said Sweet following the show.

The reserve champion female was owned by Keith and Linda Rooker of Uniontown, Fayette County. Also the show's junior champion, the May heifer was sired by a Driver son and was junior champion at KILE in October.

Giant Sundance, a bull co-owned by John and Janet Humphrey of Patton, Cambria County, and Pete Lohr, was judge Turner's choice for champion honors. "He's done real well in the showring," said Janet Humphrey, adding that the bull was also named junior champion in Tennessee's Appalachian State Fair and again at the Maryland State Fair last year. Sundance was sired by the Polled Hereford bull Stabilizer.

Stockdale Hereford Farms of Dayton, Armstrong County, campaigned the show's reserve champion bull. A High Voltage son, DS High Voltage 406 is out of one of Stockdale's own cows. "He's pretty much a performance oriented bull," Denny Stockdale said, pointing out that the bull's weight at 205 days was already 850 pounds.

Limousin

Randall Updike of the Virginia Department of Agriculture evaluated the Limousin show. For champion female honors he went to OAKF Sunshine, shown by Jennifer Rose of Cochranton, Crawford County. A Gator daughter, Sunshine was also named champion at the Northwest Pennsylvania Classic earlier this season, and she added her Farm Show Victory to her list of credits only one day before her second birthday.

The daughter of Bob and Sondra Rose, 18-year-old Jennifer Rose is a freshman Animal Production major at Penn State.

Eighteen-year-old Brian Miller of Bedford showed his homebred heifer, Heidi, to the reserve championship. This was the first Farm Show victory for the son of David and Linda Miller.

Top Heifers Named In Junior Breeding Beef Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — It was a blue-ribbon week for Fox Hill Farm. After showing the champion Angus Heifer in open competition on Wednesday, the Kennett Square Angus breeders took both grand and reserve honors in the junior Angus show on Thursday. Campaigning their winning Angus females were 12-year-old Erica McClellan and her 10-year-old brother Matthew, the daughter and son of Michael McClellan and Judith Jordan.

Erica McClellan's champion Angus female was Fox Hill Kala, a New Yorker daughter who was reserve champion in KILE's junior show last year. The reserve champion, shown by Matthew McClellan, was Princess Proton, a Genetics Proton daughter that Fox Hill bought from Fred Frey of Twin Oaks Farm.

Charolais

The junior Charolais show turned out to be a family affair as well. Showing the champion and reserve heifers were Kent and Kirk Fisher, the sons of Steve and Margie Fisher of Oley, Berks County.

The show's top Charolais was HVF Consuela, a Constructor daughter out of one of Kent's own cows. This heifer won her class in open competition on Wednesday.

The reserve heifer was High Lite, a High Rise daughter that Kent bred and gave to his brother Kirk. "This was one of the best ones that he had bred," Kirk said after taking reserve honors. The day before the the junior show, High Lite was named junior champion in open competition.

Limousin

In the Limousin show, judge Randall Updike of the Virginia Department of Agriculture, stayed with the two top heifers that won the open show. The champion Limousin was OAKF Sunshine shown by Jennifer Rose, 18, the daughter of Bob and Sondra Rose of Cochranton, Crawford County.

At reserve was Heidi, a female owned by 18-year-old Brian Miller, the son of David and Linda Miller of Bedford.

Polled Hereford

Another Bedford Countian, Stephen Fritz of Manns Choice, took both champion and reserve honors in the Polled Hereford show. The 15-year-old son of Robert and Carol Fritz campaigned his heifer, Freckles, to the grand championship. A "Stick" daughter, she was named reserve junior champion in the open show on Wednesday. Fritz bought the heifer from Penn State University.

Fritz's reserve champion was SVF Lady Sculptor, sired by Matador Sculptor, a bull owned by Graystone Farms. Relative newcomers to the beef cattle business, the Fritz family bought their first breeding stock in 1984 and took this week's titles in their first year of Farm Show competition.

Simmental

Sarah Messick's heifer named MF Miss Signal was competitive enough to take champion honors in both the open and junior shows. The daughter of Mylin and Doris Messick of Middletown, Sarah campaigned her top Simmental female to the reserve champion calf title at last year's Farm Show.

The show's number-two Simmental was shown by 10-year-old Jamie Cowell. The daughter of James, Jr., and Billie Cowell, Jamie bought her heifer from Sunrise Farms in New York. This was the Cowell family's first time in Farm Show competition.

Following are the results of the junior heifer show to the first three placings.

Open Breeding Cattle

Cumberland County, not only swept the bull show, but went home with premier breeder and exhibitor honors, as well. Siegfried, a November, '85 bull owned by Robert Line, Jr., made his showring debut at Farm Show and went all the way to the top.

The Line bulls proved unbeatable, with Gibralter, a March, '86 calf, taking reserve honors behind Siegfried.

Charolais

After inspecting the field of Charolais female entries, judge Thomas Turner awarded both champion and reserve honors to Hilltop Farm, owned by Jesse Haas of Conneautville, Crawford County. Haas, who was making his Farm Show debut, took top honors with an Exodus daughter named Stone-del Miss Ruth. Haas bought the champion from Stone-del Farms of Ohio. His reserve champion, Riverwood Flow, is an Apocalypse daughter that Haas purchased from Riverwood Farms of Ohio.

In the Charolais bull show, Haas again found himself in the winners circle, taking top honors with FPF Kruger, an Elevation son that he bought from Fencepost Farms of Franklin, Pa. Under Fencepost's ownership, Kruger had taken grand champion honors at the New York State Fair in 1985.

Reserve champion bull honors went to Kent Fisher, the son of Steve and Margie Fisher of Oley, Berks County. His bull, HVF Continental, was out of one of Fisher's own cows and sired by

Rabies Law Info Available

HARRISBURG — A free brochure about a new Pennsylvania law that mandates rabies vaccinations for dogs and household cats is now available from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"The brochure is designed to help dog and cat owners understand the law and comply with it," said Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

The rabies vaccination law, which the Department will administer, becomes effective February 13.

"The intent of the law is to provide an immunization barrier against spread of the disease through dogs and cats," Grubb said. "By protecting their pets, owners also protect themselves, their families and their communities.

"The likelihood of a pet's contact with a rabid animal has increased significantly in the past couple years," Grubb noted. "There were 583 confirmed rabies cases last year in wild and domestic animals, and only 23 ten years ago."

Inoculations required by law as of February 13 must be administered or supervised by a licensed veterinarian, either privately or in mass rabies vaccination clinics. A vaccination certificate and tag must be issued the owner of each animal inoculated.

Grubb said the Department also will try to help dog and cat owners by encouraging and assisting in the establishment of low-cost rabies vaccination clinics. "We will gladly provide technical advice, information and publicity to any clinic organizer that requests assistance."

The brochure can be obtained by writing or calling the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110 (1-800-AG-PENNA).

"I Had An Embarrassing Problem."

"It was something I didn't even want to talk about. But now that the problem is solved, I'll tell you. It was a terrible case of raw, cracked teats and udder. You can imagine how that made me feel, especially since I had been number one in the herd. I was miserable!

"Then the dairyman—bless his heart—treated me with Udder Butter.™ You know, the easy-spreading, long-lasting unguent from the folks at Corona. Soon my teats and udder were smooth, moist and comfortable again. That's because Udder Butter is the ointment that combines an effective antiseptic with lanolin and other fine lubricants.

"Udder Butter fights the growth of bacteria, too, and it's good for sun and windburned muzzle, cuts, wounds and abrasions for all animals. Now I get routine treatments with Udder Butter, so my teats and udder stay smooth and healthy.

"You know, I thought all teat-and-udder preparations had a harsh chemical odor, and were hard to wash off at milking time. But not Udder Butter! Thanks to its self-emulsifying formula, it washes right off with warm soapy water. And it has a refreshing vanilla aroma, so it's pleasant to use.

"Now I'm telling all my sisters to ask their dairyman to get Udder Butter. Whether it's the 7 ounce tube, the 28 ounce tub or the 7 pound pail, as long as it's Udder Butter, it's a container of contentment!"

Witmer, Jurchak Honored At Pa. Dairyman's Meeting

HARRISBURG — At the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association's annual meeting on Tueday, two contributors to the state's dairy industry were recognized, a dairyman and a member of the extension service. Honorees this year at the Association's banquet, held here at the Penn Harris motel, include Raymond Witmer and Tom Jurchak.

Witmer, Willow Street, received the Charles Cowan Award, established in memory of a leader in Association activities.

The Lancaster County dairyman and his family operate the Pen-Del Guernsey farm. In 1986 the herd of 60 cows averaged 14,723 pounds of milk, 650 pounds of fat and 511 pounds of protein. Since its beginning, the herd has produced 22 Excellent cows and has received the Gold Star Breeder award 13 times.

Witmer has been very active in the Guernsey breed serving as director for the American, Pennsylvania and Lancaster County Guernsey Cattle Clubs. He was a member of the Guernsey sire reporting committee for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative and an organizing member and chairman of the Mid-Atlantic Guernsey Sire testing program.

Currently his directorships include the All-American Dairy Show, the Lancaster Regional Office of Hamilton Bank, and the Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation.

Witmer and his wife, Louise, have four children: Peter, Mark, Susan and Mary.

In accepting the award, Witmer credited his wife with helping him accomplish his list of achievements.

Jurchak, county extension director for Lackawanna County, received the 1987 Pennsylvania Dairymen's Extension Award. Jurchak has been a member of the extension service over 30 years.

The Lackawanna agent is best known for his education work in the field of milk marketing. He began a bi-weekly newsletter on dairy marketing in 1976 which has become widely distributed outside of Lackawanna County. He has travelled to a number of neighboring states to share expertise on this subject.

Jurchak also possesses an expertise in the fields of vegetable production and marketing.

He has garnered numerous awards during his career with the most recent award, the distinguished service award from the National Association of County Agents, coming in 1984.

Jurchak and his wife, Marie, have three children: Martha, Joseph and Michael.

Wayne Beshore, president of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association, presents the 1987 Extension Award to Tom Jurchak, Lackawanna County extension agent. Looking on are Jurchak's wife, Marie, and toastmaster Chester Heim.

Simmental

Dr. Dan Ebersole of Virginia Polytechnic Institute was in the showring to evaluate the Simmental heifers and bulls. For champion female honors, Ebersole went to a heifer shown by Sarah Messick, daughter of Doris and Mylin Messick of Middletown, Dauphin county. This was the first time in the showring for MF Miss Signal U35, a Signal daughter out of Messick's Super Star cow.

Miss Rolling Ridge T266 took the reserve title for her owner Rose Schneider of Rolling Ridge Farms, Karns City, Butler County. This was a repeat victory for the CPS daughter, who took reserve grand honors at last year's Farm Show as a calf.

In the bull show Messick and Rolling Ridge swapped titles, with Rolling Ridge campaigning RRF Dividend to grand champion honors. Bred and owned by Rolling Ridge, the bull is a RR Supersonic son that was shown for the first time at Farm Show.

Sarah Messick's reserve champion Simmental bull was MF Sam, a Signal son out of one of Messick's cows. The was the first show for the April, '86 bull.

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

WL Competitors

WL Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand You can't afford to settle for less

If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.

MEMO:
TO: Commercial Egg Industry
FROM: Northeast Agri Systems, Lititz, PA
SUBJECT: Making CHORE-TIME and NORTHEAST AGRI SYSTEMS, the leader in Cage sales for 1986.

Please accept our sincere appreciation for helping make Northeast Agri Systems and Chore-Time NUMBER ONE in cage sales for 1986.

Your acceptance of Chore-Time's Super High Speed, NO WASTE - NO PICKOVER - NO MAINTENANCE, computer controlled "ULTRAFLO" cage feeder has been absolutely overwhelming! To our knowledge, at no time in the history of cages, has an automatic feeder caught on with such total user approval.

To meet your needs, Chore-Time has brought on line a new, "State-of-the-Art", high speed "ULTRAFLO" trough roll forming unit. This machinery has the ability to handle heavy gauge, high tensile steel with ease and accuracy. Northeast Agri Systems has completed a new, 12,000 square foot, office - warehouse facility in Lititz, PA, and added several installation crews to satisfy the increasing demand for CHORE-TIME, ULTRAFLO CAGE SYSTEMS.

To those in our cage industry who are planning new layer or pullet units or planning to replace worn, wasteful or obsolete cage feeding systems and are unaware of the tremendous benefits and advantages of our field proven "ULTRAFLO" cage feeding system, please call us at 717-569-2702 to arrange a visit to one of the many recent "ULTRAFLO" installations in our area.

Again our thanks for your overwhelming approval of "ULTRA-FLO" Feeding, CHORE-TIME cage systems, and NORTHEAST AGRI SYSTEMS complete cage house projects.

expected to turn their attention inward reducing costly overhead, upgrading operations and streamlining manufacturing and production lines."

"There are four reasons why we at Case IH are optimistic. First, Case IH has gained market share in the under 40 horse power market. Also, industry wide sales of self-propelled combines, a big ticket item, are up and so is Case IH market share. Third, Case IH has increased market share in nearly every implement category in our product line. And fourthly, skid loader sales are up as is our market share."

"We are making investments today to keep our company and our dealers competitive in this business for years to come. We trimmed our inventory carrying costs by $60 to $80 million in the last two years."

"As a company, we are projecting a profit for 1986. That's a dramatic turn-around from the losses we experienced a year earlier. And some of our competitors are experiencing even this year."

"Our parent company, Tenneco, plans an investment of over $30 million in the Case IH manufacturing facilities and product line. We think that's a strong indication of our commitment to agriculture," Boyd said.

"We care about your business!"

We Put More Men In The Field Than The United States Army.

Currently, Uncle Sam keeps around 300,000 army soldiers on active duty.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, helps keep over 2 million farmers on active duty. With more loans for more farming needs than any other lending institution.

For many of you, we've been there from the beginning. With money for land, as well as your house and barn.

We help stock the farm, too. With loans for everything from cows to catfish. Seeds to saplings. Fertilizer to fencing.

And when it's time for a new tractor or pick-up, just call us to get the wheels turning.

Farming has been our only field of interest for seventy years. That's because we're farmers too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

What's more, come rain or shine, we'll stick by you in any kind of weather. And when you think about it, that's reason enough to join our ranks.

Westminster Farm Is Home To Rare Cotswold Sheep

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. – Swing open the gates to Hill Farm in Westminster, Md., and witness many rare and unusual sights, all at one picturesque location. A slow ascent up the steep hill for which the farm was named offers visual treats from the bottom to the top.

About a third of the way up the grade, the farm sign officially greets the visitor with the Hill Farm logo and a beautiful hand-painted rendition of the extremely rare Cotswold sheep that are raised there. An early 1800's home marks the halfway point; a good place to take in a few deep breaths and prepare for the trek to the top of Hill Farm.

A noisy goose throws back his head and projects loud screeches from his long neck, signaling the arrival of an intruder. That's where Gwen Handler joins the journey. After bundling up baby Valentine, she eagerly steps from the stenciled porch of her country home to offer a warm welcome and encouragement for conquering the steep climb to the sheep barn at the top.

Gwen is soon joined by the entourage that usually accompanies her on such outings – Wiley, a blue-eyed border collie, Spike, a Jack Russel terrier sporting a tartan plaid coat that he got for Christmas, several piebald and bobtailed cats, the goose, and her husband, Larry Fisher. Nine-month-old Valentine rides in her mother's backpack.

"We're sympathetic to rare breeds," explained Gwen. She and her husband have one of the few flocks of Cotswold sheep registered in the state. "There is a real small gene pool in this country," said Gwen of the Cotswold breed. According to the Rare Breeds Survival Trust in England, and the American Minor Breeds Conservancy, the Cotswold is "extremely rare." To illustrate her point, Gwen opens the cap of the pick-up truck parked in front of the house to reveal a large wooly ram just returned from being on loan to the National Park Service. Experts had advised the Park Service that the breed was hardy and most suited for stocking selected areas. The National Park Service also purchased three of the sheep from her flock.

"They are such on old breed," she continued. "They are a good foundation stock." And, when Gwen said "old," she meant really old; "They were raised by the Romans," she added. "People who like the really old breeds like them."

Gwen has served as co-chairman of the annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival with Mary Streaker since 1981. She said that when she first attended the Wool Fair, she often returned home with fleeces that had been for sale. "Now I don't have to tell people what they are. We have a following of people who like to buy raw fleeces. Last year we sold out."

Before she continued the climb to the sheep barn, Gwen paused to point out Rosemarie, a Norwegian Fjord pony in the pasture next to the pond. "She's just a baby," said Gwen of the creamy white pony."

While Larry offered Rosemarie a flake of hay, Gwen and Valentine petted the gentle pony. "I clipped her mane with sheep shears," said Gwen. "She has a black dorsal stripe in her mane." In the style of the Trojan horse, Rosemarie's variegated mane stood straight up with the outside white hair clipped a little shorter than the inside streak of black for a striking contrast.

Each of the rare Cotswold sheep in the Hill Farm flock carries a Swiss hand-forged bell around the neck. There are three pitches that ring in a pleasing blend when the sheep are on the move.

After a slow climb up the rest of the hill, the tinkling of the hand-forged Swiss bells on the sheep was a welcome sound. Each sheep carries a bell with one of three pitches around its neck. "They could sneak right past the house, all 20 of them, if they didn't have the bells on," said Gwen. "It helps me to know where they are."

Romulus' noble wooly head peered out from the barn door to greet her. Two young rams in the back of the pen were squaring off. They lowered their heads and came together with a thunderous thud, and backed up to square off again. "We can stop that," said Gwen. She and Larry quickly filed all of the rams into smaller quarters for a cooling off period.

Gwen separated the long white locks with her hands to show the thick, lustrous fleece near the skin. "That's what it's all about," she said. Cotswolds have a long, curly white fleece that has a unique shiny quality to it. "Thay have a luster fleece," explained Gwen. "I just sell them on how beautiful they are. People can't keep their hands off of them. They are irresistible." Gwen said they have a "good return" on the fleeces, which are now in demand. "Sometimes we send the wool off to Maine," she added.

Gwen and Larry also raise Cotswolds for breeding stock. "They are easy keepers," said Larry. "They aren't fussy." January is lambing season and a busy time at Hill Farm. "I have never gotten up in the middle of the night," said Gwen. "They seem to lamb right around supper time. We have real good luck."

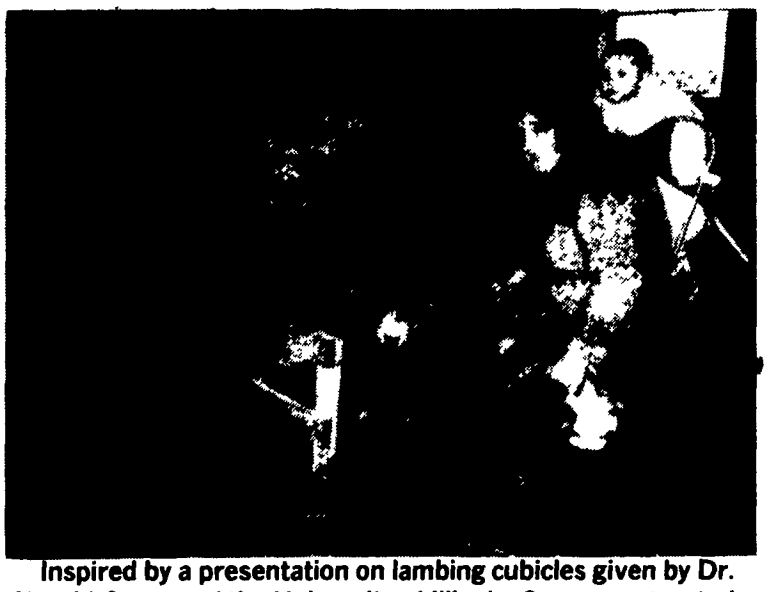
Gwen said she was inspired by the presentation on lambing schedules given by Dr. Harold Gonyou of the University of Illinois during the annual Maryland Sheep Breeders Banquet. "This is my experiment," she said pointing to a lambing cubicle that she constructed in one corner of the barn. "They always seem to lamb here, and I'm hoping they will use it."

The theory behind the cubicle, according to Gonyou, is that the lamb stays at the birthsite, even if the ewe wonders off. The cubicle, which has a threshold to keep the lamb inside, allows for fewer incidences of stolen lambs, separation of twins or poor maternal behavior. Larry said they are "good mothers."

One black sheep runs with the Hill Farm flock. "He is half Cotswold," said Gwen. She explained that Cotswolds are crossed with other breeds to get the Cotswolds type fleece in other colors. She said she tries to breed for tighter curls.

Gwen and Larry make efficient use of their stock. Besides selling breeding stock, fleeces and hides, they also sell market lambs. "We eat them, too," she said. Their interests in rare breeds has lead

(Turn to Page B3)



Inspired by a presentation on lambing cubicles given by Dr. Harold Gonyou of the University of Illinois, Gwen constructed this lambing pen. "It's my experiment," she said.

Gwen Handler with husband Larry Fisher and 9-month-old Valentine, nuzzles the velvety soft muzzle of Rosemarie, a Norwegian Fjord pony.

Gwen spins while Valentine holds the bobbin. Gwen wove the sweater she is wearing and the blanket draped at right. Valentine is seated on a soft, fluffy lambskin. "That's her bear-skin rug," her mother explained.

them to such organizations as the Rare Breeds Survival Trust and he American Minor Breeds Conservancy, of which they are members. "I often wonder what our mailman thinks by the mail we get," commented Gwen with a chuckle.

The view from the top of Hill Farm is lovely. The walk back to the house didn't seem so ominous. After all, it was all downhill from there.

Once inside their country home, Gwen and Larry spoke of sheep and other things as well. "Larry is a caver," said Gwen. "When we go to West Virginia, I look at sheep and he looks at caves.

Gwen has spread her talents in spinning and weaving outside the borders of Hill Farm. She teaches the crafts at Sandy Springs Friends School, an Amish community in Sandy Springs, Md. "It's a gentle place to work," she said. She also teaches ceramics, printing and photography. Some of her photographs have been published in such publications as Small Farmers Journal.

Seated at her Louet spinning wheel made in Holland, Gwen demonstrated her craft, while Valentine held the bobbin. She knitted the sweater she was wearing. The different colors in the sweater represent sheep that have been on Hill Farm. She said that she knits about six sweaters a year. "It takes about two months for each sweater." She also wove a blanket draped over the fireplace.

Gwen Handler and Larry Fisher of Hill Farm represent a precious few who have made it their business to perpetuate rare breeds of animals, not in the sole interest of making a profit, but because they truly care. Indeed, they are a rare breed themselves.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Understand Your Microwave and Avoid Disaster!

If you are one of the many people who recently added a microwave oven to your kitchen, welcome! Today's column is dedicated to helping you be a successful microwave user right from the start.

First of all, don't try to microwave these foods: hard boiled eggs, fried foods like fried eggs and chops, individual cookies, two crust pies (either pot pies or fruit pies), large amounts (over 8 cups) of liquids (soups or big pots of spaghetti), large sheet cakes, angel food, sponge or chiffon cakes, and pizza with an uncooked crust. These foods just don't cook well in a microwave, or need a special recipe or utensil to cook properly.

Secondly, most foods (except bacon) will not get crispy in a microwave without special utensils like a browning grill. If the food, such as breaded fish sticks, has to be crispy to be good to you, use your range!

A microwave will give you deliciously moist, tender and juicy food when it is used properly. Any food that is dry, rubbery, or hard has been overcooked. This is true for reheated food too.

Basic Microwave Techniques

(Your microwave cookbook will explain these techniques more thoroughly, usually in an introductory section.)

1. One of the most basic facts is that quantity is important. The more food you add to the oven, the longer it takes to cook or reheat. If you change quantities of food in a microwave recipe, you will need to lengthen or shorten the cooking time.

2. Microwaves heat food from the outside in to the center. Since they heat the edges of food very quickly, the center of foods may not be fully cooked (or warmed if you're reheating) when the edges are done (hot). The center of foods finish cooking during standing time. This is especially important when you use high power.

3. Standing time is the biggest difference between range and microwave cooking. During standing time the food cooks more, as the heat from the edges is conducted to the center. This is when most food overcooks. If your food doesn't seem quite done at the end of the cooking time, let it stand before cooking more. Cook it more after the standing time if necessary.

4. Stir foods once or twice during the cooking (reheating) time to distribute heat from the edges in to the center. If you can't stir, turn the power down to medium (50,5), but the food will take longer to cook (warm up).

5. Arrange larger pieces of food near the corners or edges of a container. If the food is evenly sized, check halfway through to see if the pieces in the middle are less done (warm) than the edge or corner pieces. If so, rearrange the pieces to put the less done ones on the edges or corners.

6. Thick foods like roasts or whole chickens should be turned over so the top and bottom are evenly cooked. Start these upside down, turn right side up halfway through the cooking time.

7. If you are in a hurry, cook (reheat) foods on high, but put the food in a ring or doughnut shape or stir more frequently. Just like on your range, foods will burn easily on high. Instead of scorching on the bottom, microwave burned food will be dried out along the edges.

If you are not in a hurry, turn the power down to medium (50,5) and foods will cook more evenly without stirring, rearranging, etc. but they will take longer.

8. Read your owner's manual! It may not be fun, but it will help you use all your microwave's features. If you find it hard going, read and figure out just one section a day or week.

9. One last hint, start with easy things when you have time to experiment. Don't try new things for company or when you're in a hurry, you'll just end up mad at the microwave! If you try one new thing each week, soon you'll be microwaving lots of things.

Microwaving a pudding mix couldn't be simpler, and it will never scorch! Try this easy, confidence builder:

Pudding Mix

1 box any flavor puddir mix, not instant (4 serving size)

2 cups milk

1. Combine pudding and cold milk in a 4 cup measuring cup or 1 quart microsafe bowl or casserole. Leave uncovered.

2. Stirring every 2 minutes, microwave on high for 6 to 8 minutes, just until pudding boils and thickens.

3. Pour into dishes and chill. Serves 4.

Tips:

— If you have a new, big microwave, it probably has 600 to 700 watts of power. Use the shortest times given in a recipe. If you have an old or small oven, it may have only 500 watts, and you'll need the longer times given in a recipe.

— Some mixes will thin out and get watery if overcooked, so don't boil longer than directions on box.

Food And Ag Institute At Cornell To Continue Leadership Program

ITHACA, N.Y. — The Empire State Food and Agricultural Leadership Institute at Cornell University will continue its educational program to develop leaders for New York State's $24 billion food and agriculture industry.

The institute's 20-member advisory council voted to continue the program on an ongoing basis, according to James Preston, director of the institute and a professor of rural sociology at Cornell University.

"The advisory group based its action on the success to date with the initial two-year pilot program," Preston said. "As a result, members of a second two-year leadership development class, which is scheduled to start in October this year, will be recruited in the near future."

Preston said that his institute plans to start a new leadership class of 30 members every two years. Class members are selected from among applicants representing a cross section of the food and agriculture industry and other areas including government, business and education.

Participants spend about 30 days per year attending classes and taking part in study tours. The 30 members of the first class, which started in the fall of 1985, studied trends affecting the state's food and agriculture industry including changing consumer demands, future agricultural financing and size and scope of the food service industry. They observed food distribution systems in New York City.

Now in the second year, the class will concentrate on public policy issues and processes with regard to the food and agriculture industry at the local, state and national levels, according to Preston.

The class will meet in Albany, N.Y., to study state-level government processes and in Washington, D.C. to study policy-making processes at the national level. These sessions will be followed by a class trip to California to study the food and agriculture system in that state. The class will graduate in June.

Established in 1985, the institute is sponsored jointly by New York State Agricultural Society, the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell and the New York Cooperative Extension.

Financial support comes in part from organizations, businesses and individuals involved in the food and agriculture industry. This year's goal is to raise $125,000 in contributions.

Contributors for the second class now being organized include New York Milk Industry Council, Agway Foundation, Curtice-Burns/ Pro-Fac Cooperative, National Grape Cooperative, Plainville Turkey Farm Inc., Wegman's Food and Drugs, Eastern Artificial Insemination Cooperative, Dairylea Cooperative, Upstate Milk Cooperative, Norstar Bank Upstate New York (Utica), Central National Bank (Canajoharie), Tompkins County Trust Co. (Ithaca), Key Bank of Northern New York (Watertown), Dellwood Foods Inc., Erie and Niagara Insurance Association, Farm Family Insurance Co., Norman Allen of Schaghticoke, N.Y., Donald M. Bay of Macedon, N.Y., and James Colby of Spencerport, N.Y.

Persons wishing to contribute or apply to the institute's second two-year leadership development program may contact James Preston, 434 Warren Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853, telephone (607) 255-1692.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

A focus on fitness continues to dominate the leisure interest of much of the American public. What started almost as a fad has instead become a fact of life.

Lest you fear that this physical phenomena be limited strictly to the human element, let me assure you that the bovine population of the countryside recently appears to have jumped on the fitness bandwagon. Or at least they have hereabouts.

Preferred method for many of our four-legged fitness followers is jogging. Even the settled, mature matrons of the milking string find occassion to trot, udders swaying, while they boost their pulse rate — and likely lower production for the next 24 hours.

This takes place in our specially-constructed indoor jogging facility, more commonly known as the dairy barn. Favorite course is the center alley straightaway, a wide-open stretch of concrete with no barriers save a pair of — or possibly three — two-legged individuals scattered at random. Purpose for their strategic location is to assist each bovine into her preassigned slot.

Remember the old Kick the Can game (am I dating myself here?) played by kids? Participants captured in a sort of hide-n-seek were freed when one would manage to slip unseen from a hiding spot and give an old tin can a good whack with a foot. With the can knocked away, the unlucky kid who was "it" had to start finding participants all over again, while keeping one eye on the can before it got booted once more to free game prisoners.

Cows play a similar game. It's called Flatten the Farm Wife.

One cow jogging an eight-minute mile down the alleyway can readily manage to inflict a painful squashed foot on a farm wife intent on tying herdmates in their stalls. Such a tactic automatically frees those others already waiting where they belong. All those thus freed under the rules of this fitness game then turn and flee, kicking their heels and making two more trips back and forth before finally being corralled.

Tongues hanging out and sides heaving are simply signs of proper exercise. Sometimes the cows show similar signs of physical exertion.

Milking time offers its own aerobic stretching maneuvers. In time to the rock music blaring from the radio (if the kids got there first), a backfoot stretch and kick step connects with a milker. Unless it's our new heifer, Mona, who does stretch and kicks only while being washed.

Experts warn that too many American youths are physically unfit. To avoid a similar problem, juvenile bovines join in a variety of group games.

Scatter the Straw is one such activity offering leg-limbering, high-kick moves. Immediately upon the slicing of straw bale strings by the human game leader, a designated hitter heifer begins butting around the segments of bale which have split. Dropping to her knees is sometimes utilized for more intense, close-up shoving of the straw splits.

Teammates then take turns dashing through the loosened segments incorporating the 90-degree, twist-turn-n-kick bit of choreography, designed to propel a pair of hard hooves into the knees or calves (no pun intended) of the game leader.

This exercise ends when the straw is scattered or the game leader flees, forgetting in her haste to properly fasten the gate. Which in turn may lead to yet another form of vigorous workout known as Chase the Heifers Which are Running Through the Neighborhood.

All these animal aerobics, exercise and fitness have a direct relationship to why keepers of domesticated food-producing species may have desirable heart rates, but tend to develop drooping eyelids during extension meetings, church sermons, and immediately upon plunking down on the living room couch to watch the late news on TV.

But just think how much we farmers save on visits to the spa.

Recognize, Prevent Winter Plant Damage

YORK — "Old man" winter may be blamed for giving a few of us the common cold this winter. But, when it comes to the plants surrounding our homes, every plant suffers from some form of cold injury. The main culprits are not only low temperatures, but also bright sun and dry winds. The extent of the damage to any particular plant depends on the plant species, stage of growth, age, plant, health and even which plant part gets chilled first. How can we recognize it and what can we do to prevent it?

The "common cold" plants experience over winter can take many forms. In some, dormant flower buds dry out and die, leaving our plants barren of fruit for the coming year. The tender buds of certain grapes, peaches and nectarines are good examples. With the severe chilling temperatures of January, when temperatures dip into the negative numbers for extended periods, sensitive trees could receive a bud-killing jolt of cold. These buds then lose their ability to bear fruit for the coming growing season.

Winter burn on the foliage of plants quickly shows up after chilling. On broadleaf evergreens, leaves appear wilted and dead while a conifer's needles turn brown at the tips. Trees in raised containers are especially injured through the chilling of their roots. Sometimes, heating cables can prevent roots from freezing in a raised container.

For young plants with small root systems, soil-heaving damage which breaks up its root system is often the case. Soil surfaces with no snow or mulch are prone to heave causing root damage. Spring planting is recommended for those having yearly soil heaving damage.

Evergreens are especially susceptible to winter damage. Ornamental evergreen plants such as arborvitae, pie spruce, fir and yew are frequently injured by low winter temperatures.

Dry winds during periods of bright sunshine, as well as by unseasonable warm weather late in the fall or winter when the ground is still frozen, can inflict injury as well.

The ability of evergreen plants to resist winter injury depends on the hardiness of the plant, its exposure to prevailing winds and sunlight, soil characteristics and the plant's location.

Symptoms of severe plant damage may not appear until late winter — and sometimes not until mid-summer. At these times, needles become tan, red or brown and may fall from the plant. In severe cases, the entire plant may be killed. Evergreens growing on the south, southwest or western side of your house are especially vulnerable to winter damage.

You can avoid this damage by using windbreaks, lath houses, shade screens, and mulches in December. Spraying in mid or late winter with an anti-wilting formulation should reduce water loss from leaves.

When it's impossible to erect specially built frames and screens, remove snow and ice immediately with a broom, using an upward motion. Heavy show can physically damage plants.

During the spring, give extra attention to cultivating, fertilizing and watering winter-injured evergreens.

Gelatin Desserts 'N Salads- Fancy Enough For Guests

Flu season is upon us and it's time to stock up on gelatin for those queasy stomachs that will tolerate only the mildest of foods. But while gelatin served alone is refreshing and a sweet treat welcomed by flu-stricken patients, gelatin combined with other ingredients is fancy — and tasty — enough for company meals.

Fresh chopped vegetables and fruits combined with gelatin make excellent salads and desserts. When served in a molded form and garnished, they add a colorful, aesthetic touch to the dinner table.

Inexpensive and simple to prepare, dishes containing gelatin will help spruce up your mid-winter meals. You may be surprised to find your family asking where the gelatin is stored — and not because they think they're coming down with the flu!

⅓ cup sugar

Cook above ingredients on low for 10 minutes. Cool. Mix:

Gwen Handler of Hill Farm in Westminster, Md. said the secret to good lamb is "doing it outside."

"It's really good done outside on the grill," she said. Generally, to prepare a butterflied leg of lamb, Gwen uses "as many lemons as I have in the refrigerator, and as much garlic as I can stand to crush." Look for a feature story on Gwen's sheep on page B2.

Grilled Butterflied Leg of Lamb

Marinade
8 cloves garlic
¾ cup lemon juice
½ cup olive oil
Lots of fresh rosemary

Blend all ingredients in the blender.

Butterfly a leg of lamb and put the meat in a large pan. Pour the marinade over it and leave the meat in the pan to soak in the marinade for at least three days in the refrigerator.

Remove lamb from pan and slowly cook on a grill outside.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It appears as though January should not be a very busy month. However, there are several farm organizations that hold their annual meetings in January and we do try to attend them.

It seems that I'm not satisfied to take it easy and so I've planned several dinner parties for this month too. What I need to worry about is whether the weather will cooperate. We have had very few gatherings cancelled in the past 30 years due to the weather. But, the ones that were cancelled stand out in my mind.

After sprucing up the house and getting six children dressed in their Sunday best it is difficult to wait hours for guests to arrive. In fact, long ago, when a few inches of snow kept them away we made a few phone calls and invited the neighbors to share our food.

We do live a mile off a secondary road and so people are scared away because we live off the beaten path. However, we live in a first class township that does a very good job of keeping our roads open. However, I do remember one time when my husband scattered straw in the manure spreader and took our children the mile or more to their school bus.

Sometimes I think that Allen enjoys a deep snow since then he has a good excuse to put the V plow on the big tractor and open our long lane. There is one big snowstorm that I remember quite well—my sisters and I took a walk and found many cars on Route 222 completely covered with only a bit of roof showing. That was a sight to remember.

That is not the kind of weather that I want for our dinner parties.

Pearl Tapioca Pudding

½ cup pearl tapioca
1 cup water
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
Little salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Cover tapioca with water and let stand. Add milk and butter. Cook in double boiler until clear (about 1 hour) and cool slightly. Pour hot mixture over egg yolks which have been beaten with sugar and salt. Add lemon rind and juice. Pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake about 1 hour at 325°F. Cool slightly. Top with meringue made with 2 egg whites beaten stiff but not dry. Add 4 tablespoons sugar and a teaspoon vanilla. Beat well. Bake about 5 minutes more at 325°F. or until egg whites are nicely browned. Serves 6.

ANSWER - Alan E. Mays, Lancaster, requested recipes that use Bible references to indicate ingredients. Thanks go to Eva Southard, Glen Rock, and to Lucy Martin, Narvon, for the following recipes.

Scripture Cake

½ cup butter (Judges 5:25)

1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg (2 Chronicles 9:9)
½ cup milk (Judges 4:19)
1 cup chopped figs (Nahum 3:12)
1 cup sliced almonds (Numbers 17:8)
1 cup raisins (1 Samuel 30:12)

Cream butter and sugar; add honey and beaten yolks. Add remaining dry ingredients mixed together, alternately with milk. Stir in figs, raisins and nuts. Fold in beaten whites last. Bake at 325°F. for 45 minutes in 9x13-inch pan. Serve with whipped cream topping.

Fruit Cake

Be sure to use all the following fruit:
Love
Joy
Peace
Longsuffering
Gentleness
Goodness
Faith
Meekness
Temperance (all found in Galatians 5:22-23)

Add a generous amount of bread (John 6:33)
Put in 1 egg (Luke 11:12)
Sweeten with honey (Psalms 19:10)
Season with salt (Colossians 4:6)
Add one tiny grain of mustard seed (Mark 4:31)

Combine ingredients and mix. If mixture becomes too firm, add a little milk (I Corinthians 3:2).

Do not add any leavening, a little leavening will leaven the whole lump (I Corinthians 5:6).

Pour mixture into vessels of silver and gold (2 Tim 2:10). Bake over heat made by coals of fire (Romans 12:20). Serve at once, but don't let stand alone (Hebrews 4:7). If this "fruit cake" should make you thirsty, drink water freely (Revelation 22:17).

Study Seeks To Determine Benefit Of Calcium Pills

WASHINGTON — Women today take more calcium supplements than ever, but it still is not clear whether the pills really do slow bone loss that leads to osteoporosis in older women.

A study now underway at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging, at Tufts University in Boston, promises to settle this question for women who take calcium supplements after menopause. The study, lasting five years and using 360 volunteers, will be the longest and largest of its kind.

"We want to learn who, if anyone, will benefit from taking calcium supplements after menopause--and if there is a benefit, does it last over the long term," said Dr. Bess Dawson-Hughes, director of the center's calcium and bone metabolism laboratory and architect of the study funded by USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

In 1985, Americans spent an estimated $260 million on the supplements—twice as much as in 1983, according to the Council for Responsible Nutrition, an association of vitamin and mineral supplement manufacturers. Sales are expected to keep rising.

Dawson-Hughes hopes to resolve conflicting findings from previous studies on the effects of increasing calcium intake after menopause. No similar study has been done with women who are still menstruating.

In the new study, researchers will also be looking for any unsuspected risks from the supplements, said Dawson-Hughes, who is associated with Tufts University Medical School. It is already known that excess calcium can cause kidney stones, and a preliminary study by Dawson-Hughes indicated that taking the supplements with meals can reduce the amount of iron that gets into the body.

The 360 volunteers will take a daily 500-milligram calcium supplement or a look-alike placebo and be checked once a year for any changes in bone density. To ensure objective results, neither scientists nor volunteers will know which pill each woman is getting until the study ends, Dawson-Hughes said.

The researchers will use state-of-the-art technology called dual photon absorptiometry to detect changes in the spine and hips—where osteoporosis is most serious, she said. Other studies have used the forearm, she said, but arm and leg bones are less susceptible to fractures than those in the central skeleton.

Have You Heard?

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

Regular Carpet Maintenance — It's Essential

Proper care of your carpets and rugs will greatly determine how long they last in your home. How much day-to-day cleaning is needed depends on many things. Rooms that are used very little do not require much attention. Others that receive daily use require daily attention.

Give carpets and rugs in heavy traffic areas a quick lint and litter pickup daily. A quick, five-minute vacuuming or a run with a non-electric carpet sweeper will do.

Once a week use a vacuum cleaner to thoroughly clean rugs and carpets throughout the house. These cleanings should include moving and cleaning under all but the heaviest pieces of furniture. Use slow, even, back and forth strokes to assure removal of deeply embedded dirt. For best appearance, final strokes should be with the grain of the carpet.

Plush pile carpet is difficult to clean because it is usually high in density and has a deep pile. A self-propelled, upright vacuum cleaner will give up-down cleaning without forcing you to struggle to push the vacuum.

Brooms should not be used on carpeting as they merely toss the dirt around and let it settle back on the carpet. Furthermore a broom's stiff bristles may damage looped pile or break carpet tufts.

Spills and stains should be treated immediately to prevent permanent damage. Consult a stain removal chart for each type of stain.

When regular vacuuming no longer brings out the original luster of your carpet, it's time for a thorough cleaning. Carpets become dull due to a buildup of oily soil. Cleaning can be done professionally, or by a variety of do-it-yourself methods.

Winter Window Warm Ups

Do winter winds seem to come right through your windows even if your storm windows are well sealed? If so, don't just wrap up in a blanket and hope for spring — blanket your windows instead.

Energy efficient window treatments can help you reduce your heat loss through glass surfaces. Once you've plugged the heat leaks around the sills and sashes, and reduced heat loss through your window panes by installing storm windows, triple glazed windows or polyethylene coverings, it's time to consider more decorative but important interior window coverings. To be effective these must have certain characteristics.

The fabric needs to be tightly woven to restrict the transfer of heat from the warm room to the cool window glass. Quilted fabrics or those with nap can work well as decorator fabrics. Because they are exposed to sunshine, fabrics need to be fade resistant and it's best if they are also shrink resistant.

Window treatments must fit the window snugly at the bottom, sides, and if possible, at the top. A tight fit stops the flow of air or local convection currents in the room which push warm air against the glass and set up a draft in the window area.

A vapor barrier must be included in window treatments to prevent condensation of moisture on cold windows. Moisture buildup causes mildew problems and, over a period of time, leads to discoloration and rot. Put the vapor barrier between the insulating layer and the heated room to prevent the insulating layer from absorbing moisture.

Don't forget to consider the total look of your window treatments. An energy efficient treatment can be used in combination with your present draperies. You can also consider shades and shutters to get the effect and the efficiency you want.

Here are a few suggestions to try:

- Insulate roller shades. These can be made just like traditional shades, with the addition of a vapor barrier such as a 4 mil plastic sheet, and layer of insulation.
- Make lined draperies with a cornice. You can make a cornice of wood, sturdy cardboard or rigid foam, cover it with fabric, wallpaper or paint. Then sew a lining into the pleats of new draperies or make buttonholes in a lining and slip it over the drapery hooks of existing unlined draperies.
- Make a night wall of foiled-faced rigid insulation and cover it with lining and decorator fabrics.

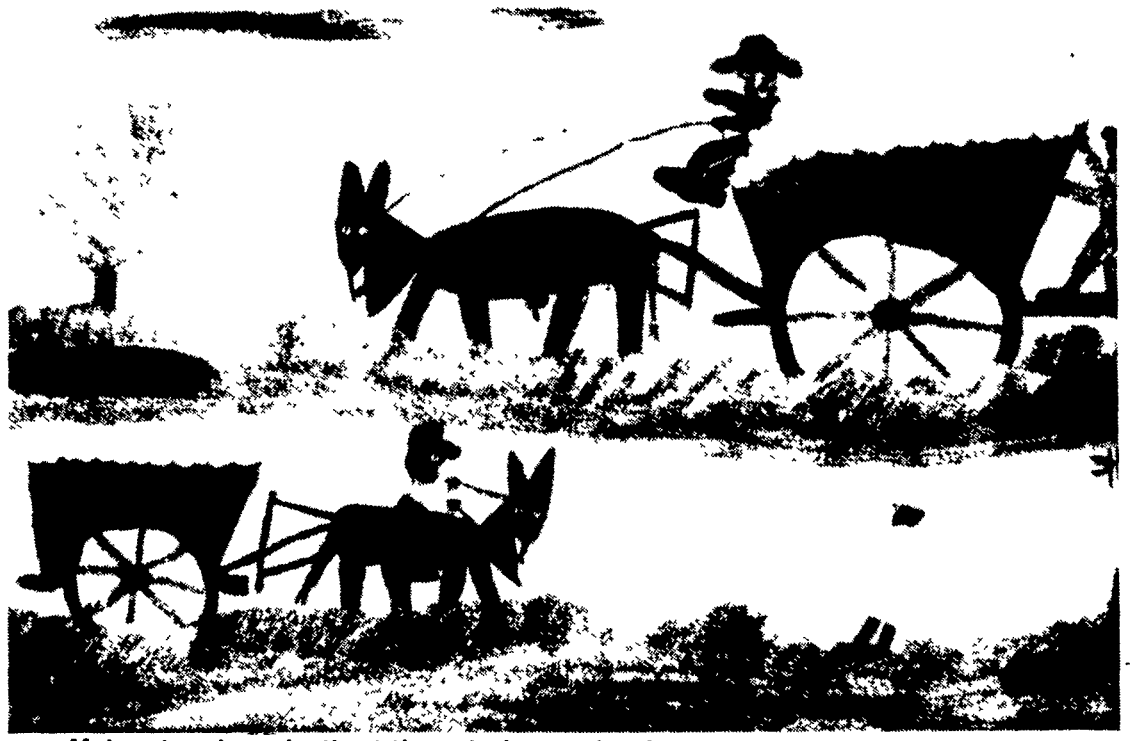
Former Servant Paints Century Of Memories From Her Past



Mules stare impudently at the onlooker as they haul cotton from a field in this 1970 painting by Clementine Hunter, 100-year-old primitive artist. Granddaughter of a slave, the artist picked cotton in Louisiana well into young womanhood, then became a house servant at Melrose Plantation. Her paintings, long considered valuable because they chronicle days gone by, are increasingly hailed for their color, form and vitality.

NATCHITOCHES, La. – When Frenchie came home to die, Clementine cared for him in sorrow. Then he did die, as he'd announced he would. After Clementine came home from the funeral, she couldn't sleep. She'd loved her son with consuming love. Now he had gone away and would not come back, and she had to paint. That was Clementine Hunter's way.

She painted an open grave, with Frenchie soaring out of it, already fitted with angel's wings, heading for a hole in the sky that would take him to the Promised Land.

The scene of Frenchie's leave-taking strikes with primal force. The painting may be the most emotional of Clementine Hunter's 5,000 to 7,000 paintings, but it is not alone in its communion with her deepest feelings.

Plantation Memories

And Clementine Hunter has had a lot of time to feel. In December 1986 her admirers celebrate her 100th birthday. The occasion means little to one whose richest images erupt from a plantation past.

On the wall of her trailer is a plastic relief of the Last Supper and a proclamation from Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, making her an honorary colonel and aide-de-camp. President Carter invited her to the White House; she wouldn't go because they said she'd have to fly. Lots of people fly, a friend told her. "They crazy, too," she said. She's seen an airplane, though, and painted it; the propeller is on the tail.

One of America's most-admired artists picked cotton well into young womanhood. Then she became a house servant and did the laundry and ironing at Melrose Plantation until the owners recognized her ability as a cook.

She worked on the plantation until she was about 75, and for years would work all day, then walk the dirt road to her shack to cook for her family before earning the right, not to sleep, but to paint. Once she started to paint, it became her obsession. Yet she never had held a brush until she was about 53 years old.

Clementine Hunter has never been more than 100 miles from the rural parish where she was born. It is doubtful whether she has been addressed as "Mrs. Hunter" a dozen times in her life. She signs her paintings with her initials superimposed, but, even though she knows better and used to draw it the other way, she reverses the "C."

She cannot read or write. It doesn't seem to matter. She grasps anything within reach – window shades, shoe boxes, paper sacks, snuff bottles – with gnarled fingers and floods it with bright colors until an exuberant narrative unfolds.

Compelled To Paint

Today is her last day on earth, one thinks, seeing her brush jab the yard-square plywood palette and stroke a dead white surface until it comes to brilliant life.

Clementine Hunter paints:

Rough-and-tumble schoolyards, decorous but perilous courtrooms, even more dangerous lots outside honky-tonks, throbbing cotton gins, lively funerals, river baptizings, pecan-tree thrashings, joyously successful fishing expeditions, and, in characteristic whimsy, chickens pulling enormous loads of cotton.

In her banana-frond-shaded Nativity scenes, the wise men present a black Mary with three gifts: a cake wrapped in cellophane, a box of candy, and a big squash known as a cushaw.

She paints entirely from memory. "Anything that come into my mind, I paints it," she says. "Anything."

She painted evocative abstracts for a while, but quit, protesting, "They make my head sweat."

"Clementine has documented a way of life on southern plantations," says Thomas N. Whitehead, a journalism professor at Northwestern State University of Louisiana. "Her role as a participant who can tell us about those days is unique. She lived it and she can paint it."

Whitehead is one of a small group of Natchitoches academics who believe the well-being of Clementine Hunter is their noblest purpose. Several times a week for 20 years, Whitehead has driven seven miles through the Cane River cottonfields to her small trailer to supply her with brushes, oil paints, and other needs, such as fried chicken. She treats such devotion as her due, upbraiding him for any lapse.

Mildred Bailey, dean of the same university, is another of Clementine Hunter's benefactors. On a recent visit to the trailer to help her sort out a financial problem, Dr. Bailey first had to contend with the tiny, wizened artist's pique at a perceived transgression by Whitehead.

Waiting For Salt Meat

"I got a pretty cabbage over there," Mrs. Hunter said, "and it's waitin' for that salt meat Tommy supposed to bring me to go with it."

At the end of an hour's visit, her expressed concern as Dr. Bailey departed was, "Tell Tommy to get out here with that salt meat he promised, or my cabbage is gone rot."

In the sweltering parlor of her trailer, Mrs. Hunter sits in an overstuffed chair with her

Gwen Gray Represents Sheep Producers As Lamb And Wool Queen

HARRISBURG — The daughter of a cattleman, Gwen Gray always assumed she would show cattle. But when she reached the ripe age of 8 and joined 4-H, she decided sheep were more her size.

Today, 17-year-old Gwen represents Pennsylvania's sheep producers as Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen.

Gwen raises five Suffolk ewes on the family's Graystone Farm in Schellsburg. "I'd like to have more, but my dad limits my size," she says with a gentle smile.

In the fourth month of her year-long reign as state Lamb and Wool Queen, Gwen has already represented sheep producers at numerous promotional events. This week, she was in Harrisburg at the State Farm Show answering consumers' questions about lamb and distributing ribbons and plaques to sheep show winners.

During Farm Show opening ceremonies in the main arena Sunday afternoon, Gwen presented Gov. Thornburgh and his wife, Ginny, with a sheepskin from a Bedford County grower, and a bouquet of wool flowers donated by the Somerset Lady Shepherds.

In meeting the public, Gwen has found that many people have misconceptions about lamb and wool. For instance some people confuse lamb and mutton, and think all wool is itchy and needs dry cleaned. But Gwen is working to dispel those misconceptions.

Offering samples of lamb is part of her public relations effort at mall and grocery store promotions. "People who haven't tried lamb yet, have a barrier in their mind," Gwen noted. But once they overcome that barrier and pop a piece of succulent lamb in their mouths, they discover that it is quite tasty.

In addition to convincing consumers that lamb is a wise meat choice, Gwen acts as liaison between producers and consumers. As lamb and wool queen, her job is to find out what consumers want and pass that information on to producers.

So far, Gwen said, she has learned that health-conscious consumers want a low-fat product. Since lamb is one of the leaner, lower cholesterol meats, she tells consumers it is a wise alternative to beef.

Gwen received her crown and banner during the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, held in Harrisburg last October. The road to the title began with an application, followed by interviews with a panel of three judges who quizzed her on her knowledge of the sheep industry, sheep cuts, carcasses and wool.

Part of the selection process involved answering the question, "Why do you want to be Pennsylvania Wool Queen?" In responding, Gwen told the judges and the audience that she enjoys working with sheep and would like to educate people about the industry. "People don't know what we have to offer," she said. As wool queen, she has the opportunity to change misconceptions and encourage people to consume lamb.

Her experiences with raising sheep have taught Gwen the value of business acumen. "To succeed in anything, you have to be a good businessman," she said. Gwen plans to continue her education at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business following graduation from Bedford High School this spring.

But until then, she'll be busy fulfilling her duties as Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen.

As Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen, Gwen Gray helps educate the public about lamb and wool products. Here, she takes a break from Farm Show activities to chat with a Suffolk lamb.

aluminum walker beside her. Her rosary is looped around one handle of the walker. On the floor is a cup into which she spits her depleted snuff. She cannot rise from her chair unassisted, so someone must take her stick-like arms and help her up to the walker. She has arthritis and her eyesight is failing, yet every day she shuffles down the narrow passage to the sun-drenched clutter of her studio and feverishly, passionately, attacks her canvas.

Clementine Hunter's sudden emergence as an artist is as astonishing as the unfolding of a chrysalis. One day in 1939, when she was already many times a grandmother, she saw that a New Orleans artist who had come to Melrose to paint magnolias had discarded some old tubes.

She approached Francois Mignon, a French writer who lived on the plantation, and asked, "Do you think I could paint a picture?" Mignon's response was to find her an old window shade and a few brushes.

As Mignon subsequently wrote, "At 5 o'clock the next morning, she tapped on my door again, explaining that she has brought me her first picture. I took one look at it (and) nearly fell out at the sight of it."

Thus she began. The life of the plantation had been hard – and still was – for that granddaughter of a slave. But she would not wait until life was perfect before she celebrated it. She would not wait for somebody else to immortalize her son Frenchie. She'd do it herself.

Officers Elected At State Farm Women Convention

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG — A state secretary and two state directors were elected at the 68th annual convention of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania held in Harrisburg this week.

Elected secretary was Catherine Schott a member of Society 16 in Lebanon County. With her husband, Leonard, Catherine lives on a 75-acre grain farm near Cornwall. She has been a member of Farm Women for 30 years, beginning as a member of Society 7.

Audrey Gilbert, Jennerstown, was elected to serve a term as State Director. Presently she serves as County Treasurer for Somerset County's Farm Women and is president of Society 7. She is married to Dwight Gilbert.

Also elected state director was Grace Book, a member of Perry County's only Farm Women Society, which was organized in her home. She lives with her husband John on a dairy and hog farm near Blaine.

Clara Cutman, membership chairman, reported that membership has dropped slightly over the last few years from a high of over 4,000 to 3,755. Cutman said, "A healthy Society should be a growing Society," and encouraged delegates to the annual meeting to reach out for new members.

Scholarship Chairman Elinor Rothenberger, announced that eligibility requirements for Farm Women Scholarships have been revised, and it is time now to apply for the 1987-88 school year. There are five scholarships worth $500 each available to daughters of Farm Women members planning to study for a two or four year degree in home economics. Last year just two scholarships were awarded.

For the state project, members were asked to submit entries made from Pennsylvania natural products, and there were 30 entries from nine counties. Judges for the contest were past state presidents Marie Baughman and Martee Mentzer. Projects were on display prior to the Monday night banquet, and winners were announced at that time.

Best of Show went to Ruth Hartman of Berks County for a knitted jacket, made from wool grown on her farm. First place was Margaret Oelig from Dauphin County for a driftwood arrangement with a grapevine wreath and pine cone owls. Second place went to Pat Lehman, Cumberland County, for a vegetable centerpiece, and third place was awarded to Louise Rummell from Cambria County for a dried apple wreath.

Honorable mentions were given to Dottie Dunkleberger, Cumberland County for a pheasant wreath; Franklin County for a sheep on wheels; and Susan Hoffman, Adams County for a duck made with pine cones.

In the youth division, Best of Show went to Keith Blauch, a 12-year-old from Annville for a bird house. Melinda Stine of York County won first place with dried apples; Pattie Dunkleberger of Cumberland County won second with a dried flower arrangement; and Peter Novack of Cumberland County won third with a dried arrangement.

Entries were judged on the use of material, skill, originality, choice of material, eye appeal and amount of time required.

Over 500 Farm Women members attended the annual Monday night banquet. Speaker for the event was Joan Hershey, a 20-year member of Lancaster County's Society 26, and an immediate past president of the County group.

Hershey encouraged Farm Women members to take the "whys" of life and change to the "whats," learning from each new experience. She told the women, "We must learn to accept ourselves as we are." She told women who might be tempted to look into a mirror and say, "Mirror, mirror on the wall, I could bawl," to instead say, "Mirror, mirror on the wall, I have it all."

Using an experience from the life of the famous Olympic gymnast Cathy Rigby, Hershey said Rigby's mother once said to her, "Doing your best is more important than being the best," a thought that many people could utilize in their daily life. In encouraging the women, Hershey noted, "God never created a mistake."

She said, "Believe you have a purpose to live for." Throughout her talk Hershey used some of her original poetry to make her points, concluding, "You have a faith that smiles; use it to its fullness."

The next meeting of the State Society of Farm Women will be at their Spring Rally, being hosted May 20 at Elizabethtown College by Lancaster County. Speaker for the one-day event will be Ann Kaiser, editor of Farm Woman News.

Presiding at the annual convention was Naomi Bupp, president, from York County. About 238 delegates participated in the business meeting held at the Farm Show Building.

Joan Hershey, a former president of Lancaster County Society of Farm Women, was the featured speaker at the annual banquet of the State Farm Women this week. Hershey lives on a poultry and steer farm with her husband Harry near Mount Joy, and is a member of Society #26.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 1 Celebrates 70th Anniversary

Lancaster County's oldest Farm Women Society, Society 1, celebrated its 70th anniversary Jan. 3 with a luncheon at the General Sutter Inn, Lititz. The Society was organized in January 1917 on the farm of J. Bruckhart, Lititz.

The purpose of the organization is to contribute to the power and influence of Farm Women, to contribute to the community activity of Farm Women, and to develop better living and working conditions in the farm homes of Pennsylvania. The Society is affiliated with the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women.

Mrs. Martin Moore of Lititz, who is a charter member of Society 1 and who continues to be an active member, shared some of her memories with the group. When first organized, the society was known as Die Housefrauen, meaning the housewife, and was later changed to Society of Farm Women No. 1.

Members held monthly meetings and during the summer held an outing, or picnic, to which family members were invited. Mrs. Moore remembered that the first outing was held July 28, 1917 at the home of Mrs. William Pfautz near Lititz. Speaker for the first meeting was J.A. McSparran, who spoke on "The Social Life in the Rural Districts."

The outings were always well attended and featured an abundance of good food. They were the forerunners of today's county conventions.

Guest speaker for the anniversary celebration was Stanley Deen, an English teacher and drama coach for Garden Spot School District. His speech, titled, "Dare to be Different," noted that each child is a new and unique creation. He said all people are different and it is important to accept ourselves as we are.

Mrs. Neil Clark, whose mother was a charter member, shared some of her memories. As a child she accompanied her mother to meetings. Members were active in community and farm related projects.

Mrs. Clark recalled that members of Society 1 proposed a 4-H program for the county and presented the proposal to the Extension Service. With the support and aide of other services and businesses in the community, the idea became a reality and in 1926 a 4-H program was organized in Lancaster County.

Society 1 was also instrumental in starting new Farm Women societies. Today the county claims 33 societies with 960 members. Society 1 has 42 members.

Mrs. Maurice Landis of Roseville Road, Lancaster, will serve as Society 1 president for the next two years. A pewter plate was presented to outgoing president Mrs. Howard Wolf in appreciation for her years of devoted service as president and vice president.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 7 at the home of Mrs. Neil Clark, Lititz.

Lancaster Society 25

Lancaster Society 25 met Jan. 10 at the home of Lois Hess with 22 members and two visitors attending. Seven members were honored for perfect attendance in 1986.

Members made 62 cancer pads at the meeting and volunteered 2 hours of work at the America Heart Association in Novembe and December.

The next meeting will be hel Feb. 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the home Ruth Groff.

Berks Society 4

Members of the Berks Society 4 met Jan. 6 in the Earlville home of Edna Angstadt.

Newly elected president Mrs. Lester Kulp conducted the meeting for the 11 members present. Evelyn Becker was installed as treasurer and will assume her duties by February.

Members received a letter of thanks from the county home, Berks Heim, for the gifts given to the residents. Evelyn Becker represented the group and presented a gift of appreciation to outgoing president Mrs. Charles Taylor.

Virginia Taylor served as delegate to the state convention. Mrs. George Fullerton prepared the new program books and distributed them to members.

Program chairman Virgini Taylor conducted a by-laws quiz t review the bylaws. Members als played games.

Evelyn Becker of Boyertown wi host the next regular meeting o Feb. 3. The American Hear Association will present a progran on hypertension and all presen will have their blood pressur checked.

Rabid Pet Raccoon Bites Woman

HARRISBURG — A State Department of Agriculture official has warned against keeping wild animals as pets and cited a recent rabies incident in Greene County as evidence of the danger involved.

Dr. Max A. VanBuskirk Jr., director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, said a Greene County woman is receiving rabies treatment because her pet raccoon bit her and was diagnosed rabid.

Her household cat, which was not previously vaccinated, was exposed to the raccoon and is under a three-month quarantine to be sure it is rabies free.

"The incident illustrates why wild animals should not be kept, why dogs and cats should be vaccinated and why mandatory vaccination will soon be law," he said.

Under a mandatory rabies vaccination law signed by Gov. Dick Thornburgh in December, dogs and household cats over three months of age must be inoculated against rabies as of Feb. 13.

"The intent is to prevent a serious outbreak of rabies in wild animals from spilling over in greater numbers into domestic animals in the neighborhoods of their owners," he noted. Pennsylvania had 583 confirmed rabies cases last year. There were just 23 cases ten years ago.

Berks County Executive Board

The Berks County Executive Board met Jan. 5 at the ag center. County president Mary Fizz called the meeting to order.

Highlights of the coming year include: Berks Heim bingo, April 9 and Nov. 12; and spring rally at Elizabethtown College, May 20. Committees were selected for the county convention on Oct. 3 at the AG Center.

The group gave donations to the Berks Heim and Hamburg Center. Members are working on several ideas for the county project this year.

The next meeting will be held March 2 at the 4-H Center.

Pennsylvania's Finest Sheep Collect Farm Show Ribbons

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — With fleeces freshly washed and trimmed, Pennsylvania's finest sheep flocked to the Farm Show building in Harrisburg this week for open breeding competition.

Novice showmen joined veteran Farm Show exhibitors to find out how well their flocks would fare in the eyes of show judge John Frost of Bloomingburg, Ohio.

Open breeding competition began in the small arena Sunday with six breeds, and concluded with the wool breeds Monday evening.

Cheviot

Although he has been making the annual pilgrimage to Farm Show for the past several years, Mike Koehler of Schnecksville captured his first champion ribbons in this year's Cheviot show. With a pair of spring lambs purchased from Ohio breeder Bud Martin, Koehler claimed the champion ram and ewe honors.

Koehler attributed his success to luck, but a lot of hard work and careful planning are part of raising a champion. He also earned the premier breeder plaque and showed the top flock and get-of-sire.

Koehler raises 15 Cheviots and 25 Dorsets under the farm name Rising Sun Sheep.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rudy of Pennsylvania Furnace earned the reserve champion ram rosette with a spring ram lamb which placed second in its class after Koehler's champion. The Rudys also showed the second place fall ewe lamb and the top breeder's young flock and pen of lambs.

The reserve champion ewe belonged to a spring ewe lamb exhibited by Donna MacCauley of Atglen.

Dorset

Veteran Farm Show contenders Margaret Herr and George and Margaret Downsbrough dominated Sunday's Dorset competition. Judge Frost selected two homebred yearlings owned by Margaret Herr of Narvon for his champion and reserve champion ewes and a ram owned by the Downsbroughs for his champion ram.

Herr, who has stood in the winner's circle at Farm Show numerous times, followed her tried and true formula for success — excellent preparation. "We try to have them looking their best," she said, adding that she and her family spent a lot of time preparing their entries.

She also showed the first and second place fall ewe lambs, the top flock and received the premier exhibitor plaque.

George and Margaret Downsbrough of Windswept Farm, State College, claimed the champion ram for the second consecutive year. "We've always done well at the Farm Show," Mrs. Downsbrough said. "We're very pleased."

Their champion, a fall lamb, is the son of the highest selling Dorset ram at the 1986 Ohio Dorset Show and Sale. The Downsbroughs have been in the sheep business since the early 70s, but dispersed their flock of Southdowns and Dorsets and started over again with new Dorset stock four years ago.

Their recipe for success, Mrs. Downsbrough reported, includes purchasing good sheep, feeding them carefully and taking proper care of the pastures. The Downsbroughs also earned the premier breeder plaque and won several of the group classes.

Mike Koehler, who earlier in the day dominated the Cheviot show, exhibited the reserve champion Dorset ram, a yearling that is Rising Sun's main stud.

Hampshire

The Farm Show's open Hampshire competition was Glenn Musselman's introduction into showing and his passport to the winner's circle as well. Exhibiting in his first show ever, the Lancaster businessman claimed both the champion ram and champion ewe rosettes.

When asked if he was pleased with the outcome of his showring debut, Musselman just grinned broadly and said, "Very much so."

He purchased his champion ewe, a stylish yearling bred in California by Susan Diedrick, at the Mid-West Stud Ram Sale in Missouri. For the ram, Musselman traveled to Indiana, where he selected his champion from stock on the Charles Kirlin farm.

Musselman said he started raising sheep as a hobby two years ago and currently has a flock of 12 Hampshires. A businessman residing in Lancaster city, Musselman keeps his sheep on a farm just outside of town.

Well-known Lancaster County Hampshire breeders Tim and Sarah Fleener offered Musselman some stiff competition and went home with the reserve champion ewe and ram as well as the coveted premier breeder plaque.

Shropshire

A grandfather and his grandson claimed the championships in the Shropshire competition with two homebred entries. Kenneth Moore, a well-known Shropshire breeder from Bradford County, showed the champion ram, while his grandson Geoff Powell, showing in his first Farm Show, claimed the champion ewe.

Moore, proprietor of Twin Pine Farm, has been showing at Farm Show since 1938, missing only one year of competition. Moore and his daughter, Doris Powell, raise four breeds of sheep at the farm in Rome — Shropshires, Hampshires, Dorsets and Rambouillets.

Moore also exhibited the reserve champion ewe and ram and took home the premier exhibitor plaque.

William Yoder of Kutztown, earned the premier breeder plaque.

Southdown

For the past several years, Steve Kwisnek of Scenic View Farm, Indiana County, has dominated Farm Show Southdown competition and 1987 was no exception. Kwisnek claimed all of the championships and carried home the premier breeder and exhibitor plaque.

Son Gary Kwisnek was especially pleased with the champion ram, a spring lamb making its show debut. The ram's mother reaped a healthy supply of ribbons on the state fair show circuit last year and her son shows promise of following in her footsteps. "We're really excited about him," Gary Kwisnek said.

They had been searching for a new stud ram for the past two years and are pleased to have found him in their own flock, he continued. The Kwisneks plan to continue showing the ram next year.

Southdown breeders since 1975, Gary said he believes they have been successful because of their concentrated breeding program and hard work. Their flock of Southdowns numbers approximately 100.

Suffolk

Judge Frost highly praised Pennsylvania Suffolk breeders for the quality of their Farm Show entries this year. In giving reasons for several large classes of Suffolks, Frost termed the entries "absolutely exciting."

The most exciting were the entries owned by Keith McConnell of Volant, Lawrence County, which earned the championships. Frost selected homebred McConnell lambs for his champion ewe and champion ram. He also went to a McConnell entry for his reserve champion ewe.

William MacCauley of Atglen showed the reserve champion ram.

Judging of wool breeds took place in the small arena Monday evening. Gary Ricketts, a sheep specialist at the University of Illinois, judged the shows.

Corriedale

Two youthful exhibitors captured the championships in Monday evening's Corriedale show, with 21-year-old Kathy Weaver of Everett exhibiting the champion ram and 17-year-old Kimberly Hopple of Mechanicsburg claiming the champion ewe.

Weaver purchased her champion ram at the Keystone Stud Ram and Ewe Sale in the spring and showed him to the champion spot at the fair this summer.

But despite his winning record, Weaver said following the show, "I expected him to do well, but not that well." Nevertheless, she was pleased with his performance. Judge Ricketts pointed to the ram's fleece, size and outstanding breed characteristics in naming the fall lamb champion. Weaver also exhibited the reserve champion ewe and was named premier exhibitor of the show.

sheep and has approximately 60 animals. That may seem like a large flock for such a young exhibitor, but Weaver began with sheep when she was just 10 years old and has been expanding her flock ever since.

Employed as an assistant technician at the Bedford County Veterniary Medical Center, Weaver says she enjoys working with animals, especially sheep. "I plan to be doing this when I'm 99," she said of her wooly enterprise.

The champion ewe honor belonged to Kimberly Hopple's yearling ewe, which she purchased at the Stud Ram Sale in Missouri in May. "She's a long, tall and stylish ewe," Hopple pointed out following the show.

Raising sheep is a hobby for Hopple, who has a total of seven sheep, five of which she brought to the show. Hopple also exhibited the reserve champion ram.

The premier breeder award went to Emil Mellott and Son of Needmore.

Merino

Both Merino champions were exhibited by Dr. James Witt of Burnt Cabins, Huntingdon County. The champion ram was purchased at the Keystone Sale in July and was bred by the McCrumb family of Washington County.

The champion ewe, a spring lamb bred by K and K Smith of Ohio, was also purchased at the Keystone sale, shepherd Emil Mellott reported. Witt's flock of Merinos includes approximately 20 sheep.

The reserve champion ram and reserve champion ewe were both exhibited by Barbara Falvey of Bedford.

Falvey was also named premier breeder. Witt was honored as premier exhibitor.

Rambouillet

Kenneth Moore of Rome continued his Sunday winning streak by claiming the champion and reserve champion ram rosettes in the Rambouillet show. Judge Ricketts went to Moore's flashy fall ram lamb for his champion ram.

Earlier in the year, the homebred champion was reserve at KILE and at the New York State Fair.

Six-year-old Billy George Leib earned the champion ewe rosette with his fall ewe lamb. The ram has earned its share of awards, including a championship at the New York State Fair and a blue ribbon in its class at Keystone.

Billy George was apparently pleased with his success as he carried away plaques and ribbons to add to his collection. Billy has been showing his own animals for two years. Before then, he gave his parents a hand in the showring.

Billy George also exhibited the reserve champion ewe.

Youthful Shepherds Show Their Best In Jr. Breeding Sheep Show

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — From novice exhibitors nervously entering Farm Show competition for the first time to experienced showmen hoping to claim one final championship, junior sheep exhibitors gave the judge their best effort Wednesday.

Keeping one eye on the judge and the other on their prized sheep, the youthful exhibitors paraded the finest members of their flocks before judge Duran Howard of Mulhall, Oklahoma.

Below are the highlights of the nine junior breed shows held in the small arena of the Farm Show building Wednesday.

Cheviot

In the Cheviot show, 17-year-old Jodie Frantz of Schnecksville edged out Chester County's Donna MacCauley in competition for the championship. Judge Howard placed Frantz's yearling ewe above MacCauley's ewe lamb, leaving competitors Jeff and Andy Mellott of Needmore to settle for third best.

With only two sheep to exhibit at Farm Show, Frantz, the daughter of Wayne and Pat Frantz, had high hopes for the ewe, which she purchased from Kenneth Moore, a prominent breeder from Rome. She also exhibited a market lamb in competition later in the day.

Frantz got her start in the sheep business when her cousin Mike Koehler gave her two market lambs as a Christmas present several years ago. He taught her how to show and allows her to keep her sheep on his farm. This year's win is her first Farm Show championship in the three years she has been showing.

In Corriedale competition, Kimberly Hopple showed the champion, while the reserve belonged to Jason Kutz.

Both the champion and reserve champion Dorset ewes belonged to Margaret Herr, right. Here, Margaret gets a hand with the reserve from Rachael Hixenbaugh.

In Hampshire competition, Ellen Lewis right, claimed the champion and reserve champion. Here, Alicia Strausbaugh, helps with the reserve.

Corriedale

Kimberly Hopple of Mechanicsburg reaped her second Corriedale championship of the 1987 Farm Show when she claimed the rosette for champion ewe in the junior show. Earlier in the week, she showed her homebred yearling ewe to the top place in the open show.

Hopple purchased her stylish winner at the Stud Ram Sale in Missouri last spring.

The reserve went to a ewe lamb owned by Jason Kutz of Carlisle.

Dorset

Lancaster County's Margaret Herr concluded an 11-year junior showing career with a fluorish, claiming the grand and reserve championships in Dorset competition. "It's a good way to go out," she said.

Earlier in the week, Herr had claimed the grand and reserve champion ewe honors in the open show.

But while she has had her share of Farm Show winners, Herr said she has not always left the ring with the top honor. For the first several years of her career, her older sister often eclipsed Margaret's efforts.

A sophomore at Penn State University, Herr plans to continue showing in open competition now that her junior career is ended.

Hampshire

Her yearling ewe may have a "difficult" personality, but Lancaster County's Ellen Lewis wasn't complaining as she claimed the championship in the Hampshire show.

The mere approach of judge Howard sparked unruly behavior in Lewis' champion, but he seemd to like her looks despite her lack of showring etiquette.

Extensive training did not help to calm this ewe's showring jitters, explained Lewis, who added that the ewe is calm in the pen, but gets a bit hyper when on the stand or in the ring.

Lewis, who was celebrating her third consecutive Hampshire championship, also captured the reserve place with a ewe lamb. The 17-year-old high school senior owns about 50 sheep.

Merino

Barbara and Suzan Falvey of Bedford exhibited the only Merino sheep in the junior show. Barbara's ewe lamb bested her sister's entry for the championship, but Suzan took home the reserve.

The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Falvey, Barbara purchased her champion from Barbara Platt of Gettysburg. The reserve champion was a homebred entry.

The Falveys own a total of 35 sheep — 30 Merinos and about five Suffolks.

Rambouillet

Twelve-year-old Ben Lazarus didn't have much to say about his champion Rambouillet ewe, but the broad smile on his face said it all.

He couldn't have placed any

York County's Strausbaugh Captures Coveted Jr. Market Lamb Banner

HARRISBURG — Visions of leaping sheep may not be the answer to insomnia, but Jeff Strausbaugh knows that well-toned sheep make Farm Show champions. The 9-year-old York County youth constructed jumps in the barn, then put his market lamb through the paces every night.

The exercise program apparently gave "Scooter," his 128-pound Suffolk wether, the muscle tone needed to capture the judge's attention, for at show's end the purple and gold champion banner was handed to Strausbaugh.

The banner, one of the most coveted sheep awards presented at Farm Show, is given to the youth with the best market lamb. The junior market lamb show was held Wednesday afternoon in the Farm Show building in Harrisburg.

Strausbaugh, the son of Greg and Chris Strausbaugh, York, explained that the exercise course constructed in the family's barn consisted of four jumps. Each night, he led the lamb over the hurdles in preparation for Farm Show competition.

Fielding hugs and handshakes from enthusiastic friends, Strausbaugh said he was feeling both happy and surprised about his win. The champion market lamb is quite a coup for a youngster exhibiting in his second Farm Show. "You don't do it too often," Strausbaugh's mother said with a glowing smile. Once is about all you can hope for, she added.

Strausbaugh purchased Scooter from Pine Haven Farm in Newville.

On his way to the grand champion title, Scooter picked up the light heavyweight championship. In the final round of competition, he was up against the seven other weight division champions and reserves.

The overall reserve championship went to a 217-pound Suffolk-cross wether exhibited by Laura Folker of Lancaster County. An experienced hog showman, Folker was exhibiting her first lambs at Farm Show. She has raised hogs for a number of years, but took on sheep as an FFA project this year. She owns two lambs, her market lamb "Captain" and a carcass lamb. She purchased the market lamb from B and B Livestock in Ohio.

Like Strausbaugh, Folker prepared her lamb for the show by putting him through an exercise program. She said she walked Captain a mile each night on a race horse track near her grandparent's home.

Although she was obviously pleased with her success in sheep competition, Folker is still undecided about continuing with sheep. Her mother reports that parting with them at sale time is a little tough to take. Laura is the 15-year-old daughter of Tony and Edith Folker, New Holland.

Other division champions included Bobbi Jo Keiter, Cumberland County, champion lightweight, and Joyce Heffner, Berks County, reserve lightweight; Donna MacCauley, Chester County, reserve champion middleweight; Rob Keiter, Cumberland County, reserve champion light heavyweight; Kristin Chupp, Lancaster County, champion heavyweight; and Rachael Hixenbaugh, Beaver County, reserve champion heavyweight.

The entire Strausbaugh family of York County shared in the excitement when 9-year-old Jeff captured the champion market lamb banner. They are, from left, Alicia, Chris, Jeff and Greg.

Laura Folker receives congratulations from Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen Gwen Gray after she received the reserve champion market lamb plaque.

Stress Pileup Problem Present In Farming, Agribusiness, Says Family Specialist

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams County Correspondent

BRUSHTOWN — "Farmers consider themselves hardy stock. They do not want to admit that there is such a thing as stress, but... There's a lot of stress pileup today in farming and ag related businesses," said Dr. James VanHorn. The Penn State Extension family life specialist spoke on "Living with Stress" at the 71st annual meeting of the Adams County Cooperative Extension Association held Jan. 8th at the Brushtown Firehall.

Over 250 people gathered for the annual banquet and meeting which featured highlights of the 1986 Extension program, presentation of special awards, election of six new Executive Committee members, and Dr. Horn's presentation.

Dr. Horn noted that the agricultural community suffers from stress as evidenced by its end-products: stress-related illnesses, increasing family conflicts, and the rising number of suicides within the ag community. Horn emphasized, "When the mind is under a lot of pressure, the body reacts. When the body is under stress, the mind reacts."

Horn listed several symptoms of stress including not only physical illness and depression, but also difficulty in concentration, increased irritability, weight gain or loss, difficulty in doing ordinary tasks, drug or alcohol abuse, and chronic fatigue.

However, stated Horn, stress is not all bad. Stress helps with reaction time when our automatic responses are needed. The problem comes when we have stress overload and do nothing to relieve it.

Horn presented a "Preventive Maintenance" checklist for dealing with stress, stating, "Farmers do it (preventive maintenance) for their tractors and buildings. We need to do it for ourselves."

He prescribed:

- Develop a positive outlook for dealing with crisis.
- Define your work; cut it into manageable slices.
- Learn to accept what you cannot change.
- Talk over your troubles with a trusted confidant.
- Learn to relax and to pause in life.
- Work off tensions and develop self-renewing diversions.

County 4-H Agent Jared Tyson recognized four families with certificates of appreciation for hosting IFYEs from Greece this past summer. These included the: Russell Redding Family, Frank Ludwig Family, Michael Grimm Family, and the Chester Tyson Family.

County Executive Board President Kay King recognized two of the Executive Committee's retiring members for serving for nine consecutive years. They were Miriam Zepp, New Oxford, and Glenn Kime, Gardners. They were not eligible for re-election. Newly elected to the 21 member county-wide Executive Committee were: David Benner, Bonnie Kuntz, Barbara Platt, Tim Weiser, David Reinecker, and Dr. Patricia Whittaker.

County Extension Director Thomas Piper concluded the awards presentations with the 1986 Extension Leadership Award which went to Glenn Kime, Gardner. Selection for this annual award is determined by vote of the full Executive Committee.

In his introduction, Piper characterized Kime saying, "The man we honor has been a tireless leader in serving his community." Kime was the first FFA Keystone Farmer in Adams County. He has been an active leader in the poultry industry both locally and on the state level. He has also been active on the Tyrone Township Planning Commission and with numerous other civic groups.

higher in his second year of Farm Show competition. In his first year of showing, Lazarus earned the reserve championship.

The son of Grant and Linda Lazarus, Germansville, Ben owns eight ewes. His family has about 60 Hampshires and Rambouillets.

The reserve rosette went to Tammy Styer of Bedford.

Shropshire

With a successful open show under his belt, 9-year-old Geoff Powell conquered a case of nerves and led his ewe lamb to the head of the class — and of the Shropshire show.

Exhibiting in his first Farm Show, Powell confessed to some pre-show jitters. However, his homebred lamb, which earlier in the week topped the open Shropshire show, caught the eye of judge Howard, who placed it above an entry owned by Tracy Frantz of Schnecksville. Earlier in the show season, Powell's ewe was named supreme champion of the Bradford County junior show.

Powell is no newcomer to the state's primary ag event; he has been attending the show with his mother, Doris Powell, and grandfather, Kenneth Moore, since he was a tot.

Southdown

Eighteen-year-old Melissa Trostle of Red Lion closed out her junior showing career with a winning edge Wednesday as she captured the championship in the Southdown show. Judge Howard placed her homebred ewe lamb ahead of another ewe lamb owned by Lehigh County FFA.

Sheep are a rather recent addition to Trostle's Farm Show exhibits; she has shown hogs for eleven years and added sheep just four years ago.

Trostle said she came to the show hoping to do well with her Southdown. In October, the lamb was named champion at the Keystone International Livestock Expo.

Trostle owns about 40 ewes.

Suffolk

Boasting the most entries, the Suffolk show received praise from judge Howard, who described it as "a whale of a show."

Howard selected a ewe lamb owned by Rachael Hixenbaugh of Beaver for his champion and an entry exhibited by Donna MacCauley of Atglen for his reserve.

Hixenbaugh refitted her lamb following Sunday's open show, when the judge mentioned a little more fitting was in order. The lamb placed fourth in its class in the open show, but the new hairstyle, and the lamb wearing it, was just what the judge was seeking Wednesday.

Hixenbaugh noted that Nelsh, her winning ewe, is part of a successful pair. The ewe's twin brother placed fourth out 55 in the open show.

Serving as the Pennsylvania Suffolk Queen and the National Suffolk Princess, Hixenbaugh leaves no question about where her affections lie.

Avon Man Completes Alfred State Degree Work — After 47 Years

ALFRED, N.Y. — Hoyt R. Mason of Avon and Lakeland, Fla., has finally finished something he started 47 years ago.

It was in the fall of 1939 that Mason entered Alfred State College to study agriculture. He should have finished his studies in the spring of 1941 at the two-year polytechnic college, but academic problems stopped him.

Mason did not return to Alfred the next fall but instead went to work on a dairy farm.

Finally, after completing two careers in banking, serving in the Marines, and working for the County of Monroe, Mason fulfilled a lifelong promise to himself by returning to Alfred this fall to complete work on his degree.

"What a great feeling," he beamed after finishing his last exam in late December.

"Completing college satisfies a guilt I've felt all these years for letting my parents down."

One of four children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alvin R. Mason of Rochester, Hoyt remembers how supportive his parents were of his wish to be a farmer "like my grandfather."

"There wasn't a bundle of money around in our family so when I didn't finish at Alfred in two years, I know I really let my mother and father down—although they never said so. Looking back at that period in my life, I realize that I could have done the work but just didn't apply myself."

Although he's now finished work on his associate in applied science degree in general agriculture, Mason will not receive the degree until May since Alfred has no winter commencement. "I'll be back for that," he promised before heading for his winter home in Lakeland, Fla.

For a man who didn't finish college, the 65-year-old Mason can look back with a great deal of pride on his multifaceted career — most of it in banking.

Retired since 1981, Mason now divides his year between Lakeland and Avon, where he is well known for his involvement in professional and community organizations.

A past president of the Livingston County Bankers Association, he was also chairman of the executive committee of Livingston County 4-H, a member of the board of directors of the Livingston County Extension Service, and a past president of Avon Rotary.

"This was the first year (since retirement) I've been in Avon long enough to attend college," he points out.

Once he worked out his college plans, he got into his car, drove to Alfred, and walked into the admissions office to explain his unique situation.

Mason was directed to meet with Professor Walter Wietgrefe to see what was needed to fulfill graduation requirements.

Since the 1941 program had undergone drastic changes, Professor Weitgrefe had to do considerable checking, rechecking, and even triple checking to make certain Mason would take all the courses he needed to graduate in one semester.

Mason received credit for several of his old courses, plus credit for others he had taken through the American Institute of Banking (AIB). He was 11 credits short of a degree.

One of his courses this semester was a directed study course under Professor Wietgrefe's supervision, while the rest of his "special package" included farm management, microcomputer application, and dairy cattle production. His schedule was arranged so he could make the 114-mile round trip three days a week instead of five.

Professor Wietgrefe called Mason "an incredible person" whose zeal and enthusiasm "was very contagious." He said Mason was popular with everyone — students as well as faculty.

For his part, Mason said his return to college after the long hiatus was "just a fantastic experience; I had a ball." He also lauded his professors "because they were so supportive of what I was doing."

Mason's career included administrative posts at two different banks, a one-year hitch in the Marine Corps (medical discharge), and seven years as a dairy and sanitary inspector for the County of Monroe.

It was after leaving the county job in 1952 that he joined Marine Midland Bank in Avon as their farm representative. "I thought this was my chance to get into farming through the back door," he recalled of his decision to take the post.

He was with Marine Midland for more than 18 years, leaving there in 1971 with the title of assistant vice president and area supervisor.

By that time, his four children had all relocated to Florida and he and wife, Nancy, decided to join them. This didn't mean retirement, however, as Mason resumed his banking career by joining the Barnett Bank of

New Tax Law

UNIVERSITY PARK – The Tax Reform Act of 1986 repealed several features of the pre-1987 tax code that provided tax relief for taxpayers. The features repealed include the two-earner deduction, income averaging, the dividends exclusions, and the opportunity for non-itemizers to deduct charitable contributions.

The two-earner deduction permitted an adjustment of income equal to 10 percent of the earnings of the spouse with the lower income ($3,000 maximum) for married couples. That feature was repealed effective Jan. 1, 1987.

Changes in tax rates, the personal exemption, and a larger standard deduction are designed to reduce taxes for most married couples when fully implemented in 1989. However, even with those changes, taxes for a married couple will still be higher than for two single individuals with the same total income as the married couple.

Income averaging is repealed at the end of 1986. This feature of prior law permits taxpayers to spread unusually high current-year income over the past three years to reduce their tax obligations in the current year. The ' s of that feature will result in more taxes for persons who experience a surge in income, such as when a dairy herd is sold or when all business assets are liquidated at the time of retirement.

The dividends received exclusion that permitted a $100 per individual and $200 per couple exclusion of dividend income is repealed at the end of 1986. Also, the political contributions credit that provided a credit of 50 percent of contributions up to a maximum credit of $50 per individual and $100 per joint return is repealed effective Jan. 1.

Contributions to charitable organizations must be claimed as an itemized deduction after 1986. Prior law permitted nonitemizers to deduct 50 percent of contributions in 1985 and 100 percent in 1986.

Children Face Three Major Nutritional Problems

SOUTHAMPTON — Of all the types of nutritional problems relating to children, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, Pa., there are three of major importance: anemia, obesity, and dental caries.

Anemia is commonly reported up to 40 percent among children in the low socioeconomic groups. When you consider that the Recommended Daily Allowances for iron for ages six months to age three is 15 mg. — only 3 mg. less than adults need — it is easy to understand why children may not get enough iron from their diet.

Low iron stores may also have other reasons: parents may not know good sources of iron; or they may not have enough money to buy iron-rich foods.

Anemia may be aggravated by parasites. Sometimes iron-rich foods are not introduced soon enough in a baby's diet; after six months of age, the iron stores a child is born with need to be replenished.

Research studies show that iron status is related to learning. Children who are iron-deficient tend to be less motivated, have diminished ability to concentrate or a decreased attention span, and some may experience nuerological changes, such as clumsiness. To prevent iron deficiency, the diet should contain adequate amounts of meats and greens.

Childhood obesity with all its ramifications is increasing, with estimates ranging from 5 to 15 percent. Some nutritionists say the problem may exist because of parental concern over children's eating habits.

Many parents insist on introducing solid foods before a child is ready — which is normally between three and six months. The myth that a "fat baby is a healthy baby" still persists — with new mothers often getting mixed messages from their mothers who "can't stand a skinny baby" and their pediatrician, who recognizes the potential problem.

Many parents also insist on "plate cleaning," believing a child has to eat a certain amount of food. As a child gets older, appetites fluctuate with growth spurts. Parents often fail to recognize that most children, even more so than adults, can regulate their own need for food.

Overeating can also be influenced by using food as a reward. Highly sweetened foods are often used, and once a "sweet tooth" is developed, the habit is difficult to break.

Inactivity is another factor in obesity. A national survey by the Federal Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion surprisingly indicates that today's children are less physically fit than the children of two decades ago. The study shows they are fatter than those in the mid-sixties, and their heart and lung fitness lags behind that of adults who are more in tune with exercise.

Dental health can be affected by several factors, one of which is the presence of fermentable carbohydrates in the diet.

Fermentable carbohydrates come in the form of sticky foods, such as caramels. Very important in determining the extent of dental caries is the length of time that a food stays in the mouth. If a child sucks on one lifesaver after another, the teeth are exposed longer to the action of a fermentable carbohydrate than if the lifesaver were chewed and swallowed. Along with proper diet, children should be taught the proper care of teeth, including flossing and regular visits to the dentist.

The Food Consumption Survey of several years ago and the Hanes II Study pointed out that children ages 1 to 12 usually have adequate nutrient intake for protein, vitamin A, thiamin, and riboflavin.

But half the children surveyed consumed less than 80 percent of the RDA for calcium, 30 to 40 percent consumed less than optimal range of vitamin B_6, and vitamin C presented a problem for about one-fifth to one-third of the children.

One way to make sure young children get the needed nutrients is to provide them with adequate amounts of the four food groups: milk and dairy products, 3 servings daily; meats, 2 servings; fruits and vegetables, 4 servings; and grains, 4 servings.

A Grange Year In Review

HARRISBURG — It was an array of emotions, challenges, disappointments and tragedy. It was a year which will echo in the minds of many for years to come. From the heart-tugging Hands Across America, where thousands of people across the Nation joined hands for the hungry and sang "United we stand, united we fall . . . Hands across this land I love . . . Hands across America," to the millions who gathered in front of the tube to watch Greg, Ron, Mike, Dick, Ellison, Judy and Christa smile and wave as they stepped onto the Challenger. Within minutes, the last words spoken by Commander Dick Scobee, "Full throttle" rang out. A flash of light, a painful memory ... a year we won't forget!

For the Pennsylvania State Grange, it was a year Grangers will indeed remember— "A year of legislative accomplishment," as Legislative Director Brenda Shambaugh described. Pennsylvanians will not forget the avian influenza which afflicted approximately 350,000 birds causing them to be destroyed. Nor will it be forgotten, the pseudorabies scare which infected herds of breeding hogs in the Ephrata area. Grangers will not forget their victorious battle for animal health funding which included avian flu and pseudorabies.

Pennsylvania Grangers can not forget the drought in York County which affected 300,000 acres of farmland and caused an estimated $47 million in crop losses in 1986. Pennsylvanian Grangers and farmers pulled their resources together and donated tons of hay and money to the drought-stricken farmers which stretched from Pennsylvania to Florida.

Included with the many Grange accomplishments that Shambaugh refered to are:

— Haulting unisex insurance rates from going into effect. The Pennsylvania State Grange began working toward this goal during the summer of 1985 with its final passage in February 1986.

— Pesticide revisions passed. This new law requires more training for those who apply pesticides and requires commercial pesticide applicators to notify people who live on adjacent property before pesticide work is done.

— Successfully urged IRRC to pass regulations prohibiting insurance companies from cancelling insurance policies mid-term.

— Rabies Control legislation passed.

— S.B. 239 passed requiring all school buses to stop at railroad crossings. After two years of Grange involvement, the bill passed.

— Also legislation passed which prohibits cross filing for judges and requires prompt payment for poultry on the state level.

— The Grange also testified in favor of labeling artificial dairy products and on the 1985 dairy provisions of the Farm Bill (including Gramm-Rudman alternatives)

Most recently, the Grange was victorious with the final passage of the Anthracite Coal Bill in November. Governor Dick Thornburgh signed the bill in December. This action created an emergency bonding program for GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL— The Pennsylvania State Grange was present when Governor Dick Thornburgh placed his signature on the Anthracite Coal Bill in December. This action represented a victory for the Grange, which has been pushing for this piece of legislation since early spring. Seated with the Governor are (left) Sen. James Rhoades (29th District, Schuylkill County) and (right) Rep. William Baldwin (D-38th District, Schuylkill and Northumberland counties). Both men were instrumental in the passage of this bill. Standing in the second row are State Master Charles E. Wismer Jr. (left) and to his right, Legislative Director Brenda Shambaugh, both of the Grange. Other Grange members present for the ceremony were Tom Daubert, Joe Reitz and Al Riedel. The three Grangers represented the Anthracite and Pine Grove Granges.

"Farmers will have to work together in the upcoming year," said State Master Charles E. Wismer Jr. "They have to work to survive the economic conditions of 1987. OH! OH!
The cows are falling.
How do you know?
Farmer Brown said so.

How do you know Farmer Brown?
I saw it with my eyes.
I heard it with my ears.
And there is less milk in the pail.
Let's go ask the wise old owl.
The owl thought for a moment.
"Call the Scabbler Man", he said.
"He can fix the barn for you, and You'll find more milk in the pail!"

Allebach, Orndorffs Shine In Draft Horse Show

Although some people like to horse around, Allebachs, Orndorffs and Rovenolts don't when it comes to showing and breeding champion draft horses. The three families captured championships in the Clydesdale, Percheron and Belgian breeds at Monday's Farm Show.

Clydesdales

Abraham and Mary Allebach of Spring Mills in Centre County topped the Clydesdale show, mare and stallion divisions, with a pair of full siblings.

Ambassadors Danny Boy, a 2 year old, topped the stallion show for owners Abraham and Mary Allebach of Spring Mills, Centre County. "We had pretty high hopes for him since he did so well this summer," Mary said. She noted he took grand champion stallion at the Ohio State Fair. Also, his dam placed in the grand champion position at the Farm Show several times.

Sired by Bardrill Ambassador and out of the Double A Contessa mare, he is a full brother to the grand champion mare, Ambassadors Tina Marie.

The champion yearling mare is owned by Allebachs' daughter, Monica, and marked the first time she was shown under Monica's name.

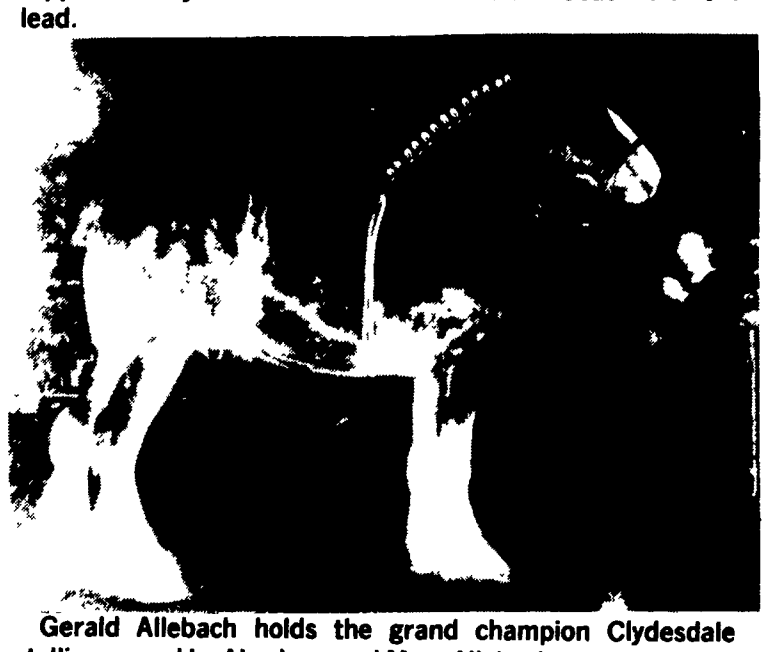
Last year Monica nursed Tina Marie back to health following an allergic reaction to a drug. Due to work commitments Monica was unable to attend Monday's show and relied on her brother, Gerald to bring home the blue for her.

Allebachs own a total of three Clydesdales. The third one, the champion's dam, is presently in Canada for breeding, Mary stated.

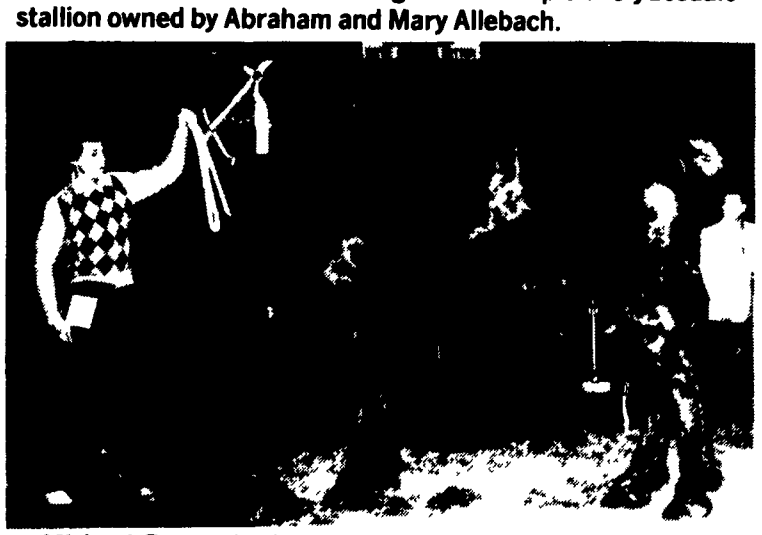
Sen. John Hertel, Detroit, Mich., selected Johnston's Premiere Jake owned by Edward Johnston of New Alexandria, as the reserve grand champion stallion.

Johnston's yearling mare earned reserve mare honors of the Clydesdale show.

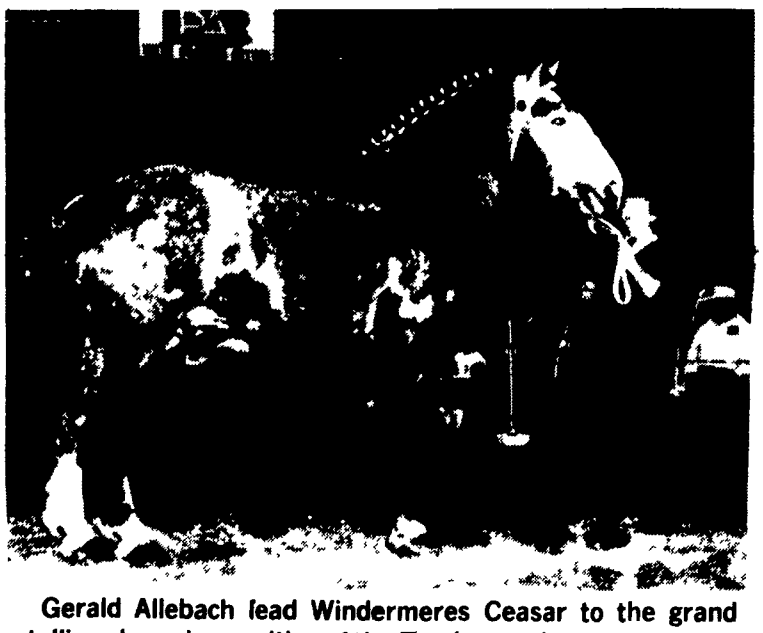
Ambassadors Tina Marie, owned by Monica Allebach, topped the Clydesdale Mare Show. Gerald Allebach is on the lead.



Gerald Allebach holds the grand champion Clydesdale stallion owned by Abraham and Mary Allebach.



Michael Rovenolt showed the grand champion Percheron mare.



Gerald Allebach lead Windermeres Ceasar to the grand stallion champion position of the Percheron show.

Percherons

Allebachs returned to the winner's circle in the Percheron show with the grand champion stallion, Windermeres Ceasar.

The homebred entry topped the Farm Show last year and placed first in the mare and foal class in 1983. Mary noted the 2 year old will be standing as stud this year.

"He has such fantastic conformation, disposition and beautiful draft horse feet," Mary continued, explaining why he has been successful on the show circuit and will make a good draft horse sire.

Pennswood Miss Juilaet, owned by Michael Rovenolt, stepped into the grand champion mare position. The Northampton breeder purchased the champion from Pennwoods Percherons in Centre County.

Michael's father, Alfred, noted that he bought the champion because he liked the way she moved as a hitch mare. She placed third in the futurity cart horse competition at the Ohio State Fair this summer. She also earned reserve junior champion mare honors this summer at the New York State Fair.

Rovenolt also showed the reserve champion mare, MEF Ladinah, a 3 year old sired by La Donald.

Sen. Hertel selected for the reserve champion stallion honors a 2 year old owned by Pennwoods Percherons.

Belgians

Orndorff's Congolaise Supreme continued to dominate the stallion show at Harrisburg, winning grand champion for the third consecutive year. His Farm Show championships sandwich two consecutive Keystone titles.

Owned by Corbly Orndorff and his sister, Christine Lemley, the 6-year-old stallion has been standing as stud on their Greene County farm. He sired the junior champion mare. Corbly said, "His offspring are young, but what we've seen so far look good."

Corbly added that judge Lee Eller of Arcadia, Ind., liked Congolaise's style. "He's not as big as some of the others but he's very refined and stylish."

The Belgian stallion is a seven-eighth brother to the grand champion mare, also owned by the Orndorff's Belgians.

A 9 year old, the champion mare is fresh from winning the Keystone and American Belgian shows. Corbly noted that although they bred and raised "Princess," they sold her as a 2 year old and only recently bought her back to use her as a brood mare.

Orndorff's Belgians also showed the reserve grand champion mare

Arthur Reist of Lititz had the reserve grand champion stallion

Corbly Orndorff lead Orndorff's Congolaise Princess to top honors in the Belgian mare competition.

Pennsylvania Launches Revolutionary Marketing Campaign For Two Percent Milk

HARRISBURG — A bold new concept in milk promotion — the first of its kind in the nation — has been unveiled by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP). Capitalizing on current national trends in milk and beverage consumption, Pennsylvania will become the first state to launch an extensive and aggressive campaign for 2% milk in the same manner as packaged products, such as diet soft drinks, are promoted. The innovative campaign is expected to revolutionize milk marketing methods nationwide.

The new statewide program is intended to substantially impact sales of milk, Pennsylvania's "official" beverage, for the state's largest agricultural industry. The promotion is being funded by approximately 4,000 dairy farmers who support the PDPP.

Responding to studies which show the most dramatic beverage sales increases to be in the low calorie group, the new program develops a generic marketing umbrella for 2% milk. Two percent milk contains only 2% milk fat, which has inspired a promotional theme: "98% fat free, 100% beautiful." Based on the premise that 2% milk fits into the increasingly popular low calorie lifestyle of the '80s, the program provides an opportunity to significantly boost milk sales in the beverage industry's fastest moving category.

Emphasizing the product's light, lean, beauty enhancing benefits, the new campaign has renamed 2% milk "White Lite."

As James Harteis, Chairman of the PDPP Advisory Board, explains, "Calorie counting American women just aren't drinking enough milk, despite the new emphasis on health and osteoporosis."

He adds, "The perfect compromise is 2% milk, which we call White Lite, because it is low-cal and 98% fat free. It is also loaded with calcium and other essential minerals, vitamins, and proteins. The only thing it lacks is extra fat and extra calories."

The White Lite name will be introduced on milk cartons in western Pennsylvania this spring. It will also be rolled out to dealers across the state. The White Lite concept will be supported by a full-blown advertising and public relations campaign.

The advertising campaign, developed by HBM/CREAMER, Pittsburgh, will be launched with television and radio spots, later followed by newspaper ads. Using marketing concepts normally found in more high profile advertising, the campaign is designed to significantly alter the image of 2% milk in the minds of consumers. Local dairies will feature "White Lite" side panels on 2% milk cartons and White Lite posters will appear in convenience stores and supermarkets.

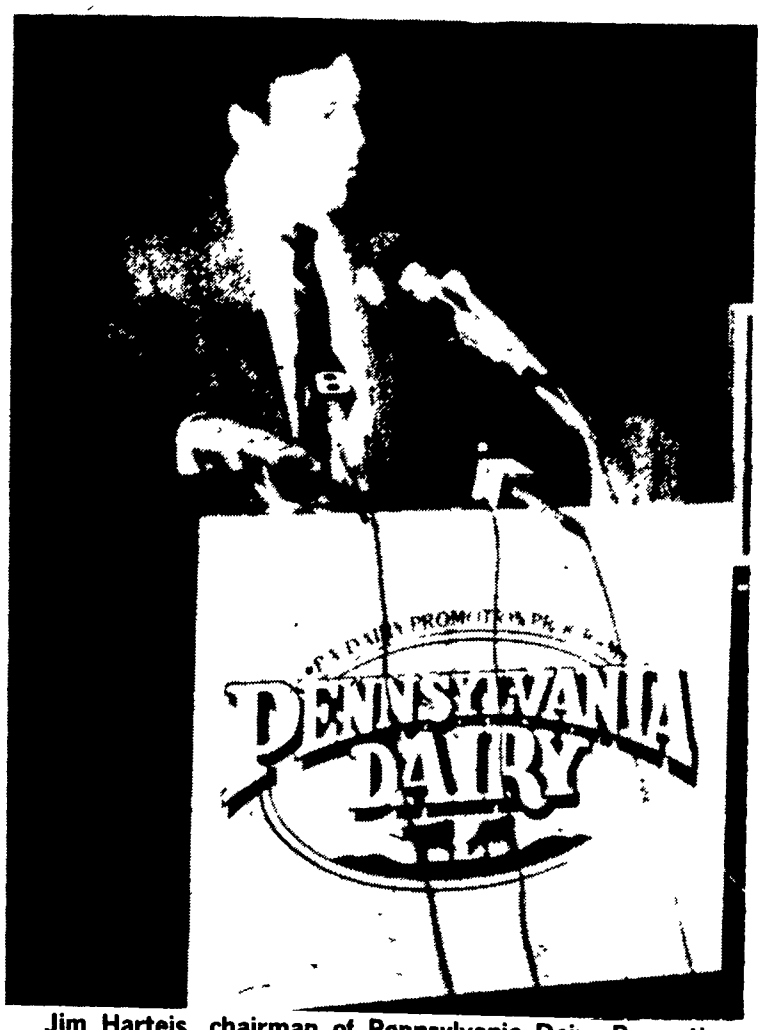
"It's unbranded promotion that local dairymen can use to benefit their own brands," says Harteis. "It's completely different from anything that has ever been done for 2% milk. Everyone in the industry should stand to profit from the net effect."

Product benefits will be vividly demonstrated at public appearances throughout the state by a White Lite Team— a hand-picked troupe of physical fitness experts, a nutritionist, and a fashion model— whose professional presentation includes diet, exercise, and fashion tips for people of all ages.

The White Lite Team presentation, developed under the leadership of Bill Sheely, a junior high school physical education teacher and owner of the Aerobicenter in Lancaster, emphasizes the relevance of total physical fitness in a fashionably fit society. Performing to the beat of a White Lite jingle, the team offers customized exercise and diet tips aimed at good physical health and appearance. As Sheely puts it, "When a person feels good, he looks good— and vice versa. Our White Lite tips can help reduce body fat levels, cholesterol counts, and psychological stress. We offer something for everyone."

As a focal point of the public relations campaign, developed by Kelly Michener Inc., Lancaster, the White Lite Team will embark on a statewide tour this spring. They can be readily identified by their white and blue workout suits and custom-designed White Lite exhibit. At each appearance, they will demonstrate exercises for all age groups, hand out White Lite Tips cards, and provide samples of White Lite 2% milk.

Because interest in the White Lite concept has already been expressed by other dairy promotion groups throughout the country, there may be an opportunity to offer the PDPP program for national syndication. The Pennsylvania dairy industry, representing 14,000 dairy farmers, ranks fifth in the nation for milk production. Operating under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program enables Commonwealth farmers to retain two-thirds of all dairy promotion dollars for the promotion of locally produced milk and dairy products.



Jim Harteis, chairman of Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, explains White Lite to the press conference.

Mid-size power with big-size performance

Case International 885 Tractor

A Case International 885 tractor is a good choice for two reasons. It's the perfect No 1 tractor on smaller operations, and ideal back-up power on larger acreages

With 72 PTO hp*, the 885 more than pulls its weight. You'll like the exceptionally quick response and high torque rise of its clean-burning diesel engine. That extra torque translates into greater tire bite and more workpower So whether you have a small or large operation, the 885 gives you what you need

- 16-speed synchromesh transmission
- Independent 540/1000 RPM PTO
- Category II 3-point hitch
- Power steering, differential lock, planetary final drives
- Hydraulic disc brakes plus complete lighting and instrumentation

See the model that fills your needs — row-crop, utility, low-profile or Mechanical Front Drive (MFD)

Investing in Design....

To Save Farmers Money

Performance is written all over our new 95 hp and 115 hp engines that power the 1896 and 2096 Case IH tractors. Recent fuel economy tests of our new engine at Nebraska far exceed previous Case or International Harvester engine designs by saving farmers nearly one gallon of fuel per hour. With nearly one-third of the cost of ownership of a tractor directly related to fuel cost THAT'S INVESTING IN DESIGN TO SAVE FARMERS MONEY.

Vertical Path Boom. A leap ahead in loader logic.

New John Deere skid-steer loaders give you up to 30% more reach

Boom arch is eliminated! John Deere's Vertical Path boom lifts loads up and out. So you've got up to 30% more forward reach than most other skid-steers for good truck loading ability.

These new John Deere skid-steers also have 30% more lift per pound of weight than conventional units, thanks to high strength steel and uniframe construction.

And they run the ground well. A low center of gravity, low profile and long wheelbase provide the stability for better rough-terrain performance and faster travel. Hydrostatic drive allows precise speed control. Shorter overall length and narrower width make for superior maneuverability. Two-lever steering and foot controls increase operator efficiency.

Experts Predict Good Year For Lamb, Wool Production

From American Sheep Producers Council

DENVER, Colo. — American sheep producers saw some ups and downs in the market during the past year, but the strength of the upward side encourages observers to term 1986 a good year for both lamb and wool production.

LAMB: An overview of lamb prices shows a trend upward during the first five months, reaching a record high of $1.70. Much of this upward activity occurred during the 10 weeks beginning March 29, when increased demand for a shorter supply pushed average wholesale prices up 40 cents. However, prices then fell an average of 53 cents, reaching a low during the week ending October 17. Rounding out the year, the market turned around in November and December, increasing an average of 30 cents.

In the aftermath of these price swings, plus a shorter lamb supply in 1986, it is interesting to note last year's wholesale price trend line was still above the trend line for the past six years for most weeks.

Another interesting factor about 1986 is that even though slaughter was about eight percent less than 1985, year-end figures should show production off only about six percent. This is due to an increase in average lamb and mutton dressed weights from 57 to 58.7 pounds. The decreased slaughter stems from lower inventory numbers coming into 1986, plus producers held back ewe lambs to increase the size of their breeding herds.

Stock sheep inventory, collected by USDA on January 1, 1986, showed a five percent decline from 1985. Many observers feel the January 1, 1987 stock sheep numbers will show close to a five percent increase. The increase is due to many producers holding back ewe lambs and keeping older ewes in their herd one more year.

Slaughter lamb prices followed a similar price trend during the year. When wholesale prices reached a peak of $1.70 in May, some slaughter lambs were being priced as high as 85 cents per pound, also an all-time high, with the U.S. average slaughter lamb price in the mid-70's. Slaughter prices also bottomed out in mid-October at 50-55 cents when wholesale prices were averaging $1.16 per pound. By year's end, the slaughter price was quoted in the low to mid 70's.

However, the price trend for feeder lambs was not as erratic. They held up above 70 cents for feeders under 80 pounds, even when slaughter prices were in the low to mid 50's. When slaughter prices recovered to the 70-cent level, feeder lamb prices rose to near 80 cents and above, with light feeders under 65 pounds bringing 90 cents or more by year's end.

Feeders bid up the price because of a shortage of lambs available to run through feeding operations. And, to insure profitable price levels into 1987, many feeders contracted their lambs in the low to mid 70's during November and December for first quarter 1987 delivery. Prices appear as though they will hold up in this range during the first quarter of 1987 with normal price variations occurring during the remainder of 1987.

In 1986, the return per head for a 4,000 head range operation was estimated to be between $10-15 per ewe. If price forecasts hold into 1987, profitability should once again be seen by U.S. sheep producers.

However, some observers point to several "if" situations which could upset the price-cart. First, if the weight of feedlot lambs gets out of control, then price pressure could creep back into the picture. Others are still concerned about what may happen to demand if price levels get too high, as was seen in 1986.

Another concern which may upset the price cart is strength of the economy and, more importantly, how the new tax law will affect the economy. Many observers see the tax law in the long term as having a positive effect on the economy. However, short term there is the concern by many observers that the effect might be negative as many consumers and businesses may take a "wait and see attitude" on how the new tax law will affect their personal situation.

Imports will once again be a force to be reckoned with in 1987. In 1986 lamb imports were running about 2.5 percent above 1985 levels. However, with mutton imports added, total imports were up substantially.

Imports are expected to continue flowing into the country at a faster rate, as New Zealand and

On-Farm Ram Testing: You Can Do It!

Records permit us to establish a performance baseline from which we can measure genetic progress. Performance testing offers purebred and commercial sheep producers a way of discovering and measuring differences among animals in their inherited abilities to grow rapidly, mature early, use feed efficiently, reproduce regularly and develop high yielding carcasses that are acceptable to the consumer.

Some pros and cons of Performance Testing programs follow:

Central Test Stations

Advantages
- evaluation made under a uniform set of conditions
- can compare individual breed differences

Disadvantages
- has limited value in estimating genetic differences within a flock
- performance records are limited to a smaller population sample
- generally more costly

To be most effective central test stations should supplement rather than replace on-the-farm testing programs. A more logical step for a central test facility, providing there exists a strong on-the-farm performance program, would be to consider a slaughter and carcass evaluation service for producers on groups of lambs by given sires.

On-The-Farm Testing

Advantages
- within—flock records facilitate a stronger selection base within a breed
- records used more as a selection tool and less as a marketing edge
- generally less costly

Disadvantages
- more environmental variation
- must provide facility & labor
- performance comparisons limited to within breed

When seeking superior sires, both the commercial and purebred objective should be for higher growth rate and optimum production with a desirable carcass. There are major characteristics wich contribute to a successful breeding program. These are: 1) fertility; 2) nursing ability; 3) pre-weaning gain; 4) post-weaning gain; 5) feed efficiency; 6) freedom from inherit defects; and 7) structural soundness.

The first three characteristics could be measured directly and indirectly in a performance testing program by evaluating weaning weight which could be a direct measure of preweaning gain and indirectly on nursing ability and fertility of the dam. In the post-weaning phase one could get an excellent measure of postweaning gain and feed efficiency by feeding the rams in sire groups and measuring daily gain from weaning to 120 days of age.

The "master's eye" for show ring evaluation of sheep still has a place; however, this is only one of several tools to identify the conformation of animals. The eyeball evaluation tells us very little about the growth potential and the efficiency of the animals; however we can get some measure of predisposition to weight, structural soundness, and genetic defect. Therefore, performance records are necessary to make a critical evaluation of the entire flock from the standpoint of growth and efficiency. These are the most important traits in the lamb feeding industry.

Not all purebred performance tested sheep are superior, therefore it becomes important that the commercial producer likewise maintain good flock records. By knowing the production level of his flock one can make systematic genetic progress within the flock. Since each decision influences future genetic value of his flock, a breeder's success depends on the skill and judgement with which he selects animals with the inherent genetic constitution to meet future industry needs.

Since four or five or more characters must always be necessary in using records, compromises and judgement are always necessary in using records. It is seldom that a single animal will be superior in every important trait. Thus, performance test records are no substitute for skill and judgement. Rather, they increase the pool of information which the skilled breeder can use to improve accuracy of selections. Such is true for both purebred and commercial sheep producers.

Cattlemen To Hold Beef Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK — "Feeding, Breeding and Selling Cattle in the 1990s" is the theme of the 1987 Beef Cattle Conference, slated for Feb. 20-21 at Allenberry Resort, Boiling Springs, Pa.

The conference, co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, Penn State's Dairy and Animal Science Department and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Markets, will include several speakers.

H. Richard Farr, Farr Farms Company, Greeley, Colorado, will speak on feed processing, feeding systems and types of cattle used in western cattle feedlots. The Farr Farms Company has been a leader in many practical innovations in cattle feeding.

Jim Wise, marketing specialist with the USDA Standardization Branch of the Agricultural Marketing Service, will talk about how proposed changes in carcass grading may affect the ways cattle are marketed, processed and sold, and how merchandising changes such as branded products (low-calorie, lite, natural) have boosted beef consumption.

Following Mr. Farr and Dr. Wise will be Harold Harpster, associate professor of animal science at Penn State, who will discuss recent research data on the relationship between feed efficiency and carcass composition.

John Meetz, executive vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association, will speak at the Friday evening banquet. His presentation, "The Vital Circle," will include such topics as effects of export markets of both cattle and grain on the beef cattle industry, and how beef cattle producers in other areas of the country have adapted to tight or negative profit margins.

Saturday morning's program will feature Burton Eller, vice president for legislative matters with NCA, who will speak on new governmental regulations that affect cattlemen as well as many other areas of agriculture.

W.R. Henning, extension meat scientist at Penn State, will present "Consumption Trends and Beef Outlook — What Can We Expect from the 1990s?"

John Francis, vice president for merchandising of the Beef Industry Council, will follow with "The New Beef/Veal Check-Off Program — What's In It For You?" He will detail plans for using the check-off funds for promotion, advertising and consumer education programs, aimed at increasing profitability for producers, marketing agencies and processors of beef and veal.

After Saturday lunch, Roy Wallace, director of beef programs for Select Sires, will speak on the use of sire progeny information and how genetic programs influence the individual breeder's herds as well as the total beef industry.

In a separate session for cattle feeders on Saturday afternoon, Penn State specialists will discuss topics such as new forage concepts for the cattle feeder, update on safety and effectiveness of growth promotants and antibiotics, handling newly arrived cattle to prevent losses and effectiveness of different internal and external parasite treatments.

Other conference features will include new beef hors d'oeuvres, evening entertainment, and tours and lunches for spouses.

Registration deadline is Feb. 15. Although advance registration is preferred, participants can also register beginning at 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 20. For more information and registration materials, contact Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 324 Henning Building, University Park, Pa. 16802; (814)863-3659.

Moldy Corn Kills Maryland Horses

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Maryland Department of Agriculture is warning all horse owners to be on the look out for a deadly disease that could kill their animals.

Reports from two of MDA's Animal Health Laboratories indicate that drought stricken corn harvested and/or stored under the rainy conditions that have prevailed lately can be deadly to horses. In recent weeks necropsy (post-mortem) examination of a dozen horses by pathologists at the College Park and Frederick Laboratories has resulted in diagnosis of leukoencephalomalacia (LEM).

The most common cause of this disease is consumption of corn or rations containing corn infected with the mold Fusarium moniliforme. The mold thrives under conditions identical to those which affected Maryland and most southeastern states this past year, i.e., an extremely dry growing season and an unusually wet harvest season.

It is thought that a toxin produced by the mold damages blood vessels throughout the horses' bodies but primarily those which nourish the brain. Thus, after eating infected corn for one or more weeks, some horses develop brain damage and show symptoms which include drowsiness, blindness, muscular twitching, inability to swallow, staggering, and paralysis.

Unfortunately, nearly all become wildly delirious and/or fall into a coma before dying. All of these and other signs can appear within a period as brief as several hours or be prolonged for several days. There is no specific treatment, though veterinarians can provide supportive therapy, and relieve the pain and suffering of affected horses.

Prevention of moldy corn poisoning depends primarily on avoiding contaminated corn. Since the mold is seldom visible, practical and reliable tests for it have not yet been developed; elimination of this year's corn from the diet of rations of horses would seem to be the best preventive measure.

NY Beef Council Seeks Promotion, Research Proposals

RICHMONDVILLE, NY – With the debut of the national media campaign "Beef. Real Food For Real People," New York State farm organizations, marketing groups, research projects, communication agencies and others are reminded that funding for state beef promotion and research programs is now being made available.

Henry Bono, chairman of the New York Beef Industry Council, has issued a call for promotion and research proposals to be funded by New York State's share of the national $1-per-head Beef Checkoff.

He said the 11 member New York Beef Industry Council, which represents all aspects of the state's beef industry including dairymen and veal producers, is charged with not only serving as the checkoff collection agency in the state but with implementation and administration of in-state beef promotion and research programs.

Bono explained that up to 50 cents of every checkoff dollar collected in the state could be available for in-state projects with an estimated funding pool of $200,000.

"We will have money available to begin project funding in April, so now is the time for interested groups to submit their proposal requests," Bono said.

The New York Beef Industry Council is asking for grant requests in the areas of promotion, research, consumer education and industry education.

Bono said, "The New York Beef Industry Council is especially interested in innovative proposals that meet promotion and research needs of the dairy and veal industries since these are major contributors to our total beef industry in the state."

Interested persons or groups are asked to call Henry Bono at 518-294-7716 or to write Henry Bono, RR1, Box 219, Richmondville, N.Y. 12149 for. proposal guidelines and detailed request information.

Experts Predict Good Year

Australia have become more aggressive in their marketing and promotion efforts. Australia in particular has become very aggressive, flying in fresh product to different markets around the country. In fact, the percentage of total lamb imports Australia is bringing into the U.S. is about equal to the amount being brought in by New Zealand. Until this year the percentages have been split 80-20 New Zealand, Australia.

One other concern with imports is the plan by some individuals to import live feeder lambs from Australia or New Zealand to be destined for slaughter in the U.S. As of this writing, 27,000 feeder lambs are anticipated to enter the U.S. sometime in February. While several problems still exist for individuals who wish to import feeder lambs, shipments appear to be becoming more of a reality.

WOOL: On the wool side, prices improved during 1986 by an average of 10 to 15 percent over 1985. The weighted average wool price in 1986 should be around 68 cents. Based on an incentive rate of $1.78 per pound, producers will probably receive about 160 percent to bring their price up to the national incentive level. Unshorn payment should be around $4.40/cwt.

Observers see 1987 wool prices holding at near 1986 levels with the possibility of fine wool prices being higher. Wool sales after the first of the year in Australia should help clear the picture for wool prices in the U.S. for 1987.

Wool textile imports continue to plague the U.S. wool market. They are expected to be up to 10 percent higher than the record level seen in 1985. If they continue to flow into the U.S. at this record pace, domestic wool prices could easily suffer as mill demand is slowed.

Pelt prices climbed throughout 1986 as short supplies caused buyers to bid higher for available supplies. Also, improved worldwide consumer demand for lamb pelts has helped 1986 prices reach levels not seen since 1980. Observers see prices continuing to respond in 1987 to demands equal or better than 1986.

Bred Gilt Show Expands To Include 8 Breeds, 200 Entries

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Each year the Governor arrives at noon on Sunday to officially open Farm Show, but few Farm Show goers realize that the Governor is already a day late.

Showring competition actually begins on Saturday with the bred gilt show, which, according to a number of exhibitors, may well be the largest show if its kind in the nation. While most open swine events feature boars and unbred, or open, gilts, the annual Farm Show event is one of the few swine competitions nationwide where only bred gilts may be shown.

The show is followed by sales of the show entries held on Monday and Tuesday, and few livestock sales can boast the bargains available at a bred gilt sale. Buyers typically spend a few hundred dollars and go home with a package deal that includes a sow and perhaps 10 or more baby pigs. Under normal market conditions, the owner should be able to cover his initial investment with the sale of those baby pigs, which essentially gives him a sow for free.

Judge Don Verhoff, a purebred breeder from Ottawa, Ohio, waded through the show's 198 entries, which included Poland Chinas and Chester Whites, two breeds not shown last year.

Chester White

Verhoff, who serves as executive secretary for the National Landrace Association, kicked off the show by selecting a gilt shown by Jim Parlett of Airville as his champion Chester. A perennial gilt show favorite, the York County exhibitor has shown champions at least 10 out of the last 12 years at Farm Show. His March gilt was a littermate to last year's York Fair champion, and Parlett followed up in October with the champion Chester at the Keystone International Livestock Expo.

At reserve was a gilt shown by 16-year-old Scott Lazarus, son ot Mr. and Mrs. Gary Lazarus of Germansville. The Lehigh countian's winning gilt was a 4-H project out of the sow that took champion Chester White honors at last year's New York State Fair.

Berkshire

Keeping the tradition alive, Lebanon County's Grumbines once again took champion honors in this show. Dennis Grumbine doesn't hesitate to give much of the credit for the family's hog show successes to his sons, Daryl, 15, and Darren, 13. "The put a lot of time in with these animals," he pointed out.

Staying with a winner, the Grumbines bred this year's top gilt from the sow that took top honors last year. The Grumbines, who raise only Berkshires on their Myerstown-area farm, have shown a champion or reserve gilt in every Farm Show bred gilt competition for the past 15 years.

Nineteen-year-old Todd Bennecoff of Kutztown showed the event's number-two Berkshire. In 25 years of Farm Show competition, this was the Bennecoff family's first win in the Berkshire show. Bennecoff, who raises hogs as FFA projects, works as a roofer and finds time to tend to some 45 sows with the help of his father, Terry. This year's reserve was a homebred gilt sired by one of the progeny of a gilt that the Bennecoffs purchased at a previous Farm Show sale.

Duroc

After 18 years of Farm Show competition, Centre County's Ken Fetterolf finally scored a championship plaque in the Duroc show. The Centre Hall breeder, who raises only Durocs, raised his champion gilt from a gilt that he bought at last year's sale from Jim Parlett.

Another gilt show favorite, Larry Arnold of Womelsdorf, went home with reserve Duroc honors. The Berks countian went to Ohio for DBF5 Jimmy, the boar that sired his reserve champion. Purchased from the Ohio Test Station, Jimmy was among the pen of hogs that posted the station's top feed efficiency of 2.17. Last year Arnold, who owns Arnold Hog Farms with his brother Leon Arnold, took both champion and reserve honors in the gilt show.

Hampshire

Carolyn Thomas of Stewartstown, York County, chalked up her first Farm Show championship by topping the Hampshire show. This year's victory was particularly sweet for Thomas, who noted that the gilt she had chosen to campaign in last year's event went lame before the show. The animal redeemed herself, though, by giving birth to the gilt that took this year's top honor. Thomas, who runs the family hog business with her husband Charles, needed only three years of Farm Show competition to register her first victory.

Todd Bennecoff, who took reserve Berkshire honors, was back in the winners circle with the reserve champion Hampshire. His winning gilt was homebred out of a sow that he bought at Farm Show three years ago.

Landrace

Barbara Mummert, owner of Tunnel Hill Farm in Seven Valleys, posted her fourth Farm Show championship in five years of competition by topping the Landrace show. Mummert's gilt, Classic Sandy, was sired by Cibbe, the boar that sired her three other Farm Show champions in 1983, '84 and '85. The York County exhibitor, who owns 22 Landrace sows, has been a Farm Show regular since 1970.

Reserve Landrace honors went to Fulton County exhibitor Donald Lake of Big Cove Tannery. Lake, who has shown gilts at Farm Show for 10 years, has one other champion title and one reserve to his credit. His winning gilt was sired by a boar he bought from the Ohio Test Station.

Poland China

Westmoreland County 4-H'er Joseph Gardner, Jr., got a welcome phone call from his father, Joseph, following the Poland China show. The younger Gardner, who was unable to attend the gilt show because of a high school wrestling match, logged his first Farm Show victory when his father drove his homebred March gilt to champion honors. Gardner, 18, won with a gilt sired by a boar he bought from Indiana breeders Robert and Gary Wilson.

Reserve Poland China honors went to Lehigh County when New Tripoli breeder Harlan Wessner won the second-place title with a gilt that had also taken reserve at KILE in October. The victory marked the end of a long dry spell for Wessner, who had topped the show for three years in a row beginning in 1977.

Spotted Swine

After winning the reserve Landrace title, The Lake family was back in the winners circle with the champion Spot. This time it was Brian Lake, the 15-year-old son of Donald and Marna Lake, who topped the show. This was the younger Lake's first Farm Show win after three years of gilt competition. His gilt was sired by TA Tudor, a boar purchased from Ohio.

The reserve Spot title went to Lehigh County's Lazarus Brothers. A competitive family of swine producers, the brothers, including Grant, Les, Gary, Wayne and Lynn, were named premier breeders in all four breeds of swine shown at last year's New York State Fair.

Yorkshire

The other half of Arnold Hog Farms, Leon Arnold, followed his brother Larry's Duroc win by taking champion honors in the Yorkshire show. The Lebanon breeder, who's been a gilt show competitor since 1950, has often topped the gilt sale, but noted that this was his first championship show title. " I'm pretty happy about about that," he said.

Arnold singled out his top gilt from 70 other potential Yorkshire show candidates on the home farm. "I had my eye on her a long time," he pointed out. "She has two sisters, and one of them's just as good as she is."

Once again, the Lazarus family wasn't far behind, with Calvin Lazarus and Sons going home with the reserve Yorkshire title. Grant Lazarus noted that the Lazarus farm has taken the champion York title three times and reserve twice. The sire of this year's reserve gilt produced many on-foot and on-rail champions for the family, Lazarus said.

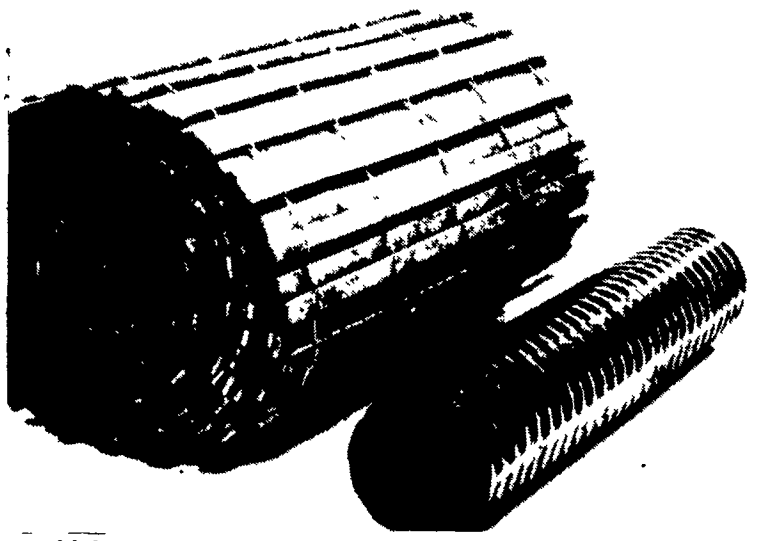
Tensar Snow Fence Is Lightweight, Durable

MORROW, Ga. — The Tensar Corporation, a leader in high-strength polymer product technology, announces the introduction of Tensar Snow Fence for use in controlling drifting snow.

The high-density polyethylene product is oriented and ultra-violet light stabilized to provide up to 20 years of service. Tensar Snow Fence, has withstood winds of up to 100 miles per hour and is approved for use under arctic conditions. It will not rust, rot or corrode and maintains a clean, stable appearance.

The fencing has a tensile-strength of 8,100 pounds per roll width and its configuration cuts airflow by 50 percent, compared to 40 percent for the standard wood slat and wire (picket) fence. A 100-foot roll of four-foot fence weighs just 39 pounds and is only 10 inches in diameter making handling and installation easy. It has no sharp edges, does not splinter and does not conduct electricity.

Tensar Snow Fence, like wood slat and wire, can be used effectively as temporary storage for ear corn and other temporary enclosures around a home or farmstead. Ask your local farm supply store for information.



Lighter in weight than traditional picket snow fence, Tensar's polyethylene fencing (right) has withstood winds of up to 100 mph.

The Tensar Corporation manufactures fencing, shading, soil stabilization and windbreak products in the USA, with distribution throughout North America for agricultural, construction and civil engineering applications. For more information, contact Mark Hurlbut, agricultural product manager, The Tensar Corporation, 1210 Citizens Parkway, Morrow, GA 30260; or call: 1-800-845-4453.

CIBA-GEIGY's Switch To Ethanol Aids Corn Growers

GREENSBORO, N.C. — One company's decision to use ethanol in its nationwide fleet of company vehicles will mean that American corn growers will sell an additional 46,000 bushels of corn for processing into ethanol in 1987 and each year beyond.

Ciba-Geigy Corporation's Agricultural Division has established a policy to use ethanol-blended fuels in all its gasoline-powered vehicles, which will mean the use of about 114,000 gallons of ethanol per year.

If more companies follow suit, the use of ethanol in the U.S. could increase dramatically. However, fleet managers and consumers have been discouraged from using ethanol-blended fuels by car manufacturers and leasing companies because of engine preformance problems incorrectly attributed to ethanol use.

"We found that the car and leasing companies didn't have the facts to back up their recommendations not to use ethanol," said Donald M. Beasley, Ciba-Geigy's Field Fleet Specialist.

Much of the opposition to ethanol was caused by confusion among consumers about the difference between clean-burning ethanol, produced from corn, and the more corrosive methanol, made from wood or coal, Beasley said.

"We feel that ethanol is much cleaner for the environment and actually helps engine performance with its detergent qualities," he said. "The facts won me over."

The president of the National Corn Growers Association, Harold Cutler of Greenville, N.C., commented, "We're pleased with the action and interest in the corn industry by Ciba-Geigy. Their actions keep the corn industry moving in a positive direction of achieving our goal to use one billion bushels of corn by 1990 for the production of ethanol."

The idea for switching to a policy of ethanol use was spearheaded by Funk Seeds International, a division of Ciba-Geigy, at the encouragement of the Illinois Corn Growers Association.

Virginians Named To Farm Credit Board

BALTIMORE, Md. — The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore announce the election of E. McDonald Berryman of Elberon, Virginia and Galen B. Brubaker of Rocky Mount, Virginia, to its board of directors. Berryman was re-elected to the board by the stockholders of the Federal Land Bank Associations; Brubaker was elected by the Bank for Cooperatives' stockholders. Both will serve three year terms.

A diversified farmer, Berryman's operation consists of soybeans, corn, peanuts and timber. In addition, he has a 200-sow farrow-to-finish confinement operation and he develops small tracts of land for residential use.

Berryman is a director and past president of Farmer's United, Inc., and a director for Southern States. He has served as a director of the Federal Land Bank Association of Waverly for 10 years. He is a former director of the Virginia/Carolina Peanut Association.

A dairy farmer, Brubaker milks 196 cows in addition to his row crop operation.

A 1986 recipient of the "Outstanding Friend of Virginia Agriculture" award presented by the Friends of the Industry of Agriculture, Brubaker serves on the board of directors of Dairymen, Inc., Southern States Cooperative, and First Virginia Bank.

Serving on the board of directors for the Baltimore Banks from 1966 to 1974, Brubaker was named as chairman for the 1972-73 term. He then served on the Federal Farm Credit Board from 1974 to 1980, inlcuding a term as chairman in 1978. He served on the Roanoke Production Credit Association Board for 19 years and as chairman from 1957-1974. Brubaker was also a board member of the Roanoke Federal Land Bank Association from 1950 to 1974, serving as chairman from 1957 to 1974.

Mennonite Tours Slated

SALUNGA — Mennonite Your Way has announced several motor coach tours for 1987. These tours, most of which originate from Landisville, travel to other Mennonite communities. The tour program is an outgrowth of the Mennonite Your Way Directory, a listing of host families across North America willing to host overnight guests in their private homes.

"One of the significant differences between the Mennonite Your Way tours and most other bus tours offered today is the opportunity to fellowship as we visit other Christian communities," says Leon Stauffer who along with his wife, Nancy, organize the tours. "There is no better way to learn and build relationships with others of the 'family of faith' then to hear their stories and eat at their tables." In each community a local person serves as host and guide. "We visit other commercial attractions, just like other tours," adds Nancy, "but the high point is usually our contacts with the local people."

Tour Plans for 1987 include:

- California & Southwest U.S.A.-April 10-May 8.
- Azalea Festival, Norfolk, VA-April 24-26.
- Tulip Time, Holland, MI, May 12-16.
- Alaska I, May 25-June 7.
- Alaska II, July 9-22.
- Mackinac Island & Michigan, September 11-19.
- Northeast U.S. Spectacular, September 28-October 13.

Complete itineraries are available for each tour. Contact: Leon & Nancy Stauffer, Box 1525, Salunga, PA 17538 or telephone (717) 653-9288.

USDA Proposed To Allow Use of Compound For Curing Bacon

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing to allow the use of silicon dioxide in bacon curing mixes containing vitamin E to help distribute the vitamin more evenly in curing solutions for pumped bacon.

Silicon dioxide, a crystallized mineral, has the capacity to keep water-insoluble substances, such as vitamin E, dispersed in water.

"When dry curing mixes containing vitamin E are dissolved in water, the oily, water-insoluble vitamin E clusters," explained Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. "Silicon dioxide would help disperse the vitamin E, so that it would be distributed more uniformly in pumped bacon."

The proposal would allow dry curing mixes to contain up to four percent silicon dioxide, he said.

"The substance has been approved for use in food by the Food and Drug Administration," said Houston. "In addition, we have reviewed analytical data showing that silicon dioxide would not affect the wholesomeness of pumped bacon, the most common type of bacon made."

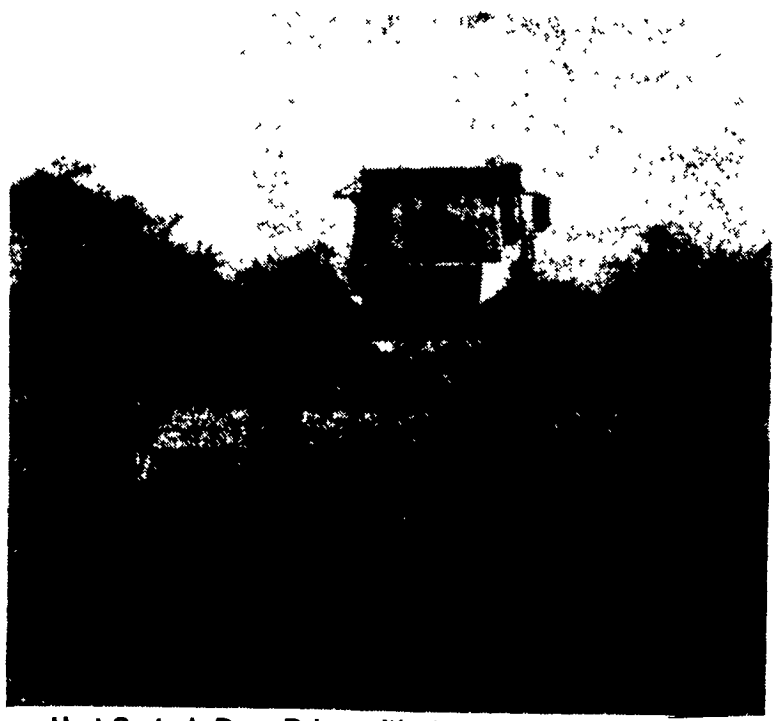
Vitamin E is used in cures to help prevent the formation of nitrosamines when bacon is fried. Nitrosamines form when nitrite from sodium nitrite, which is used in bacon cures to prevent botulism, combines with naturally occurring amines in the meat. Certain nitrosamines have been shown to be carcinogenic in laboratory animals.

The proposal is in response to a petition by the Diamond Crystal Salt Company.

Comments may be submitted Feb. 17 to the Regulations Office, Attn: Linda Carey, Hearing Clerk, Food Safety and Inspection Service Regulations Office, Room 3168-S, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Cultivator Designed For Minimum Tillage Systems

MENDOTA, Ill. – Hart-Carter Company's twin rotor, ground driven (no PTO) Dyna-Drive is designed primarily as a minimum tillage surface cultivator to prepare a smooth, level, erosion-protected seedbed for uniform germination. The unit is effective under conditions where moisture, trash or heavy stubble might stop a disc or field cultivator. Its self-cleaning tines resist plugging and will incorporate trash uniformly. Dyna-Drive has also proved its effectiveness in breaking up large, dry, heavy clods where discs or culti-mulchers fail.



Hart-Carter's Dyna-Drive cultivator converts heavy stubble and trash into a smooth, erosion-resistant seedbed.

The speed differential between its two rotors gives Dyna-Drive a unique action in the soil. The front rotor operates at one-half ground speed giving the tines a forward, scooping action that lifts and breaks the soil into clods. The rear tines revolve three times faster than the front allowing the rear tines to shatter the clods. A trailing crumbler/roller firms the surface to protect the loose soil below. The unit works well in corn stalks, sod and vegetables.

Models are available from 7 to 16 feet working width with depth adjustments from 1½ to 5½ inches. Horsepower requirements are well within acceptable levels, and because of its ability to do its job, often in only one pass, savings in both time and fuel are significant.

Prices and literature are available at Hart-Carter dealers or from Hart-Carter Company, 1501 1st Ave., Mendota, IL 61342. Phone 815/539-9371.

Patz Belt Conveyor

The new Patz Model 8612 Conveyor uses a 12-inch belt on concave pan sections to move silage and grain up to 45 cubic feet per minute. The smooth belt option allows multiple plow-off points to make layout easier. The textured belt conveys up inclines to 30 degrees, depending on type of material. An adjustable concave elbow option permits conveying up an incline and leveling off. A central hopper with open end lets you add feed at several points. Conveyor lengths up to 120 feet are available.

$150,000 Earmarked For Mushroom Promotion

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb recently announced a $150,000 joint venture by his Department and Pennsylvania mushroom growers to promote fresh mushroom sales.

"We're confident mushroom consumption and sales can be increased because we have a quality product that already has considerable consumer confidence," Grubb said.

Grubb cited statistics that show that 44 percent of all fresh mushrooms sold in the United States are produced by growers in Pennsylvania.

"We'll encourage those who enjoy our nutritious, low-calorie mushrooms to consume more, and tell others what they're missing," Grubb said.

The Pennsylvania Fresh Mushroom Promotion Program will be carried out this year with funding from the Department of Agriculture, American Mushroom Institute and contributing mushroom growers. The Department's 1986-87 budget includes $75,000 for the promotion to match the $75,000 raised by the mushroom growers.

The promotion campaign, which will include a newly created "Fresh from Pennsylvania" logo for mushrooms, will be directed by Ketchum Public Relations, Pittsburgh Group, under a one-year contract with the Department.

Promotion events planned during 1987 will feature special activities during the mushroom festival in September at the Mushroom Capital of the World — Kennett Square, Pa.

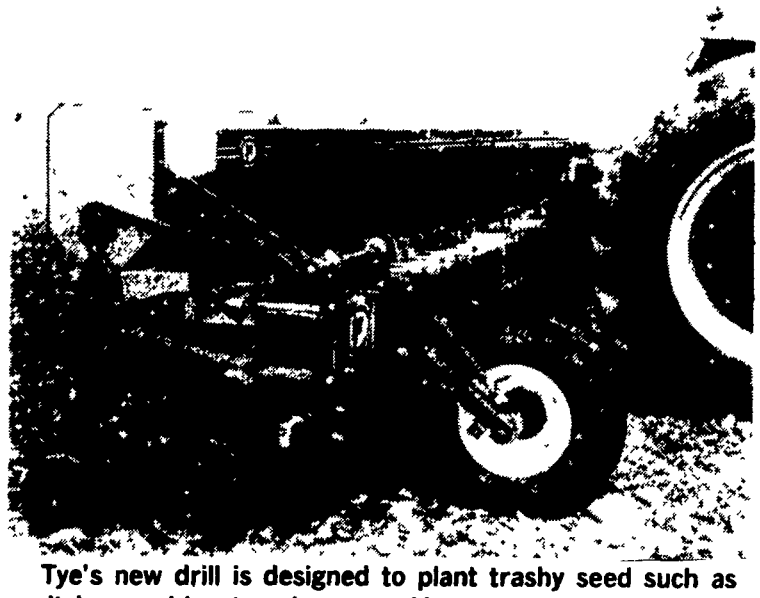
Tye Introduces 'Grass Only' Drill

LOCKNEY, Tx. — The Tye Company, a leader in grass drills since 1978, announces its new "Grass Only" Drill. Tye's new grass drills are specifically designed to plant trashy grass seed like Blue Grama, Side Oats Grama, Switchgrass, Bluestems and Brome plus small grass seed like Sand Dropseed, Lovegrass Kleingrass and legumes.

The "Grass Only" Drill incorporates Tye's new Rear Seed Delivery (RSD) double disc opener with 5/8 inch or 1 inch depth bands. The new RSD opener has a large diameter delivery seed spout, allowing trashy grass seed to flow through the double disc opener for accurate seed placement and protection from wind. Seed flows freely without constriction from seed hopper to the soil, an absolute necessity when planting light, trashy grass seed.

Tye's "Grass Only" Grass Drills incorporate all the features of Tye's new Series V Drills plus two grass seed boxes, RSD double disc openers, 5/8 inch or 1 inch depth bands, 2-by-3-inch depth control press wheels, acremeter, walkboard and double down pressure springs. Tye RSD Grass Drills are available in 10- to 30-foot models. Three-point hitch models can easily be mounted on Tye's No-Till coulter attachment for planting into cover crops and other residue-covered fields.

For more information on Tye "Grass Only" Grass Drills, contact A.O. Smith, The Tye Co., Box 218, Lockney, TX 79241, 806-652-3367.



Tye's new drill is designed to plant trashy seed such as switchgrass, bluestem, brome and legumes.

Six Steps To Establish Control Of Farm Business

The Basics Of Management

ROLAND P. FREUND
Area Farm Management Agent

Step 5. Keeping Score

The most important bit of information to a football coach on the sideline is the score. He also must know such details as the yardage to the next down, and the up-to-the-minute fitness status of each player in the squad. Coaching a game requires a lot of organization and the occasional "time out" to do it effectively.

In the farming business there is no scoreboard to give an immediate readout of the score. Farm managers must maintain their own scoreboard, and they have to be their own linesmen, routinely checking on day-to-day progress. They have to keep the stats about the herd health and the growth of the crops. Unlike football, there are no time outs! The clock keeps running, the crops continue to mature, the animals produce and reproduce, and the bills seem to reproduce too! To stay on top of all these little details without taking a "time out" is what management is all about. The alternative is the strategy which is observed on too many farms - "drop back and punt".

Each business must record its financial dealings for income tax purposes. Completed tax returns however tell very little about the financial health of an operation. To maintain control of the business, the careful farm manager will want to maintain more than minimum financial records. As a first step, it might be helpful to divide income and expenses into two categories - crops and livestock. When this is mastered it may be possible to further subdivide these major categories. For example, livestock may be divided into milk cows and growing stock. This can help to reveal how each enterprise is performing.

To do the detailed farm planning and analysis as discussed earlier in this series, additional records will be needed. These might include:

— Inventories carefully taken at the end of each financial year.
— Field records of soil fertility, treatments, crop and yield history.
— Production records for animals: DHIA, breeding/reproduction, health, weight gain, sales by head and weight of each class of stock.
— Feed usage by different classes of livestock, or regular checks of feed consumption and feed conversion on representative groups.
— Cost of production of crops and livestock.
— Machinery and equipment maintenance records.
— Regular comparison of cash records and cash-flow projections to avoid surprises.

Routine management should also include field scouting for weeds, insects, and diseases. Record the findings for each field. Check livestock for heat and health; promptly record observations and actions taken. Schedule machinery maintenance inspections and program overhauls during slack periods. To ensure that the most important things get accomplished, prepare a job priority list for each week and update it daily.

The exact format of the records is not critical. What is important is that the information be retrievable and that it be used. Some managers prefer to spread everything possible out on wall charts where information can be seen at a glance. Others use commercially available recording systems, while some prefer to use the computer brianpower to store and sort information.

The only reason for collecting and maintaining any information about the farm business is to provide an accurate picture for making decisions. If we make decisions on the basis of our fancies, emotions, and poor memories, we have no need for these management tools. But quarterbacks don't wear blindfolds, and coaches always keep the game roster close at hand.

In our wrapup next time, we'll look at anaylzing results and setting new goals.

Pittsburgh To Host County Fair Convention

PITTSBURGH — Meetings, social functions seminars, a trade show and showcase performances are all slated for the 75th Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs to be held at the Pittsburgh Marriott at Greentree, Pa.

Convention registration, which is expected to exceed 800, will commence on Wednesday, Jan. 21, at 8 a.m. and the convention will end on Friday evening, Jan. 23, with a banquet to celebrate the diamond anniversary of the association. Meeting with the Fair Association will be the Pennsylvania Showmens Association, the support industries for 104 county agricultural fairs in Pennsylvania.

Opening at 3 p.m. on Wednesday, and continuing for the entire three days will be the Trade Show. Approximately 40 vendors will be showing their wares.

The Keynote address for the convention will be presented by Don Warner, president of Warners Mayflower Moving, Red Lion, Pa., Wilmington, Del., and Chicago, Illinois. Warner's topic will be, "Be Optimistic".

Round table discussion groups, seminars, and business meetings will also be held. The Seminar on "Improving Agricultural Exhibits at Your Fair" will be presented by the New York State Fair Association.

Discussion groups will be held on computers, promotion, marketing, surveying, choosing judges, and conducting a queen contest, to name a few.

The 1987 Pennsylvania Fair Queen will be chosen from the 13 entries from the various fairs in the state. This girl will be the association's representative at the 1988 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The fairs in Pennsylvania are the showplace of Pennsylvania agriculture. The 104 fairs held in Pennsylvania last year varied in size from a small three-day event which had attendance of 8,000, to the larger fairs, which run for nine days and draw 550,000 people. The primary purpose of the association is to improve the fair industry and allied fields. From a nucleus of a half dozen fairs in 1912, the association has grown to now represent every agriculture fair in the state.

Maryland Pesticides Conference Scheduled Next Week

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The thirty-third Maryland Agricultural Pesticides Conference is making its annual run at two locations during January east and west of the Chesapeake Bay.

This year's first meeting was held Jan. 13 at the Sheraton Inn south of Frederick. An Eastern Shore version is scheduled next week on Thursday, Jan. 22, in the Danang room of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center at Salisbury.

The day-long educational program includes presentations on regulatory update for pesticides, spray drift control and weather assessment, herbicide action, groundwater protection, and choosing and laundering protective clothing.

Registration confirmation at the Salisbury meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m., with the program running from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., according to Amy E. Brown, Extension pesticide coordinator for the entomology department at the University of Maryland in College Park.

To register, call Nancy Breisch at College Park before noon on weekdays to see if space is still available. Her office telephone is (301) 454-7358.

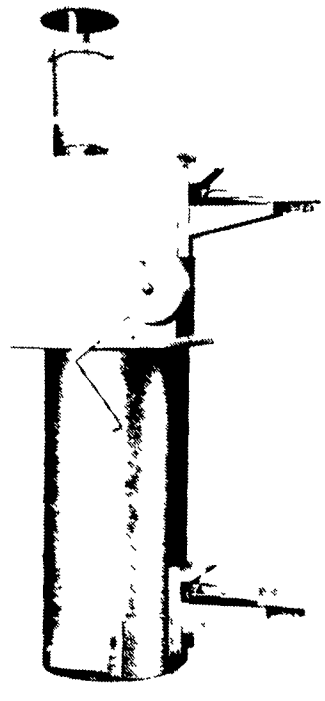
The pesticides conference is intended for county Extension agents as well as agricultural custom pesticide applicators, dealers, distributors and sales representatives. In addition, plant protection workers from the Maryland Department of Agriculture will be on hand. Other interested persons – especially farmers – are welcome.

The event is a qualifying meeting for state recertification in Category 1 for Maryland commecial applicators. In addition, the Delaware Department of Agriculture will accept attendance at the meetings as four hours of training toward recertification in agricultural plant pest control for Delaware operators.

SHENANDOAH INCINERATORS - A SANITARY ALTERNATIVE FOR ON FARM DISPOSAL

To Help Prevent the Spread of Disease

The sanitary way to get rid of animal carcasses is with a Shenandoah incinerator. It's pollution controlled and convenient to use. It's also extra efficient because we've lined the burning chambers, and in some models even the afterburning chambers, with one and a quarter inches of refractory cement. That keeps the heat up and the energy costs down.



Choose among eight easy-to-install smoke and odor controlled models. You even have the option of burning gas or oil.

Ask your local Shenandoah dealer about efficient, inexpensive incinerators. You'll find out how our bright ideas in farm equipment can mean a bright spot in your day. And still leave a green spot in your wallet.

Growth Promotant Implants Pose No Health Risk, Experts Say

SCOTTSDALE, Arix. — U.S. cattlemen need not worry about the safety of beef produced from cattle implanted with growth promotant implants. In fact, the positive effect that growth promotants have on deposition of lean meat in carcasses dictates that these compounds can be a beneficial management tool for cattlemen.

That was the essence of the message delivered at a recent "Wholesome Beef Symposium" here. Sponsored by Syntex Animal Health, Inc., the symposium brought together thought-leaders from various disciplines inside and outside the industry. Its purpose was to examine the safety of growth promotant implants and to look at the consumer demand for lean beef, how that beef fits into a well balanced diet and how cattlemen can produce lean beef.

Concerns about the safety of growth promotant implants used in beef animals are totally unfounded, said Dr. Daniel Hale and Dr. Stanley Kushinsky. Hale, assistant professor of pediatrics and pediatric endocrinology at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, told the group that the level of hormones a person could ingest from eating meat from implanted cattle is insignificant compared with the levels that the body itself produces and the levels available from other external sources.

The production rate of estrogen in a pre-pubertal female is about 54,000 nanograms (a nanogram is one billionth of a gram) per 24-hour period, he said. The levels are even higher in a pubescent female.

In contrast, meat from an implanted animal contains so few nanograms of estrogen that the hormone is difficult to detect. Measured on a percentage-of-bodily-production basis, the level would be in the range of .10 percent, or about 56 nanograms of the body's daily production rate.

Vegetables such as soy products, alfalfa sprouts, and peas, have hundreds of times more estorgen than implanted beef, he said. One hundred grams of cabbage, for example, contains about 4.4 percent (about 2,400 nanograms) of the pre-pubertal female's daily estrogen production.

Kushinsky, director of Bioanalytical and Metabolic Research for the Syntex Corporation, told the group that even the tissues from non-implanted pregnant animals contain a higher level of estrogen than do the tissues from implanted animals. In his investigations of residue levels in meat from the natural-hormone-based Synovex implants, he found that tissues from animals implanted with Synovex S contain on the average of 50 parts per trillion of estradiol — one of the forms of estrogen produced by the body, he said. This compares with a residue of 2,800 parts per trillion of estradiol in the tissues of non-treated pregnant heifers.

The comparison of estrogen residues in implanted animals versus estrogen levels in other food stuffs is similarly insignificant, he said. Milk contains about 80 to 125 parts per trillion of estrogen, for example.

Based or the research, the chances of anyone being harmed from eating meat that comes from an implanted animal are extremely remote, Kushinsky concluded.

Red meat always has, and will continue to, occupy an essential place in the human diet, said Dr. Rosyln Alfin-Slater, professor and associate dean in the school of public health at the University of California, Los Angeles. Red meat provides the most easily absorbed form of iron, an essential mineral in human diets needed to produce red blood cells. Other foods contain iron, but the form is much more difficult to absorb, she told the group.

"It's unfortunate that people refrain from eating red meat because they fear the high cholesterol," she said. "For one thing, meat doesn't have to be high in fat and, therefore cholesterol, if you choose lean cuts. For another, the body metabolizes about 1,000 milligrams of cholesterol per day and only absorbs about half of the cholesterol ingested."

Alfin-Slater decries the advice physicians give their patients not to eat red meat. Only recently have medical schools been providing classes in nutrition, she said.

No doubt beef needs to be presented to consumers in a manner different than has been traditional, said Dr. Jack Allen and Dr. Thomas Pierson of the Food Marketing Research Department at Michigan State University. Changing lifestyles dictate that the beef industry needs to be more market oriented in the sale of its products as opposed to the commodity orientation the industry has now.

Essentially the industry's task is to increase consumers' perceived value of beef, they said. That involves understanding what consumers want and modifying the product to fit those wants.

Cattlemen already have the tools to produce lean, wholesome beef consumers seem to be wanting, said Dr. Floyd Byers of Texas A&M University.

Byers has spent a number years studying what he calls the "repartitioning" ability of growth promotant implants. The natural estrogenic compounds in implants have the ability to deposit lean instead of fat in the animal's body, he said Most of this conversion from fat to lean comes from the subcutaneous fat. Consumers, according to the research, base most of their impressions about the fat content of meat on the subcutaneous fat.

Repartitioning also benefits consumers and cattlemen by allowing flexibility in the time that cattle are marketed. Because estrogen-based growth promotant implants increase or enhance the shifting of fat to lean, cattlemen have a longer window to market their cattle without those cattle becoming overly fat. This benefits the consumer because fewer pounds of fat are put on the carcass. It benefits the cattleman because he is able to provide a leaner carcass, Byers said.

Cattlemen should take advantage of these tools as they strive to meet the needs consumers want in red meat today. "We have the technology now to put together any product we want," he said.

Wyoming Co. Names Extension Director

UNIVERSITY PARK — Robert O. Hobbes, who has been on the Wyoming County extension staff since 1953, has been named county extension director. He replaces Murray W. Fisk, who retired at the end of December.

Hobbes has been honored for his educational contributions to Pennsylvania agriculture with a Distinguished Service Award and Career Guidance Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

Over the years he has assisted in organizing programs for the Wool Growers Cooperative Association of Wyoming, Lackawanna and Luzerne counties. He encourages the group to conduct educational meetings throughout the year. He started a 4-H tractor program in 1955 and it has developed into a Tractor and Farm Machinery Safety Program conducted annually.

He developed 4-H horse club work in Wyoming County in 1956. Since the program began, county horse club members have competed in both district and state shows each year.

Hobbes helped organize the Susquehanna-Wyoming Council of Farm Cooperatives. Since 1956, more than 500 4-H boys and girls in Wyoming County participated in programs to learn more about the farm cooperative business. More than 50 youths have attended the state association's youth institute, and three have been selected to participate in the national farm cooperative program.

A certified rifle and shotgun instructor, Hobbes conducted more than 30 hunter safety courses. In 1969, he organized a 4-H rifle marksmanship club, one of the first in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Hobbes developed a career awareness program for two Wyoming County school districts. Each year, more than 400 high school students gain a better understanding of careers available. He also recently worked with community leaders in conducting numerous workshops on drug awareness.

Delmarva Corn, Soybean Conference Scheduled

NEWARK, Del. — "Your Farm, Your Future" will be the theme when area growers gather for the 1987 Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference, Wednesday, Feb. 4, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. Doors will open at 8:30 a.m. for exhibits, coffee and donuts. The event is being sponsored by Delmarva agribusiness firms and the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia Cooperative Extension systems.

One highlight of the event will be a talk on marketing by Dr. John Marten, agricultural economist for Farm Journal magazine. Another featured speaker will be Dr. Roy Arnold, vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska, an expert on groundwater quality.

Conference planners have again scheduled two programs this year — a production-oriented program and one for farm families — which will run concurrently.

The general farm program will start at 10 a.m. in the Civic Center's main auditorium with a panel discussion on "Operating a Farm as a Business." This will be followed by a talk on micronutrients in grain production by Dr. Mark Alley, extension agronomist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; and a presentation on new herbicides for hard-to-control weeds, by University of Delaware ag extension agent Bob Hochmuth and extension assistant Mark Isaacs.

The morning session for farm families will take place in the DaNang Room from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. It will feature a presentation on pesticide safety by University of Delaware extension safety specialist Ron Jester, and a talk on how to deal with emergencies on the farm by University of Maryland extension agricultural engineer Gary L. Smith.

After a break for lunch and a visit to exhibits, the production program will resume at 1:15 p.m. with Dr. Arnold's talk on groundwater quality. This will be followed by a discussion of sprayer systems and calibration featuring extension engineer Gary Smith and Dorchester County (Md.) farmer Milton Malkus III.

The afternoon farm family session will run from 1:15 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. It will focus on "Planning Income for Future Needs and New Tax Strategies," with presentations by University of Delaware extension home economist Sally Foulke, University of Maryland extension family resource specialist Dr. Pat Tengel and extension home economist Sandy Facinoli.

Dr. Marten's talk on marketing is scheduled to begin at 2:40 p.m. in the main auditorium.

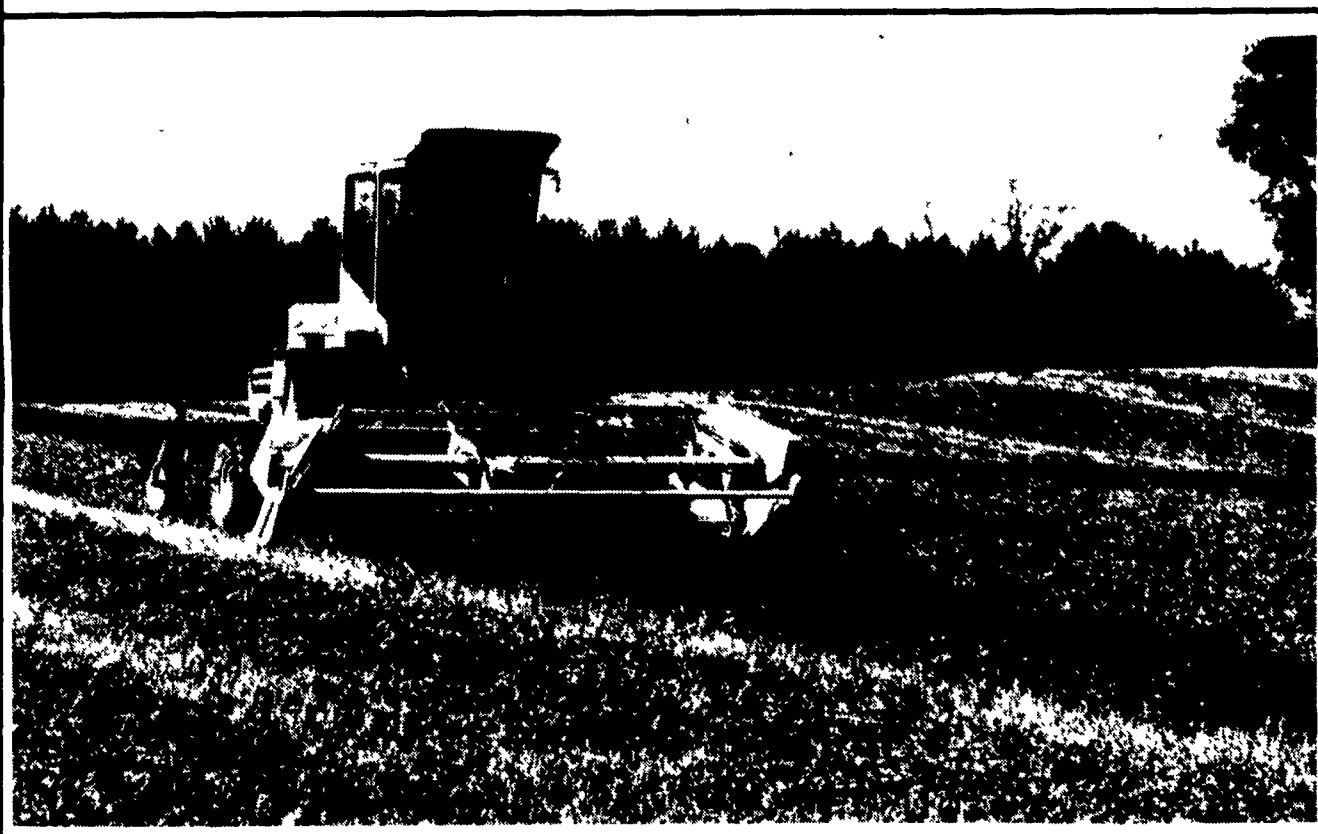
Cimarron Alfalfa
Proven Performance



Vince Flannery

Vince Flannery, and sons Tom and Tim, grow alfalfa for their dairy herd high in the Appalachian Mountains of Southwestern Pennsylvania. Flannery's farm, near Somerset, is at an elevation well above 2000 feet. Winters are long and severe, soils variable, and it requires good management to achieve maximum alfalfa yields. Growers found that it takes a special variety to persist and yield in this challenging environment - yet the Flannerys consistently produce high quality alfalfa forage with the help of Cimarron alfalfa Here is the Flannery's story.

Flannerys planted their first Cimarron 4 years ago and have not plowed down any yet. They have plowed down other varieties planted since then Right now, they have a total of 80 acres of Cimarron planted in various fields.

New seedings in 1986 yielded three cuttings with a fourth knee-high going into winter In fact, they harvested five cuttings from the older Cimarron stands this year, and that's very unusual here. Cimarron stands up to intensive cutting management practiced here. The quality is good, too All the Cimarron protein tests came back between 20 and 24 percent.

"Cimarron has had the best longevity of any variety we've used, with yields as good as other leading varieties," say the Flannerys.

That's The Cimarron Story From Somerset, PA.

Governor Thornburgh Opens State Show With Walk Through Exhibits, Speech In Large Arena

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG — The 71st Annual Pennsylvania State Farm Show received its grand opening here Sunday when Governor Richard Thornburgh and Mrs. Thornburgh entered the Farm Show complex from McClay Street to the microphones, lights and cameras of the host of media representatives waiting inside. Agriculture Secretary Richard Grubb and Mrs. Grubb had escorted the state's first couple through some of the isles of the main exhibition building into the sheep, hog and dairy barns and onto a wagon drawn by two flashy black work horses. The team of horses pulled the celebrities into the large arena to the cheers and applause of a warm crowd gathered to witness opening ceremonies and the presentation of farm products to the governor by queens, princesses and product representatives of Pennsylvania agriculture.

Thornburgh told the state farm crowd that he shares with our farmers, farm leaders and the entire agribusiness community a feeling of pride in the growing success and continuing importance of agriculture in our Pennsylvania--the state with the nation's largest rural population.

"It has been an eight-year commitment of this administration to create an environment conducive to the growth of this vitally important industry and to the preservation of the values implicit in our rural communities," Thornburgh said.

"The cash return last year to our farmers on $4 billion in crop and animal production ranks Pennsylvania 17th in the nation in agricultural receipts, up from the 21st position in 1980, and makes us the predominant agricultural state in the Northeast. Agricultural employment is up 30 percent in Pennsylvania since 1980. Indeed, one in five Pennsylvanians today owes a job to agriculture.

"The preservation of family farms and farmland resources has been a priority policy of this administration. Will Rogers once observed that the American farmer is the only segment of our economy who 'buys at retail, sells at wholesale and pays the freight in both directions'." These are hurdles that no other industry has had to overcome."

"Our administration has sought to even the odds and give the family farmer a fighting chance not only to survive but to prosper, through unprecedented promotion and marketing assistance, economic development programs, animal health improvement efforts and creation of a farmland preservation division in the Department of Agriculture.

"It is fitting that the theme of this year's farm show is 'Pennsylvania Agriculture–Progress Through Technology,' because it highlights the partnership between the state's number one industry and the technological revolution that is hard upon us."

"While some still insist on viewing the farm in terms of the stereotypes of the past, those who make their livelihood from agriculture realize that modern farming has itself undergone a whole series of technological advances. Livestock are now being graded with ultrasonic equipment which improves both breeding and marketing; feed is both determined and dispersed by computer; automatic milking parlors not only handlde the milking, but also compile detailed information on each cow's performance and production."

AZINE®

CORN HERBICIDE

STAYING POWER.

The long residual of EXTRAZINE keeps killing weeds all season long. Stops tough grasses like foxtails and fall panicum. And stops broadleaves such as velvetleaf and cocklebur the premixes can miss. More consistent weed control than contact/residual combinations. Yet EXTRAZINE offers reduced carryover versus most premixes as well as tank mixes.

DOLLAR POWER.

EXTRAZINE costs less than Lasso/Atrazine and Bicep. And the one-shot weed control of EXTRAZINE is backed by a performance agreement. EXTRAZINE assures commercially acceptable weed control. See your participating dealer now for full details.
